Bad Check 'Fever' Plagues Merchants

If an Arlington Heights merchant eyes you suspiciously the next time oyu try to cash a check, don't take offense. A wave of bad checks is currently costing local merchants dollars and time.

In some cases merchants are able to get their money back, as the con men are usually able to scrape up restitution money when it's a case of doing that or going to jail.

HELD BRIEFLY in police custody on charges of passing fraudulent checks were John A. Schaefer, who gave a Skokie address, and Kenneth Wick and James McCord, both of Highwood.

Police learned from two merchants that McCord cashed checks for $110 and $121 on July 9 and 11. McCord, a laborer who was employed by Wick's asphalt paving firm, said he received the checks from Wick as wages and presumed they were good.

McCord was arrested by Arlington Heights police Saturday, after the businessmen received the checks back from banks, and released Sunday when Wick apparently made good on the checks. One of the merchants demanded restitution in cash, the second took a check.

You guessed it. The check bounced.

CHECK FRAUD charges are pending against both men and their trial was continued Wednesday to August 27.

Schaefer's trial on a charge of passing a fraudulent check for $20 at a local tavern July 30 has also been continued. He was arrested by Des Plaines police Saturday.

Police are seeking a man who forged a check for $30 and cashed it at Webber Paint co. Friday and another man who passed bad checks for sizeable amounts at two supermarkets recently.

Planners Propose Sweeping Remodeling of Downtown

Moving of the railway station away from the center of Arlington Heights is a feature of two alternate plans for downtown redevelopment proposed to the village board Tuesday.

THE STATION would be moved to a new site opposite Belmont ave., three blocks southeast of its present location. In making the suggestion, representatives of the planning firm of Evert Kincaid and Associates also called for construction of large commuter parking facilities.

Another proposal of both plans, termed X and Y, is construction of an underpass at the railway crossing at State rd. and Northwest hwy.

Planners John Lunsman and M. Eugene Baughman said that one of the plans is designed to allow pedestrian traffic to flow quickly and easily through both north and south side business areas while the other plan would allow greater circulation of autos on downtown streets.

THE PEDESTRIAN plan, plan Y, proposes that Campbell st. be converted into a grassy mall between Vail and Evergreen sts. and that Dunton st. from Railroad park to Sigwalt also be turned into a pedestrian mall.

The pedestrian plan calls for similar malls in the north side business district and for construction of shopper parking lots around the edges of both north and south malls.

Plan X differs from plan Y mainly in its lack of malls.

The Kincaid proposals for replacing streets with green malls, a la Old Orchard shopping center, is not new to Arlington Heights. The first master plan drawn for the village in 1952 also suggested conversion of Campbell st. to a mall. Opposition to the idea was a principal reason for the failure of the village to adopt the master plan, drafted by Stanton and Rockwell.

In reviewing progress on the current master plan, which has been in the works for more than a year, the Kincaid representatives told the village board and plan commissions the time has come "to start actual planning."

THE INITIAL fact-gathering phase of the study is completed and now the village must determine "where it wants the new village hall, the new stores and the like," declared Baughman.

Major questions on which the village must make policies in the near future are, according to Baughman:

How the thoroughfare plan will be related to the downtown business district;

Which major highway and traffic relief facilities should be adopted;

Relocation of railway depot and future of Railway park.

Police Pronounce Radar as a Success

Arlington Heights police department is ready to pronounce its new radar a success.

The device has been in use less than two weeks and already its detection ability is becoming widely respected.

POLICE CHIEF L. W. Calderwood said 30 speeders were spotted by radar during the first week the new device was in use. However, he was reluctant to base the success of the machine on the number of speeders it spots.

"When people know we have the radar detection device and are using it in all parts of the village they will be more careful," the chief explained.

"The first few weeks of operation have been devoted to acquainting the people of Arlington Heights with the set and how it works. Some have seen arrests made. Others have been caught by the radar's eye.

"It's not our intention to make wholesale arrests. We will not strive for that," the chief emphasized.

"We're simply trying to protect the residents of our village," he added.

IN THE PAST the police department has been deluged with calls that speeders were running rampant in particular sections of town.

These complaints have been checked, Calderwood explained. Oftentimes the speeders were caught.

"Now that we have the radar, we can set up shop in any part of the village and, over a given period of time, gain control of the traffic," Calderwood explained.

In addition, the radar will afford the police to check the veracity of complaints.

The new radar, which cost approximately $1,500 and replaces the old electric timing devices, has been used on Campbell, Sigwalt, Euclid, Kensington, Dryden, State rd., and Northwest highway.

AT PRESENT the radar is mounted on an old model Plymouth coupe which is parked at the side of the road in the section being policed. Eventually, the radar will be mounted in many different ways.

The radar works with split-second precision.

If you're speeding, and get "on camera" for 10 seconds, the police will appear from somewhere to ticket your performance.

Investigate Loss Of Cash from Safe

Arlington Heights police Wednesday were investigating a report that $213 in cash was missing from the safe of Hornsby's variety store in Westgate shopping center.

The store manager reported the disappearance of the money, which was to be paid to employees, about 6:45 p.m. Tuesday. Police said there was no visible sign that the safe had been forced.

Pilgrim Tax

Prior to the development of the oil industry in Saudi Arabia, the principal source of revenue in that country was a tax on pilgrims traveling to Mecca and Medina.

80-Acre Center Is Projected

Carson Pirie Scott and company, one of the midwest's leading department stores, announced this week it wants to build a department store in Mount Prospect.

If Mount Prospect village officials agree to plans outlined for them this week, a shopping center "as large as any in the Chicago area" would be built on an 80-acre tract on the east side of Elmhurst rd. (Route 83), between Foundry rd. and Euclid ave.

THE DEPARTMENT store wants the land to be annexed and rezoned commercial so that it may obtain such village services as sewers, water and fire and police protection.

A petition for rezoning and annexation will be filed with the village board next Tuesday and a hearing date set, probably late in September.

A preliminary announcement presented informally to trustees early this week came as a surprise. Only two weeks ago plans were disclosed for development of a second major shopping center on 60 acres at Rand and Central rds., less than one mile to the southeast.

CARSON PIRIE Scott officials last month executed a purchase document with Mrs. Martha Burmeister. The agreement is understood to be contingent upon village approval of the project.

No name for the giant center or the cost of development was made public but a store representative may fill out sketchy details at the Tuesday board meeting.

The Burmeister farm property has nearly one-half mile of frontage on Elmhurst rd. and about one-eighth mile of frontage on both Euclid ave. and Foundry (Kensington) rd. George L. Busse co. of Mount Prospect represented the seller and S. C. Wessell of Des Plaines was a cooperating broker.

A survey conducted for Carson's indicated the site offers excellent prospects for development of a shopping center because it fronts on four arterial highways, Rand, Elmhurst, Foundry and Euclid.

FURTHER engineering studies are being completed as soon as possible with a view to a start in construction in the near future, store officials revealed.

No tenants were announced but a second major department store is also reportedly interested in moving into the center.

The store would be the fifth suburban store for the Loop-based firm. Its other stores are in Evergreen Park, Hammond, Ind., Edens Plaza, and Hillside.

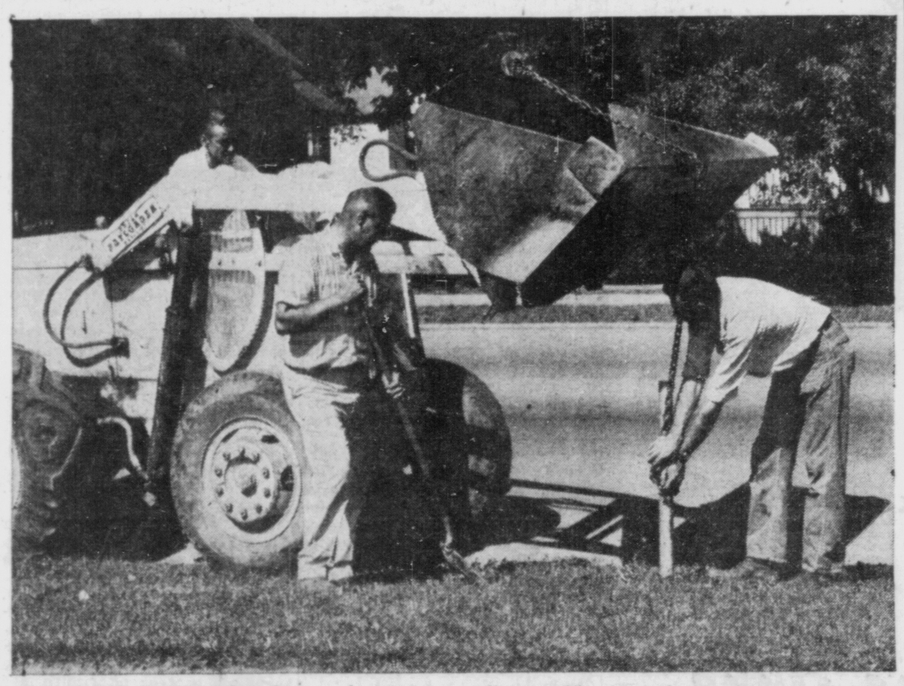

Tentative plans for the shopping area announced several weeks ago for Rand and Central rds. call for two major department stores, two supermarkets and other retail and service shops.

Golden Gate Towers

Educator Predicts 50,000 Population

A comprehensive study of the eventual pupil load that will face school district 25 in Arlington Heights has been prepared by a noted Northwestern university authority.

The report has been in the making since last January when the district's board of education contracted with Dr. Jack Childress to prepare the study.

DR. CHILDRESS, who is assistant dean of the school of education at Northwestern, has prepared similar studies for many other communities. He also prepared a similar study for the Arlington high school district.

Dr. Childress' findings were released this week by Supt. Ralph Clabaugh who, with the board of education, must look into the future and provide sufficient school facilities for the rapidly expanding area.

Dr. Childress' report is called a "saturation study" and it determines the eventual pupil load in the school district.

THE FACTS are arrived at by determining the total number of lots in the district and then presuming that single family dwellings will be built on each lot.

Dr. Childress has determined that when each lot is full there could be a population of 45,003 in the district.

However, the presumption that only single family dwellings will be, is conservative. It's possible several multiple unit could send the potential population closer to the 50,000 mark.

Just when this potential will be reached is not contained in the preliminary report submitted by Dr. Childress. He now is preparing an interpretation of the basic figures and will submit his findings to the school district in a week.

DISTRICT 25 COVERS most of Arlington Heights and has six elementary and two junior high schools completed. The sixth grade school is Windsor which will open for the first time this fall.

The Childress report is broken down into six studies, based on the present location of each elementary school.

The potential population of the Westgate school area, according to the report, is 6,886. At present there are 574 family units in the area; there are 408 vacant platted lots, and 830 potential lots in land that hasn't been platted.

The Park school area has a potential population of 10,936. The area has 1,368 family units at present, 828 platted lots and 682 potential lots.

The Dryden school area has a possible population of 4,932. There are 720 family units, 453 vacant lots and 125 potential lots.

The Ridge school section has a potential population of 3,899. There are 734 family units, 290 platted lots and two potential lots.

The North school area has a potential population of 9,937. There are 1,421 family units, 449 platted lots and 745 possible lots.

The Windsor-Miner school section has a potential population of 8,413 with 1,027 family units, 452 vacant lots and 735 possible lots.

THE CHILDRESS report explains that the potential population was arrived at by using a 3.8 multiplier. Thus, each family dwelling would house 3.8 people.

Presumably, next week's report will describe the makeup of the typical family, the number of children and their particular school age.

It has been an accepted fact at Supt. Clabaugh's office that the population load is at the kindergarten and first grade level. That fact presumably will be supported by Dr. Childress' findings.

If 45,003 is the eventual population of the school district, that would be below the village's eventual population. Certain sections of the village — like Virginia Terrace and Hasbrook and the potential lots in those areas — are not a part of school district 25.

Okays Purchase Of School Sites

High school district 214 won approval to purchase two tracts of land, totaling 106 acres, as future high school sites in the special election Saturday.

Better than 60 per cent of those voting supported the purchase when the final tabulations were completed Monday, but less than four per cent of the registered voters bothered to turn out. The official count: 739 for; 450 against.

Voting in the towns showed:

Wheeling, 53 for, 61 against; Arlington Heights, 273 for, 252 against; Prospect Heights, 36 for, 18 against; Mt. Prospect, 89 for, 55 against; Rolling Meadows, 217 for, 50 against; and Elk Grove Village, 71 for, 14 against.

FINAL COUNT figures showed the proposal winning in all school district towns except Wheeling, where eight negative votes prevailed.

A total of 1,200 votes were cast (11 were spoiled) in the district-wide election. As of March 1, 1958, registered voters in the high school district numbered over 30,000.

KENNETH E. Dougan, school board president, said Monday:

"We are gratified the issue passed, but we are disappointed in the total size of the turnout.

"The results did not reflect any great opposition, but a great amount of apathy."

The election allowed the district to float a bond issue of $359,000, bids for which will be opened Sept. 3.

Office Building Opened

Rolland A. Franzen, former vice president of Arlington Heights National bank, has opened law offices in a new building at State and Sigwalt.

The building, erected by Franzen, also houses offices for the Inland Marine Sales co. and a general insurance agency operated by Willard Pate & Son.

FRANZEN'S building is 21 by 74 feet and adjoins a house that fronts on State rd. Later the house will be torn down and the office building enlarged, Franzen said.

Franzen recently resigned his post with the bank to start his new law office.

The Editor's Column

By STUART R. PADDOCK

According to this week's Way Back When, Arlington Heights railroad parks came into being 67 years ago when the railroad company installed a double track and Suburbia prepared for an influx of visitors to attend the World Columbian Exposition. William Dunton may have donated the ground for the right-of-way, but it was public-spirited men who constructed the parks, including a windmill and well to supply water for sprinkling.

We wonder if public spirit, sans dollars and cents, is as much in evidence today as it was in the 1890's.

We also note in the WBW that 40 years ago our legislator, Albert F. Volz, 6 E. Hawthorne, Arlington Heights pressured the state legislature into exempting Cook county from the law that placed the collection of taxes in the hands of the county treasurers of the state.

He saved the jobs of our township tax collectors which today are turning over thousands of dollars of surplus collection commissions to the township for local use. This enabled Wheeling township to recently purchase its own office building.

We could call attention to several more interesting items in this week's WBW, such as the birth of the first white child in Palatine township 120 years ago.

The late editor, H. C. Paddock, warned his readers that liquor, tobacco and cigarettes were injurious to health of men. He probably thought that women would never need such admonitions.

Herbert Hoover and this editor celebrated their joint birthdays last Sunday. As we blew out the 77 candles on our cake we gave the wish to live as long as the ex-president.

We doubt if Herbert had as large a birthday party. Our 70 employees assisted us in celebrating. The cake was just big enough to go around.

Individual communities have a goal for overall planning. They confer and outwardly play ball with each other.

Not so, Shopping Center developers. The latest is a new Eden Plaza on the Burmeister farm, on Rte. 83, between Euclid ave. and Foundry road. Rumors have it that Sears and Goldblatts are to locate at Center and Rand road.

Is there not a limit to the number of shopping centers that can exist—even with their free parking?

We can understand why Mt. Prospect, with an eye on the golden bonanza that would result from sales tax, will gladly annex the 80 acres as has been requested by Carson, Pirie Scott & Co.

Occasionally a newspaper has a duty to speak up on a strong controversial subject. We are doing just that on this week's editorial page—sidewalks.

The average householder is taxed about $25 a month for our schools and can ill afford the immediate payment of the cost of a sidewalk, but it will do little good to quarrel with the municipal authorities.

Mt. Prospect is meeting the situation head on—500 homes at a time. The editorial charges that Arlington Heights is sidestepping the issue.

One believes in getting a disagreeable job done in a hurry, the other is only prolonging the agony.

The new official census of Mt. Prospect is nearly 16,000, almost twice the size of Palatine? No wonder they have more troubles than we-uns.

Arlington Heights with its 23,144 is out of either class as regards population and says its troubles per inhabitant is now insignificant.

BULLETIN—We have just read stories of two village board meetings. It is evident that both Palatine and Rolling Meadows have troubles that greatly overshadow sidewalk troubles in Mt. Prospect and Arlington.

Beat the Heat Movement Motivates Social Activities

The general beat the heat movement that took almost everyone outdoors over the sultry weekend motivated the local social activities, too. A major part of Arlington Heights entertaining was done outside with the vagrant evening breezes cooling the brow of many a feverish charcoal chef.

The Earl Pelland backyard at 45 S. Salem coolly accommodated 50 local, Des Plaines and Chicago guests Sunday for an afternoon and evening of outdoor fun and a barbecue supper. Although the couples get together regularly anyhow, Sunday's gathering with their families doubled nicely as a birthday celebration for Mrs. Pelland who observed her birthday Monday.

A COMBINED birthday party for Art Weidner, who will be 10 Friday, and his brother, Dale, who was 6 August 5, was held Sunday in the backyard at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Weidner, 1131 N. Dunton. Thirty-five local and Buffalo Grove relatives congratualted the young men who were honored at the barbecue supper.

Mr. and Mrs. Erhard Reiss, 618 S. Evergreen, followed the sensible outdoor trend and entertained with a backyard barbecue Sunday afternoon and evening for 10 Chicago friends.

E. St. John home, 1134 N. Chestnut, to congratulate the couple and give the state of wedded bliss a gentle razzing. An outdoor mock wedding ceremony was performed before an altar hung with a ball and chain and a tastefully decorated rolling pin, and the Boluses were presented with a memory book containing a copy of the impressive rites. Games filled out the hilarious evening that ended with coffee and cake on the patio.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Weidner, 1135 N. Dunton, also recently celebrated a wedding anniversary, their seventh, with Cumberland friends, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Bairstow. After pre-dinner cocktails at the Weidner home, the foursome had dinner at the Casablanca.

Mr. and Mrs. James Loudon entertained with cocktails and dinner for 14 at a garden party at their home, 746 S. Dunton, Saturday night.

SUE WIST celebrated her 12th birthday with a dinner and slumber party for five girl friends at the home of her parents, the Henry Wists, 837 S. Vail, Friday night. After a festive birthday dinner, Sue and her guests, Nancy Fortin, Toni Prasnikar, Nancy Pepio, Marguerite Dalton and Pat Sullivan, attended the water ballet, returning to the Wist home, presumably to sleep.

The slumber part of the slumber party began in the early Saturday morning hours to climax the longest birthday party of the week.

THE CURRENTLY popular musical, "Pajama Game" was presented recently on the Northwestern university campus by the Cherubs, a dramatic club made up of high school seniors from all parts of the country. For Miss Pam Warfield, a junior at Arlington Heights high school and daughter of the V. C. Warfields, 501 W. Euclid, the night climaxed strenuous rehearsals as piano accompanist for the troupe.

Six former neighbors of the Arthur Wartenberg family which recently moved from 1212 N. Dunton, were guests of Miss Hazel Wartenberg last Thursday afternoon at the family's new home in Mundelein. Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hansen and the boys are home again at 15 W. Orchard as of last Tuesday when they returned after two weeks at Colorado Springs, Colo. Saturday they welcomed former Arlington Heights residents, Mr. and Mrs. David Reid and Heather, now of Summit, N.J., who are spending this week at the Hansen home.

THE FRED MARKS household at 520 S. Mitchell, is complete again for the first time since mid-May when Mrs. Marks, Bonnie and Peggy left for England to visit Mrs. Marks' family. They came home last Wednesday about a week after Mr. Marks, who had spent his vacation in July with them, returning by air July 27.

Their long summer visit was full of firsts for Mrs. Marks and the girls, it being the first time Mrs. Marks had seen her father Alfred Swaddle, in 12 years, it was the first time grandpa had seen Bonnie, who is 9 years old, and Peggy, who is 7 and in July when her husband arrived to spend his vacation, Mrs. Marks made her first visit to Paris.

The Paris trip was almost a must since fellow members of the League of Women Voters had bon-voyaged Mrs. Marks in May at a luncheon, and had presented her with a Paris hatbox to fill and the wherewithal to fill it. "Mission accomplished," reports Mrs. Marks who promises an early chapeau show for her friends.

Bonnie and Peggy were delighted with meeting and falling in love with their Grampa Swaddle and intrigued with the sights of London where he makes his home. Their uncles and aunts live in the country near Bedford and Northhampton and the girls had the unique experience of attending an English school with their cousins. The visit was a long time in coming, but everyone concerned on both sides of the ocean agrees it was well worth waiting for.

Traffic Council Issues Plea for Better Planning

A call for careful planning in future traffic improvements has been issued by the Arlington Heights Area Traffic Safety Council.

E. R. Klamm, president of the group, urged that a detailed study be made by the village engineer before any new program is planned.

"IT IS URGED that at every opportunity, responsible village authorities and the private interests confer on proposed traffic improvements to insure that additional hazards will not be created by such improvements." Klamm said.

"We now have a village engineer and he should be called upon to survey proposed projects and make his recommendations. This procedure will assure that the project will receive professional consideration and safeguard any hazards being created by the completion of the project."

Klamm's statement was contained in a letter to R. C. Bishop, of the Arlington Heights board of local improvements, and resulted from the street widening program now under way in the village.

KLAMM WAS one of those who warned that the street widening would create a safety hazard in front of the Arlington theatre on Evergreen street. There the sidewalk will be reduced from 12 to eight feet.

Klamm's letter to Bishop also pointed out that widening of Evergreen will force patrons of Loretta's cafe at Evergreen and the highway, to "practically step out into the street as they leave the cafe."

Klamm advised Bishop that his group was vitally interested in encouraging and assisting traffic improvements that contribute to the public safety and welfare of the entire community.

But, he added, exhaustive studies of each project should be made before they are approved. (AF

Prune 500 Trees In Crash Program

More than 500 trees were pruned and 39 diseased trees removed during the first 10 days of the village's crash program to prevent the spread of Dutch elm disease in Arlington Heights.

This report came Wednesday from Nels S. Johnson, a tree expert whose Evanston firm is doing the work for the village on a contract basis.

Johnson said his crew, which has numbered as many as 15 men, began operations July 31, shortly after reporting of numerous cases in the village. In the 10 days from July 31 through August 9, the trimming crews pruned 520 trees, removed 27 trees with Dutch elm disease and 12 trees with other diseases and removed a tree at 303 N. Vail which was felled by wind Friday morning, narrowly missing a house.

THE TREEMEN have concentrated on parkway trees in Scarsdale and other subdivisions in the heavily-wooded southeast corner of the village but expect to move on to other neighborhoods soon, Johnson added.

This year there have been 33 confirmed cases of Dutch elm disease in trees on public property and additional cases of the tree-killing blight on privately-owned trees, though how many is unknown.

J. Ward Wright, acting village manager, said he will outline a plan next week for having trees on private property trimmed by Johnson's crew while they are in an area to trim parkway trees. Home owners would pay for the work but at a lower rate. A similar plan is now in use in Glencoe.

States Attorney Files Building, Zoning Charges

State's Attorney Adamowski has charged owners of six parcels of property in northwest suburbia with building and zoning code violations.

The cases—including three in Maine township and one each in Wheeling, Palatine, and Hanover townships—are among 17 complaints filed in two consecutive days in County court by Adamowski. The crackdown was unleashed without fanfare.

IN ALMOST all of the new cases, the defendants are charged with changing the face of their land without permits.

The Maine township complaints involve moving buildings, constructing a well, and erecting a billboard without permits. In Palatine township, a structure has been moved without a county permit, Adamowski charged. In Hanover township, a sign was put up without one, he said. In Wheeling township a house trailer was moved in without a permit, another complaint charged.

Defendants named by Adamowski, the charges, and court dates for cases by township:

MAINE TOWNSHIP

1. Joe DeChambre, moved two buildings in March to lots on south side of Golf rd., west of Western ave., without permits from the county building and zoning bureau. Court date, September 10.

2. Henry J. Garcia, in January constructed a well at 6912 Chestnut street without a county permit. Court date, September 9.

3. Citadel Building corporation, erected outdoor advertising sign at northwest corner Talcott road and Touhy ave. Court date, September 10.

WHEELING TOWNSHIP

Roland Heinz, since March has maintained a house trailer on south side of Dundee road, west of State road, without a permit. Also, he allegedly did the following without permits: erected 2 sheds measuring 10x16 feet, erected a garage addition. The complaint also accused Heinz of depositing litter and trash on the property. Court date, September 10.

HANOVER TOWNSHIP

Progressive Sign company, erected sign at southwest corner of Barrington and Golf roads without a permit. Court date, September 11.

PALATINE TOWNSHIP

Hans Loeber, in May moved a structure without a permit to within 280 feet southeast of gas station on lot at southwest corner of Algonquin road and Meacham. Court date, September 10. (B8

DesPlaines Seeks Control Of Weller Creek Territory

Des Plaines has filed a petition in County court to gain sole drainage jurisdiction over a north section of the city that's part of the Weller Creek Drainage District.

Judge Otto Kerner scheduled a hearing for September 3 on the petition that's part of a city campaign to convince the Metropolitan Sanitary District into taking over ownership and maintenance of Weller Creek in Des Plaines.

The first step is to disconnect that section of the city from the Weller Creek Drinage district and its 11 sub-districts, Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel explained Friday.

"AFTER THE disconnection is out of the way, then talks can begin in earnest about the Metropolitan Sanitary District taking over the creek and on what terms," Behrel said, adding: "We'd like to see the Metropolitan Sanitary District take control over all of Weller Ditch."

Behrel, who met Tuesday with metropolitan district engineers in September for further discusdent, to call a meeting sometime son, metropolitan district presiplans to ask William F. Patterfor exploratory talks, said he sion.

The area sought to be severed from the rural drainage district is bounded generally by Forest ave., the Chicago & North Western railroad main line. Mt. Prospect road, and Wolf road. It contains about 600 acres, including 140 acres devoted to industrial use. The balance is residential.

THE DISCONNECTION petition, filed by City Attorney James Dowd, asserted the proposed detachment is in the best interests of all concerned and listed two major arguments supporting this contention:

1. The function of the Weller Creek Drainage district is to serve farm lands and not subdivided lots.

2. All territory involved is subdivided or is capable of being subdivided and needs the drainage facilities usually furnished by a city or village.

The petition asks the court to turn over to Des Plaines all drains, levees, drainage structures and easements of the Weller district in the city.

Once the facilities are city property, Des Plaines shall be charged with keeping the property in repair, the petition said.

It added that at the present time both the Weller district and the city are exercising jurisdiction over the area. (B8

League of Women Voters Study U. S. Foreign Policy

The League of Women Voters of Arlington Heights, following its policy of rolling along despite the heat and humidity, will have workshops on U.S. foreign policy Thursday, Aug. 14 and Thursday, Aug. 21, at 8 p.m. The summer setting for this activity will be the porch of Mrs. John R. Hoppe, 500 N. Fairview, Mount Prospect.

Mrs. Paul Green of Prospect Heights, chairman of U.S. foreign policy, says that those attending will examine these two questions: How do the new developments in the world setting affect our chances for achieving this world we want? What changes in our policies are called for if we are to meet the new challenges with constructive measures?

MEMBERS ARE inviting guests and reading articles on the United Nations, foreign trade, economic development and collective security in preparation.

The league's summer activity included workshops in July on school finance and active participation in the Northwest Citizen Committee for Judicial Reform.

Mrs. Leonard Castle, Arlington Heights, and Mrs. H. Robert Powell, Prospect Heights, discussion leaders of the workshops that were held on school finance, say that the findings of the workshops will form constructive background material for the league's school finance program in the coming year. Children Need Eye Exams Before Fall

Summer's barefoot boy will have a new pair of shoes for the first day of school, but will his eyes have been checked by a competent authority to be certain that Johnny sees as well as possible? Frank F. Fowle, President of the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness, suggests that summer vacation is a good time to make such an appointment for your child.

Good vision is not only one of our greatest sources of pleasure; it is our greatest avenue for education. Schools now have departments of Visual Education which supply the classroom teacher with films on every subject., Television is increasingly being used as an educational medium. These developments are based on the fact that about 85 per cent of our learning comes through the eyes. It follows naturally, therefore, that in getting their children ready for school, parents are well advised to seek professional opinion on each child's ability to see.

ONLY A COMPETENT eye doctor can give a complete eye examination. A visit to his office can be a most interesting experience and one which the child might share with his classmates when he goes back to school. Then other children will find out that an eye doctor's office is fun, and that the reason we go to the doctor is to keep healthy.

If you had such an examination for your child several years ago, and were told that, at that time, there was no visual problem; bear in mind that the child has grown since then and that growth often brings changes in the eyes. Therefore, authorities in the field of eye care recommend that children have an eye examination every year unless advised otherwise.

You may be told that there is now a need for glasses not previously required. In that case, help your child to learn to take care of his glasses and to get used to wearing them, so that his eyes can function with maximum efficiency. Whatever corrective measures your doctor orders may make all the difference in the world to your child—the difference between success and failure in school.

"The more serious eye conditions have a better chance of cure or correction when discovered early. Delay in seeking appropriate professional care may result in permanent visual handicap," Mr. Fowle stated. No responsible parent wants to take such a risk, but many parents do not realize the risk is there until too late. Since the child does not know how well others see and, therefore, has no basis for comparison, he cannot tell you that he does not see as well as others. You can see that he is taller. The scales show that he is heavier. But you need professional help to detect a change in his vision.

IT IS FOR THIS reason that the majority of schools conduct visual screening programs. By invitation, the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness offers consultation to the schools in planning these programs and teaches the screening techniques. These programs reveal that one out of every four school children has a visual problem. Usually half of this number are wearing glasses. The screening discovers the other half. Screening techniques are, quite properly, limited to the new simple measures to determine whether a child's visual abilities meet certain minimum requirements. They in no way replace a complete examination by a competent doctor.

Happy is the family of the child whose doctor reports "no visual problem." It is good to have this assurance annually as the child grows, but even if, at some point, glasses are indicated, the parents have the satisfaction of knowing that their child has been given every advantage — that he is continuing to enjoy the best possible vision. Their Johnny has had his "fun trip" to the eye doctor, and so, in this important respect, he is ready for school.

To help parents become acquainted with the professional resources in their communities, the following definitions are given:

EYE SPECIALISTS

1. Opthalmologist — an eye doctor, occasionally referred to as an oculist. Usually confines practice to medical and surgical treatment of eye conditions, vision testing, eye muscle exercises and prescription for glasses. Some eye doctors also specialize in ear, nose and throat.

2. Optometrist—a non-medical graduate of a college of optometry, licensed to test vision, prescribe and fit flasses and treat optical and eye muscle defects without drugs or surgery.

3. Optician—a skilled technician, grinds lenses to prescription, fits eye glasses; does not test vision unless he is also an optometrist.

Here's a Strong Supporter For Driver's Point System

by JACK SIPE

I may be encouraging the cutting of my own throat, but this is one strong vote in favor of the point system on driver's licenses.

After a trip through Iowa to my home state of South Dakota I detected a decided change on the Iowa highways. Few cars zipped around me. I saw no accidents. There was a courtesy at corners that had been missing for years.

I'VE MADE THAT trip dozens of times. Each year the hazards of driving grew. We actually dreaded the trip home.

It wasn't until we reached my wife's home in southern Iowa that I learned what had happened.

Iowa has found, at last, an effective weapon against careless drivers.

A new state highway commissioner took office a couple years ago with an idea in mind. He wanted to rid the highways of bloodshed.

And, luckily, the powers at the state capitol felt the same way. He wasn't hampered by the roadblocks that so many young visionaries encounter.

I ASKED MY father-in-law, who has retired from duty as a detective and policeman, just what happened.

"It's the point system. Everyone is scared," he said.

How does it work?

If you're caught speeding at a certain rate, you get a point or two charged against you. If you're traveling at a terrific rate of speed and are caught, the points increase.

If you're in an accident and are to blame, points are scored against you.

If you violate traffic laws, such as going through red lights or passing the yellow line when its on your side of the road, you add points.

EACH DAY the state highway patrolmen report their "points" to the state highway safety commission office in Des Moines, the state capitol.

When a driver has amassed 10 — yes, only 10 — points, his driver's license is suspended. The suspension period isn't long but it does leave an indelible black mark on the driver's record.

If he should roll up a second 10 points, the license is more difficult to get back.

There's other ways you can obtain points, too. Just get caught driving your car while intoxicated and you've got enough points to lose your right to drive for a long, long time. In fact, that causes your license to be revoked, not just suspended.

OK, you say. Illinois has the same thing. So it has, but Iowa has the results. We don't.

Give us time?

WELL, I'LL WAIT and see. So many of our programs get lost in the limbo of state politics.

In Iowa, they have a safeguard for that very flaw.

The Des Moines Register, which circulates in all parts of the state, carries a daily listing of all driver's license suspensions and revocations.

Yes, the program out there has brought results that are tangible.

A statewide count of deaths on the highway up to Aug. 4 this year is 309. Last year, on Aug. 4, 375 had been killed.

Thus, sixty six lives have been saved.

No one will argue over what's causing the wave of traffic safety. It's the point system, they readily and unanimously agree.

And, man, do they enforce the law. This new state highway chief has a roving crew of patrolmen who spring up from nowhere and set up shop. Inside of 24 hours, they've nabbed dozens of speeders and relayed a bag full of points to state headquarters.

THEN THEY MOVE on to another area of the state.

As I say, we've been driving across Iowa for years but as we were leaving for home the other morning my father-in-law passed along the first piece of motoring advice he's ever uttered:

"Be darned careful of our Iowa highway cops. They're tough!"

Wilson Community News

Wilson school will begin the school year with two first grade and two second grade classes, and one each of grades three through eight. In order to provide classroom space for the second grade it was necessary to convert the room which has been used for a faculty and board room. It is felt that no additional alterations will be necessary in order to begin the coming school year.

There is, however, a steady flow of new registrants coming from the Lynnwood and Hasbrook developments. If it should become necessary to have more than one section of other classes during the year, the board has planned for emergency measures. The first step in this emergency plan would convert the present central library to a classroom. While the kindergarten sponsored by the Wilson Community Kindergarten association has been promised that they may begin the school year in Wilson school, there is no certainty that this space will be available throughout the year. If a second emergency classroom is needed, it will be necessary to ask for this kindergarten space.

In order to provide a full academic and activity program, it is the board's desire to maintain the use of the multipurpose room for its primary function as long as possible. However, plans have been approved for the conversion of this room into four classrooms if necessary.

In order to plan realistically, school authorities urge parents of children who have not yet attended Wilson school to register their children as soon as possible. Teachers will be on hand during the last week in August for a preschool workshop. Thursday, Aug. 28 has been set aside as a registration day for children who have not yet registered at Wilson school, and as a day for all students to pay fees. Handbooks, in preparation, will be in the mail within the next few days.

The board has approved major changes in the upper grade curriculum in order to prepare for a sixth, seventh and eighth grade Junior High school program. Fundamental information concerning this program is contained in a news story in another section of this paper.

Express Agency To Seek Merger

The Railway Express Agency has asked authority to consolidate its operation at Arlington Heights and Palatine by serving both municipalities from the Arlington Heights terminal.

Authority was sought Tuesday by Railway Express Attorney William R. Galliani at a hearing before the Illinois Commerce Commission in Chicago.

The express agency would save $96.34 monthly, or $1,156.08 annually, by discontinuing the Palatine terminal, Galliani told ICC Examiner Edward Whelan.

"Pick up and delivery service would remain the same. We just want to change the method of service," Galliani said.

HE TESTIFIED that deliveries would be dispatched daily by truck to Palatine from Arlington Heights, a distance of four miles.

An exhibit submitted by Galliani showed that monthly shipments to Palatine averaged 536, and to Arlington Heights, 1,559. These figures are based on 1956 records of the firm.

Whelan asked the company to submit similar figures based on the first six months of 1958 and set another hearing for September 8. He termed the two year old shipment figures "too remote."

Neither municipality opposed the consolidation petition at Tuesday's hearing.

Fined $100 In Driving Permit Case

A 19-year-old Arlington Heights youth was fined $100 and costs by Magistrate William F. Neumann Wednesday after he admitted driving an auto after his driver's license was revoked.

Leroy Engelking, 226 S. Vail, told the court his license was revoked in December upon a conviction of driving under the influence of alcohol. He was arrested by village police last week. Assistant State's Attorney Eldred Benz recommended reduction of the charge to driving without a license and Judge Neumann fined him after the plea of guilty to that charge.

ALSO FINED were two soldiers at the Central rd. Nike site, Daniel McHugh and Horace Shelton, who were found guilty of having open beer cans in an auto. They were each assessed $25 fine and $7 costs.

Judge Neumann found Virgil Self, a clerk at Mary Kay's tavern and grocery, River and Rand rds., Des Plaines, guilty of selling beer to a 19-year-old Mount Prospect youth and fined him $25.

Self's attorney, Sah Papanek, said the case will be appealed because the boy deceived Self with false identification papers.

To Make Residents Responsible for Elm Removal

Libertyville will soon have a legal mechanism to fight the spread of deadly Dutch Elm Disease.

The village board has instructed its village attorney to prepare an ordinance which would make property owners responsible for removing diseased trees on their land.

Under the ordinance, a diseased elm on private property would be declared a public nuisance, and the property owner would be given a certain amount of time to have it removed at his own expense. If the tree remained standing, the village would perform the removal and bill the property owner for the work.

Nobody gives you something for nothing, you only get what you pay for. Drama of Life, Death Is Summer Stage Offering

"Where are we going?" This question, as posed by Lingley, the officious businessmen, states one of the problems faced by shipmates in Sutton Vane's "Outward Bound," a drama of death and the life afterward.

THE ARLINGTON high school Little Theatre curtain goes up on the Summer Stage production of this psychological drama tonight, Thursday, August 14, and Friday, August 15, at 8:30 p.m.

Lingley, (of Lingley, Ltd.) will be portrayed by Tom Farrand, Arlington Heights, a student at Ripon college, Ripon, Wisconsin.

When none of the passengers can clearly remember their destination, Tom Prior, (John Nimmer, Wheeling, a student at Northern Illinois State college, DeKalb,) begins to wonder and soon discovers the reason by looking over the ship and all its contents. He finds out that everyone on the boat is dead.

THE KINDLY STEWARD on this "ship to nowhere" is Scrubby, characterized by Mike Woodworth of Mt. Prospect, a student at Arlington high school.

As Henry and Ann, the lovers who committed suicide, Laird Williamson, Palatine, a junior at Northwestern university and Ellen Wolf, Arlington Heights, Arlington high school, helplessly watch the rest of the passengers find out their secret.

Others in the cast include Marjorie MacCarron of Mt. Prospect, Northwestern university, plays Mrs. Cliveden-Banks, a society matron; Rosemary Barry, Arlington Heights, Arlington high school, takes the role of Mrs. Midget, a charwomen; Jeff Layson, Arlington Heights, Arlington high school, Rev. Wm. Duke, a minister whose character changes greatly after discovering that he is dead, and Scott Adam, Prospect Heights, Lawrence college, Appleton, Wisconsin, Rev. Frank Thompson, the much dreaded examiner.

DIRECTING THE production is Donald Baylor, of Norwood Park, who also worked with the Arlington Heights Village Theatre and the Des Plaines Theatre Guild. Assistant director is Sharon Sellers, Arlington Heights Illinois Wesleyan university; technical director is Frank Embrey, Arlington Heights, Lincoln college, and the stage manager is Patt McGill, Wheeling, a student at Lake Forest college.

Tickets are available for either performance at the door of the Little Theatre. (ACM

OUTBREAK OF FISTICUFFS features one scene of the three act drama. Tom Farrand attempts to restrain John Nimmer as Jeff Layson closes in for the knockout punch.

TENDER SCENE from Summer Stage production of "Outward Bound" has Laird Williamson and Ellen Wolf exchanging words of love while Michael Woodworth chaperones.

FROM RIDGE PARK

The E. G. Dunns, 930 N. Kennicott, are back from a vacation trip to the upper peninsula of Michigan. They spent 10 days camping on the shores of Lake Michigamme, where they sailed the dinghy Mr. Dunn built last winter. Swimming was perfect and Janice spent most of her time in the water. Fishing was equally as good; in fact, they ate wall-eyed pike every morning for breakfast.

Parents of a son are Mel and Bill Thrasher, 919 N. Kennicott. William Brain was born July 27 in St. Francis hospital, Evanston. Waiting for him when he returned home were his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Jeannette Tortorici, and brothers and sisters, Larry, Barry, Dennis, Nadine and Mary.

SATURDAY NIGHT there was a barbecue in the backyard of the Vincent Ciminos home, 931 N. Kennicott, honoring Rosemary's friend, Carol Bruce, who was just 15. Carol's mother was also present.

Monday Lynn Gray, daughter of the Marshall Grays, 1011 N. Princeton, celebrated her fifth birthday with a party to which Debbie Warejcka, Susie Auburn and Bronwyn Van Duzer were invited to enjoy refreshments and games. The real thrill of her birthday, however, was a 2-wheeler she had been wanting for a long time. Her sister, Marsha, arrived home just in time for the party. She had spent a week in Libertyville with her friend, Dana Riddel.

The Frank Psotas spent a week at Woods lake near Crivitz, Wis. There was good fishing and swimming, plus plenty of opportunity to relax and have fun.

MRS. KENNETH HUGG and her children flew to Miller Place, L. Is., N.Y., for a 5-week visit with her parents, the Louis Foxes. Mr. Hugg joined them later for his vacation. Being on the Sound and so close to the water, they all took advantage of the swimming facilities almost every day they were there. Miller Place is like home to Mrs. Hugg-she has been going there every summer since she was a little girl. This summer friends she had met and played with there brought their children and the two sets of children had the opportunity of becoming acquainted.

Diane and Ray Bakowski are visiting their aunt and uncle, the Ed Bakowskis, this week. Among plans for the week are a trip to Wisconsin and a boat trip on Lake Michigan.

When the Henry C. Rosenblatts, 1007 N. Salem, packed their camping equipment for a trip to the Ozarks they didn't know they would be forced home because of serious floods in that area. Camping near a normally 2½-foot deep river, they were awakened early one morning by the forest ranger who warned them to leave immediately as the water had risen to 11 feet. They drove on to Alley Springs State park, only to find more floods, so they decided to head for home and dry land. After a couple of days here, they left again, this time to Apple River canyon, where they camped for a week with no mishaps.

THE THOMAS ADAMS took their daughter, Pat, to see "Search for Paradise" recently. It was Pat's first experience with Cinerama and she thoroughly enjoyed it.

Barbara Battaglia, daughter of the B. F. Battaglias, 904 N. Kaspar, just returned from Detroit with her parents. She was flower girl at the wedding of her cousin, Terry Moore. It was baby Jimmy's first long trip and his mother says he was perfect. Mr. Battaglia's brother and his family, the F. William Battaglias, of Meadville, Pa., returned to Arlington Heights with them and are spending a few days here before they return home.

Mrs. Gerald Chapman, 903 N. Kaspar, had a farewell coffee Friday morning for Mrs. Frank Neill.

The children in the 700 block of Kennicott are licking the midsummer boredom by having a circus in the vacant lot next to the Furniture mart. Dorothy Bakowski, Linda Wiegel and Cathy Gordon twirled batons, while Dorothy's brother, Butch, acted as master of ceremonies. Frankie Nastal dressed up as a gorilla, complete with cage that the children had made themselves. Bert Christiansen was cashier for the drinks, candy and games. It was such a whopping success, they plan to have a repeat performance this weekend.

SATURDAY THE William H. Grohs, 912 N. Chicago, went to the wedding of her cousin, Marilyn Lund, at St. Timothy Lutheran church, Chicago.

Last week the H. A. Braunsreuters and the Robert Haddens took Tommy Stevens with them for a short trip to Holland, Mich. They stayed at a cottage on Lake Michigan, where they swam and did some sightseeing.

Things were buzzing at the home of the Raymond E. Howes, 945 N. Kaspar, last Thursday night. Chris had a slumber party to which she invited Sue Munson, Barb Corkell, Elaine L'Hommedieu and Judy Siedlik of Chicago. When the girls tired of dancing and playing records, they popped corn and had refreshments. Like all slumber parties, they didn't do much slumbering and after breakfast the next morning they all went home to sleep.

Helen Bulinski managed fine last week when she took her children to Bigfoot State park on a camping trip. She and Larry got the tent up without any help from the other campers. Lake Geneva was handy for swimming and the children made good use of it.

KEN GLEASON, son of the Les Gleasons, celebrated his fifth birthday last Thursday with a luncheon at his house for Brooks Bauske and Charles Paxson. Highlight of the day was a trip to Kiddyville, where they enjoyed the different rides.

This columnist is back from a 2-week vacation to St. Clair Shores, Mich., where she and her children visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Allen. She returned her nephew, Bruce Allen, to his parents after he had spent 3 weeks here; however the whole family misses him now that they are back home.

Polly Griffin and her three children of Rockford visited Dolly Durgom and family for a few days last week. A big treat for the Griffin children was a visit to Brookfield zoo and several of the museums in Chicago.

FROM SHERWOOD

The Frank Neills, 1115 N. Patton, are moving to Palo Alto, Cal. this Thursday. Their friends and neighbors in Sherwood and Ridge Park will miss them.

The Robert R. Blackburns, 1004 Watling, are enjoying a visit from their daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Rachner, Bob, Bill and Joe. The Rachners are also visiting his parents in Elgin while here.

Mrs. Jack Burgess, 1218 W. Clarendon, recently visited the C. W. Mills at the home of Mrs. Mills' parents in Somerset, Pa. The Mills lived here before they moved to Pennsylvania.

THE JOHN O. Millers, 1221 Clarendon, fell in love with Egg Harbor in the Green Bay peninsula during their stay with friends there recently. Besides an ideal climate and beautiful scenery, there were two motor boats at their disposal all the time. According to Mrs. Miller, who could ask for anything more.

Janie Holloway, daughter of the W. W. Holloways, 1004 Oakton, leaves Friday for Barbourville, Ky., where she will visit in the home of Sam Melton. While there, she will also visit sorority sisters in Paris, Ky.

There was coffee for Mrs. Frank Neill Tuesday at the home of Mrs. George Thieman, 1112 N. Patton. Several immediate neighbors on Patton were invited. (A

County Approves Purchase of Farm

Purchase of Norman F. Vaughan's 193 acre dairy farm in Barrington township was approved Tuesday by the forest preserve district of Cook county.

The sale price was $175,000, or $904 per acre. The purchase brings the forest preserve district's holdings in Spring Creek valley to 875 acres with 625 acres yet to be acquired, said Rudolph L. Janega, its real estate agent.

The Vaughan farm is an irregularly shaped piece that lies south of Donlea road and west of Sutton road. The land is improved with 17 buildings, including barns and a large house which Vaughan and his wife, Eunice, may occupy until June 30, 1959, under terms of the sale agreement.

THE PROPERTY is partly wooded and partly brush-grown. Running through it is Spring creek, around which the new 1,500 acre Spring creek forest preserve in Barrington township is being acquired. The preserve will be a wildlife refuge.

The sales price includes value of the land and the improvements. Independent appraisers in an appraisal made June 12 valued the total property at $175,000, a price which Vaughan agreed to take.

Acceptance of his offer was recommended by Daniel Ryan, district president, who said the price "appears reasonable in view of current real estate values." The property also contains a swimming pool, Janega said. (AMP

Palabar Plans Large Horse Show on Aug. 24

Palabar Horse Association is planning to have the biggest horse show this year that they have ever had, August 24. Riders are expected to enter from many of the larger stables in and around the Chicago area.

The trophies are unusual because they are decorated with leather. Leather ribbons are the first to be used in horse shows in this area.

As shown on the posters in town this is the top show of the year and a large crowd of spectators will enjoy the excitement and tension of stiff competition mingled with the flavorsome smell of hot dogs on a warm August day.

THERE ARE classes for both English and Western riders including a jumping class. A new attraction this year, and certainly an interesting one, is the pony class. This won't fail to please the youngsters.

Businessmen from Palatine and neighboring towns have sponsored these classes and their help is greatly appreciated. Our hope is that they will attend the show and present the trophy and ribbons to the winners in the class they sponsored.

The show will be held at Fisher's Lazy F Ranch on Palatine Road in Barrington, August 24. For more information concerning the show consult the posters in town or call Flanders 8-4341. See you at the show?

Threatens Blockade If State Route Is Not Changed

A west side Des Plaines resident has threatened that her neighbors would throw a barricade across Wolf rd. between Oakton st. and Algonquin rd. unless state or city officials immediately re-route state highway 62 away from that two-block strip.

"And by immediately I mean within three weeks," said Mrs. Louis J. Kariolich, 1275 Wolf rd, spokesman for approximately 100 Wolf rd. residents living between Algonquin and Oakton and in the immediate area.

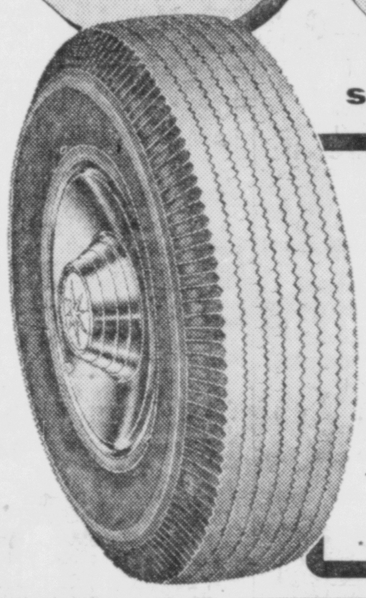

"We don't care if they put us in jail. We have baby sitters lined up and some of the men have agreed to take off from their jobs to help barricade the road if it becomes necessary," said Mrs. Kariolich.

The main reason residents want the state highway designation taken away from this two-block piece of Wolf rd. is to eliminate the heavy traffic a state highway brings, said Mrs. Kariolich.

DID YOU EVER SEE A LOST SOUL?

It is no cranky idea that people around about us may be as truly lost as was the Boy Scout in the Maine woods one summer. Some have habits which are breaking up homes and bringing jobs to an end. Some in the depths of despair tremble on the brink of suicide. Some are in such confusion about life that they have no sense of direction. How these lost people can be saved is our theme next Sunday.

The Sin of INDIFFERENCE

A noted leader recently remarked, "We are living in a world in which multitudes of people regard the Gospel neither as good news nor as bad news. To them it is NO news. They do not reject it; they merely ignore it."

That is the sin of our day—indifference. Indifference to the message that "God was in Christ reconciling the world unto Himself."

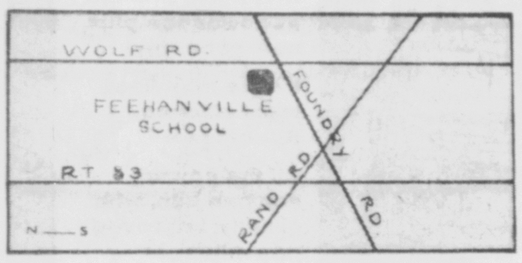

Many of the millions of Americans who have neglected membership in the Christian Church have never consciously rejected the Christian Gospel; they have simply decided to forget about it.

And yet Christ says, "He that is not with Me is against Me."

If you have been indifferent to the claims of Christ and the message of His Gospel, now is the time to give them a hearing.

We invite you to attend our services and Bible classes. Bring the children to our Sunday School. You and your family are always welcome.

A prominent Mohammedan leader, Ghulam Rabbani Khan, BA, LL.B, will be the guest speaker at the Countryside Universalist fellowship next Sunday morning, 10 o'colck. Sir Khan is advocate at the high court of Pakistan; an ex-member of the legislative council of his country; the distinguished gentleman visitor to the Indian army in the Middle East, Persia and Iraq; special judge of the Northwest Frontier Province of Pakistan; and the Iman or chief leader of the Shah Jahan Mosque, Woking, Surrey, England. The congress has brought together more than 800 delegates from all over the world, including Buddhists, Christians, Hindus, Jews and Mohammedans. Universalists and Unitarians of Chicagoland are hosts to the visitors.

Preceding the worship service next Sunday morning there will be a coffee and fellowship hour at 9:30, which will afford the public an opportunity to meet Sir Khan. Following his address there will be a discussion period. Sakip Altay of Roselle, a member of Countryside Fellowship and a Moslem by background will be in charge of the worship service.

New Teacher for Wilson School

Donald P. Redheffer, 1305 S. Crescent, Park Ridge, has been appointed to the faculty of Wilson school, and will teach mathematics and physical education, will direct remedial and accelerated mathematics activities, and will coach the intramural athletic program.

With the appointment of Mr. Redheffer, the junior high program, which was recently approved by the board of education, becomes a reality. This program permits greater concentration in academic and activity areas of curriculum than has previously been possible, and is made feasible by increasing the staff and by lengthening actual classtime from five hours to five hours and 55 minutes in grades six, seven and eight.

SUCH ACTIVITIES as beginning and advanced band, selective chorus, school newspaper, dramatics workshop, accelerated and remedial math, student government, and audio-visual club are scheduled in the new program.

In addition to the unified social studies program (geography-history-civics), a class which is strictly a geography class is a must for all students . . . sixth grade, world geography; seventh grade, United States geography; eighth grade, economic geography.

DONALD P. REDHEFFER

Mr. Parsons, principal, expects the junior high program to pay "academic dividends" to each student who is preparing to enter the area high schools. (ACM

Arlington Teen Attends Parley

Audrey Gronert, daughter of Mrs. William C. Gronert, 2012 E. Euclid, Arlington Heights, returned recently after spending a week at the 1958 Illinois State 4-H Junior leadership conference held at the 4-H Memorial camp, Robert Allerton Park, Monticello.

Miss Gronert was one of 10 members of the 1958 Continuation committee who were elected at the close of last year's conference.

AT THE CAMP she was chairman of the sports and swimming committee, and presided at the opening session of the conference on Monday, July 21. During the week she also spoke to the 400 delegates on the "Illinois State Key club award program," was a panel member in the discussion on "College and Career Opportunities," narrated by Dr. Smith, dean of the University of Illinois college of agriculture, and spoke over radio station WILL on the conference in general.

The conference is planned and carried out by the 10 member continuation committee with an advisory committee of the Illinois State Extension staff from the University of Illinois.

Special guests at the conference were 10 top USSR youth leaders, who are presently touring the United States. These young people were presented with pins and honorary memberships of the '58 conference by Miss Gronert and the continuation committee. (ACM

Optimism over the project is expressed following approval in Washington, D.C. by Commissioner John C. Hazeltine of the 50,000 advance for preliminary planning asked from the Community Facilities administration of the federal housing and home finance ager

CONSOER, SEND and Associates, engineers, are making the survey to determine feasibility of four alternatives:

—Construction of DAMP system from Lake Michigan.

—Purchase of water from the Elmhurst-Lombard-Villa Park commission.

—Purchase of water from Chicago.

—Amplification from existing water sources of commission member towns.

OTHER NORTHWEST communities are expected to be among prospective purchasers of water.

"Each town will sign a contract with the commission for a period of 50 years," Chairman Robert Angley said. "The contract will set forth rates and minimum usage. The commission will then be able to have a revenue bond issue. We're really wholesalers of water."

Gift To Hospital Is an Investment

by PAUL ZEHNER

A gift to your hospital is an investment in the dignity of man. It is an expression of our belief that every person is important.

Perhaps you have traveled to parts of the world where it is still common for men, women and children to die unattended in the streets. There are few hospitals —not even a decent place to die. People are chronically ill because they do not get enough to eat and medical attention is available only to the rich.

WHY DIDNT THIS happen to us? We like to think it is because we are more intelligent, but this is not necessarily true.

We have to look into the past to get to the core of the matter. Where did our hospitals, schools, churches, and even the material things we enjoy come from?

Our culture maintains that the individual is important. This idea is an outgrowth of the Hebrew-Christian tradition. We believe that man is a creature of God, made in His image. We're no longer alone in the world.

This makes us aware of others. We know our welfare depends on more than ourselves. It is important that we do something for our less fortunate fellowmen.

WHEN WE GIVE to a hospital, we don't know if we're going to use it. We hope not. But our gift reinforces the culture which made our way of life possible. What we do to help others automatically becomes protection for ourselves and our loved ones.

Most of the great institutions in the United States and other countries of the western world are the result of this idea of responsibility for others. Not only the private institutions but also the state institutions are the product of this idea. Voluntary institutions led the way. A great deal of man's service to man is still carried on this way.

When we give to our hospital, we reaffirm our faith in the idea made our way of life possible. (B12

Ninth District Legion's Installation August 23

Officers elected at the annual meeting of the ninth district council of the American Legion will be installed in an inspiring ceremony at Heck's hall, 5137 Milwaukee ave. at 8 p.m. Saturday August 23.

The meeting will open with impressive ceremonies featured by the advance of colors by the district's champion 8-man color guard under the captaincy of Edward Brownie, 2930 N. Sawyer.

Heading the list of officers is Wallace Schroeder, 5855 N. Mobile who will go in as commander. Schroeder, a navy veteran of WW2 has a distinguished war record. A graduate of Schurz high and the Chicago Industrial Engineers college he is presently employed in his profession by a local firm.

IMMEDIATELY upon his release from the navy he joined the Legion and has been active in all phases of Legion activity and has held many important elective and appointive positions in the organization at the post, district and county levels. He succeeds Norbert Sobczyk, 2133 N. Laramie, last year's district commander.

Assisting the new commander will be a staff of officers consisting of Frank Sodoma, 3337 N. Oconto, first senior vice commander; Sodoma is a member of Gen. George Bell post. His main concern is membership. Second senior vice commander is Ray Roper, 9 E. Campbell, Arlington Heights, a member of Palatine post. Ralph Knorst, 322 Grant place, Park Ridge, a member of Edison Park post will hold down the job of junior vice commander. Others are James Levy, 140 Caryl, Northlake, adjutant. Levy is a member of Howard Rodhe post in Northlake. Donald Burke, 7338 Randolph, Forest Park, a member of Ardennes post will go in as finance officer.

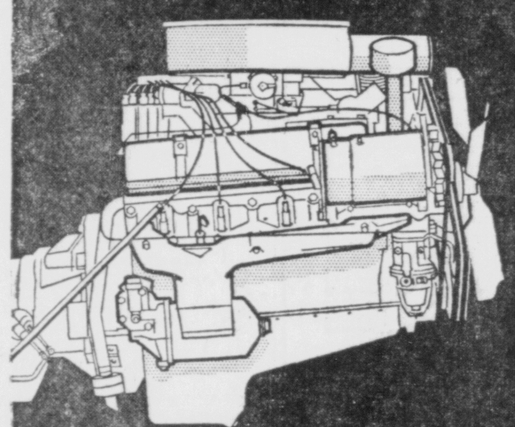

Commander Schroeder has arranged for a stepped-up program of post activities for the coming year with emphasis on the major Legion concerns headed by rehabilitation and service to veterans and their families. Americanism, child welfare, national security, veterans employment and community services. He has also appointed an able committee to plan a full schedule of social events. In addition he will select over 30 other members to head up the various committees necessary to carry on the many projects of the district.

JOSEPH F. BERNHARD, a past Cook county commander and also a past district commander will be the installing officer. Assisting him will be Dick Kolle, as installing sergeant-at-arms. Kolle is a member of Roy G. Ericksson post as is the new commander. Kolle is also an active member of the National Champion Skokie Indians Drum and Bugle Corps — a three times national champion and seven times Illinois state champions.

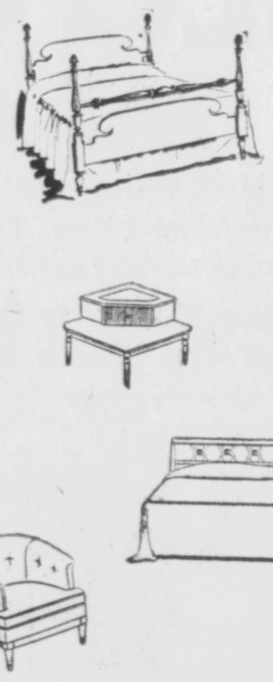

A nationally famous after dinner speaker and master of ceremonies, Fred Peper, of 363 Kathleen pl., Park Ridge, will M.C. the program and spark life into the proceedings.

Mrs. Hilda Ericksson, a member of the Ericksson post Auxiliary and in honor of whose son the post was named, will have charge of the refreshments and social activities after the installation. Dancing and entertainment will follow the business meeting.

Commander Schroeder extends a cordial invitation to the public and a special invitation to all veterans. (B8

JUST DOGS

by DAVE TERRILL

Mischief Makers

Now is the time of year when a dog owner is faced with a real problem. Although dogs are pretty smart, they still can't read signs that say "Keep Off" and all the legal minds in the country can't explain to a dog why he can walk here, but not there.

It is, therefore, up to the individual dog owner to train his dog and to handle him in such a way that "Obedient Bourbon" does not end up doing a waltzing act through all the gardens in the neighborhood.

As a matter of fact, it is the legal responsibility of the owner to comply with all dog laws in his area, and to make sure that his dog is under proper care and handling at all times. Inexperienced handling by children who have neither the strength or the know-how can lead to some rather rough moments.

One failing among suburban dog owners is the habit of letting the dog out in the morning and then just sort of forgetting about him the rest of the day. This not only leads to hard feelings among neighbors but, eventually, to over-strict dog laws.

Northwest Obedience Trial

Speaking about "Obedient Bourbon" brings up the very important point about the first annual AKC licensed obedience trial to be held by the Northwest Obedience club, Inc., of Palatine.

The trial will be held Sunday, Aug. 31, at the Prospect high school field house located on Foundry rd. just west of routes 83 and 12. The school is located at the east village limits of Arlington Heights.

Doors will open at 8:30 a.m. and judging will start at 9 a.m. According to club officials, entries have been coming in from not only dog owners in the local area but many out-of-state ones as well. Looks like a big day for Northwest. Entries close at noon Monday, Aug. 18, so if you plan to enter your dog and have not sent in your entry better get on the ball.

Hunting Dog

Do you remember last year Dad? You said you wanted to start training the hunting dog early, but for some reason could never quite get around to it. Well, a friend of the editor's stopped in to visit recently after spending an hour or two working out his Labrador Retrievers in one of the nearby lakes. This particular individual seldom stops training his dogs regardless of the time of year.

The results are very much in evidence during the fall hunting season. Trips around this part of the state, as well as to the Dakota area, result in this individual coming home with each trip a complete success due in no small part to the fine work of his dogs.

Right now this party is training a new 3-month old pup and has the dog working out in water retrieving likeanohndl.da ao water retrieving like an old hand. All of which seems to point up the fact that the earlier you start the better off you are.

Barks and Bays

If you think you are carrying too big a load these days, what with work, the garden, the kids, too short a vacation and a few other choice complaints you hear from chronic complainers, perhaps you had better try living in Belgium or Switzerland. There, draft dogs are protected by law not to draw a load over 300 pounds singly.

Have fun and make your political contribution.

Object to New Trailer Park Sign

Several hundred residents of Orchard Place are unequivocally opposed to trailer park expansion in their subdivision a Glen Plaines civic association officer said this week.

He is Elmer Skore, first vice president of the association composed of Orchard Place inhabitants.

"One of the primary reasons we wanted to annex to Des Plaines," he said, "was so that we would no longer have to worry about trailer park growth in our area."

Skore said Orchard Place residents are opposed to a sign that Louis Van Selow, owner of the Buckhorn trailer park, wants to place on his premises.

He said the sign, three times bigger than the ordinance specifies signs can be within Des Plaines city limits, would be a serious detriment to the residential area around the trailer park located at Curtis st. and Higgins rd. and is to be used to advertise for trailer park tenants.

How Arlington's Railroad Park Came into Being

When mention is made that the Railroad Park in Arlington Heights might be torn up for commercial structures, nostalgic oldtimers recall how the area came into being.

Only a few are alive today who recall the wave of public spirit that swept through the village at that time. But others remember their parents' discussions of the achievement.

A CLIPPING FROM the August, 1938, issue of the Arlington Heights Herald vividly recalls formation of the park. The village had just completed its first swimming pool in 1938 and the article started:

"The people of Arlington Heights were as proud of their new railroad depot in 1891 as the present generation is of the new swimming pool.

"There were no WPA projects 47 years ago and the planning and planting of the new park was done by public spirited citizens.

"The Chicago suburbs anticipated a big boom because of the World's Columbian exposition and the North Western railroad had just completed double tracks from Chicago to Woodstock. The depot in Arlington Heights was the first modern building built on the Wisconsin suburban division."

RECALLING THE way the wave of public spirit that swept the village, the 1938 story continued:

"J. W. Burkett, John E. Best, Fred Mueller, R. Bray and J. Harris, prominent businessmen of that day, were members of a voluntary committee which, working with Fred Molton, C&NW roadmaster, adopted a landscaping plan.

"The south park was low and, in earlier days, boasted of a duck pond. A lot of filling was necessary and it was the job of the citizens to do the work. As a result of the citizens committee, the railroad company offered to furnish the dirt and a car of cinders for the paths. Teams of volunteer laborers were needed. The local teamsters were U. A. Reese, Joe Wehner, Fred Hue and Fred Muelke, who offered to donate their outfits.

"Dr. J. E. Best donated the hard maple trees along the south side of the park from State rd. to the village hall and their fall foliage is a silent memorial to this village doctor who took so active a part in the welfare of his village until his death Aug. 1, 1906.

"The trees on the north side of the park were donated by the Klehms and were planted with the assistance of John Kehe and his wagon. George Klehm took an active part in the improvement and his interest in the horticultural beauty of Arlington Heights has not waned to this day.

THE 1938 ARTICLE concluded:

"The windmill north of the depot was donated by J. W. Burkett to supply the water from a well to the tank where it was piped to different parts of the park to keep the grass green. Another gift was a large eagle that was kept in a cage near the windmill until somebody stole it.

"Kerosene lamps were the only lighting system in the new station. The village was without sewer or water system and sidewalks were all of wood, the streets very muddy in the spring and fall." (A

Arlington, Prospect High Pupils to Pay Fees Mon.

Students of Arlington and Prospect high schools will begin paying fees Monday, August 18 as the first step in their return for the 1958-59 school year.

Offices in the two buildings will be open from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m. weekdays and from 9 a.m. until noon Saturdays. Payment of fees will continue through August 31. Students should make the payment at the building they will attend.

ALL STUDENTS are expected to pay an $11.50 fee which covers book rental, insurance, the towel fee, the school newspaper, and assemblies. Additional fees in certain subjects are also due at this time. There is a two dollar per year charge for materials in each of the following areas: all art classes, all industrial arts classes, science classes with the exception of biology and earth science, all music classes, and all home economics classes. Where a class in one of the above areas lasts only a semester, the charge is only one dollar. There is a $1.50 chemistry lab breakage fee, the unused portion of which will be returned at the end of the year. A six dollar fee is required of all students taking the behind-the-wheel phase of driver education.

In addition to the $11.50 fee which must be paid by all and the subject fees which must be paid wherever they apply, a number of other items will be on sale for those who desire them.

A PAYMENT of $4.50 will insure delivery of THE HEIGHTS, school yearbook, when it is published in the spring. An athletic season book, good for admission to all home football and basketball games and wrestling meets, exclusive of tournaments, may be purchased for $3.50. Individual admission prices for the 20 home events covered by the athletic season book would total $8.25. Boys going out for frosh-soph and freshman football should not purchase this book as they will be admitted to varsity games free of charge.

The National Forensic League will have on sale its calendar of school events for the year. Entitled "Dogs and Dolls," the calendar sells for 50 cents and contains pictures and a listing of the important dates which students and parents will want to remember. Combination locks, required by school policy, will be on sale for $1.25. All students must have two locks - one for his corridor locker and one for his physical education locker.

WHEN THE STUDENT pays his fees, he will be given his program of classes, his books, his identification card, and a schedule of bus routes. Freshmen will also receive a map of the building. All students report immediately to their homeroom the first day of school, considered to be a regular teaching day.

Errors in programs should be corrected at the time of payment of fees. If a program change is needed, it will be considered at this time.

Students transferring to Arlington or Prospect high schools from another high school, or entering freshmen who graduated from an eighth grade outside the district, who have not reported to the schools for course selection and placement testing, should do so at once. All freshmen and sophomores in district 214 will attend Prospect high school. All juniors and seniors will attend Arlington high school. (ACM

Arlington Library Offers Vacation Reading Ideas

The children's department at Arlington Heights public library offers many new books which were chosen with the idea of making the children's reading program for the summer enjoyable as well as profitable.

If you are a dinosaur fan, you will be fascinated by Dahlov Ipcar's new book The Wonderful Egg, which has its setting in a time in which the only animals that lived in the jungle were dinosaurs. The mystery as to the kind of an egg that lay in the big green jungle of long ago is not cleared up until the end of the story. Since there are 15 different kinds of weird and fabulous prehistoric creatures described in the book, the reader is kept in suspense until the wonderful egg hatches. The delightfully colored illustrations and fascinating story combined with a chart telling the sizes of the different animals and a page giving the pronunciations of their names make this book of special interest to dinosaur lovers.

THE RACHEL FIELD Story Book, which contains three stories—"Polly Patchwork," "Pocket-Handkerchief Park," and "The Little Yellow Shop"—will appeal to all readers who enjoy the special magic and warm everydayness of this author's writing. Adrienne Adam's charming illustrations of the dress made from a Patchwork quilt, merry-go-round horse named Christopher Columbus Lindbergh, a little shop just big enough for a pair of twins going on nine, red thornberries and gay balloons, and a new moon and ice cream cones add to the fascination of the book for readers both young and not so young.

RUTHERFORD Montgomery's new book In Happy Hollow is a gay, gently humorous story about a redwood forest in which human hunters were not allowed. The rules set up by Owl and Mink worked very well until Elmer, a little spotted skunk who considered himself the best all-around song-and-dance man and acrobat in California arrived there. To learn what happened then, read this sprightly story with its delicate drawings by Harold Berson.

Not only is Holiday for Edith and the Bears a delightful picture and story book for the very young, but also it is a collection of beautiful photographs by a gifted artist—photographs which would be worth the attention of any camera fan. Two teddybears, Mr. Bear and Little Bear, and a lovable doll named Edith spend an interesting vacation on a sea island. Little Bear and Edith learn a valuable lesson which all small children may profit from.

MABEL LEIGH HUNT, author of many successful children's books, has written a historically factual story of the moving of a group of Quakers from North Carolina to Ohio in 1806. The excitement, dangers, and hardships of pioneering together with the admirable simplicity of life among the Quakers make this book —Tomorrow Will Be Bright — a delightful story.

The Little Flute Player by Jean Bothwell is a beautiful story of the bravery of Teka, a boy of North India, in the face of poverty and the responsibility of keeping his family alive when the harvest failed and his father left home to find work. (A

Attorney, 32, Heads Opportunity Council

It's now The Opportunity Council, Inc.

The organization born to serve humanitarian needs of the less fortunate is now incorporated and has a functioning slate of officers and committees.

THE METEORIC growth of the Council began last February when Paddock Publications in a series of articles described the tragic plight of some 800 Spanish-speaking families living in ghetto-like conditions right at suburbia's back door.

Many individuals and organizations were appalled at the conditions. They banded together in an informal manner and offered stopgap remedies until a permanent organization could be formed.

One of the first steps was formation of Cook county's first adult night school for Mexican-Americans on the grammar school level, as well as classes on the high school level.

Now — six short months later — the permanent organization has been formed.

WILLIS J. JENSEN, 32, of 418 S. Lincoln Lane in Arlington Heights, is the Opportunity Council's new president.

Jensen, a patent attorney with offices in the loop, is active in the Catholic church's Christian Family Movement, a social study group.

His driving desire to lead the Opportunity Council to new achievements stems from his knowledge of such problems obtained in work performed by his church group and his belief that such problems must be tackled on a community-wide basis.

"We want to help the oppressed, the unfortunate, and the Council affords a wonderful opportunity to do these things," he said.

Jensen holds a law degree from George Washington university in Washington, D.C., and an electrical engineering degree from Penn State college. He has lived in Arlington Heights since 1951.

He explained that many people in civic groups, religious organizations and fraternal groups had offered their help to the Opportunity Council, which is nonpartisan and non-sectarian.

"We're now at work fashioning a program in which the entire community can participate," he said.

"We meet once a month and tackle the urgent projects. Each month our organization grows and soon we hope to be able to take advantage of all the offers of help we have received."

ASSISTING JENSEN are a group of vice presidents:

Mrs. Frank Hoffman Jr., of 420 N. Maple, Mt. Prospect, heads the health and welfare committee; Frederick A. Thulin Jr., of 4 S. Owen, Mt. Prospect, is chairman of the membership committee; Mrs. Clifford B. McFeely, of 106 S. George, Mt. Prospect, is the education committee chairman, and Charles Hayes and Tom Brennan, both of 206 E. Chicago Ave., Palatine, direct community relations.

WILLIS J. JENSEN

The program chairman is Mrs. George E. Bailey, 350 S. Belmont, Arlington Heights. Norbert S. McDonough, 208 N. Elm, Mt. Prospect, is secretary of the Council, and Walter Bricker, 414 N. Maple, Mt. Prospect, is the group's treasurer.

One of the several projects under way is the taking of a census of Mexican-Americans in the northwest suburban area. The census committee is headed by Mrs. Walter Bricker.

Thus far, Wheeling, Elk Grove and Palatine have been covered.

Mrs. Bricker explained that the census will determine whether the Mexican-Americans want education, whether they have taken TB tests and whether they are registered voters.

She said those interviewed to date overwhelmingly favor more education so that they can improve their financial standing by holding better jobs, and so that their children can grow up as normal Americans.

IF THE CENSUS-taker finds a family that has not registered to vote, the information is relayed to the League of Women Voters and the League then follows through with personal calls.

If the people have not had TB tests, they are acquainted with the County's mobile unit program. A campaign is planned to get the Mexican-Americans to the mobile units when they are in the area.

Another report the census group will make is on housing.

Still another important project in the works is the production of an information booklet that will list the many health and welfare organizations in the northwest suburban area. This booklet will be a ready guide for the Mexican-Americans in time of need, and can also be used by other groups who are not acquainted with facilities available.

Mrs. Hoffman, of Mt. , chairman of the health and welfare committee, is producing the booklet. She also has appointed assistants.

HER TASK COULD be simplified, she said, if the organizations who wish to help would telephone her at CL 3-8731. Her assistants are Mrs. Becky Moran of Mt. Prospect, Mrs. Coburn and Mrs. Renninger, public health representatives from Des Plaines; Mrs. Martha Loss, of the Palatine Nurses club, and Mrs. Catherine Curtin of the Arlington Heights Nurses club.

ADD — Attorney, 32, Heads .... Mrs. McFeely, head of the education committee, is one of the pioneers in the formation of the Opportunity Council.

She served with John F. Sicks of Wheeling as temporary chairman from April until the group was incorporated. She was instrumental in setting up the adult education classes which now are suspended while the workers spend long days in the fields.

Come fall, Mrs. McFeely hopes to resume the classes on a much larger scale. It is possible the Arlington high school with its many facilities will be made available to the Opportunity Council.

AS A MILESTONE in the startling young career of the Council, a community dinner will be held this fall. Chairman of the event will be Mrs. John Sicks. Members of the committee handling arrangements are Charles Hayes, Mrs. George Bailey and Rudy Perales.

The dinner will afford an opportunity for the many people interested to get together. Rep. Marguerite Stitt Church of Evanston and other notables are expected to attend.

THE BENSENVILLE COMMUNITY high school class of 1928—then and in the lower photo as the same 12 members appeared Saturday night at their 30th anniversary reunion. Top row: Tommy Kouzmanoff, Rudolph Laho, Fred Koebbeman, Russell Morse, Edward Gallery and Charles Earhart, and bottom: Florence Gruenwold (Mrs. Fred Deppe), Katherine Laho (Mrs. Charles Earhart), Myrtle Franzen (Mrs. Myrtle Heuer), Irene Hess (Mrs. Vernon Stellman), Helen Culek (Mrs. Virgil Horath) and Edna Capoot (Mrs. Phillip Baldridge).

Three Decades Dispel '28 High School Prophecies

The cause of class prophecies was dealt a severe blow at Plentywood Farm, Bensenville, Saturday night when members of the 1928 graduation class of Bensenville high school dined, compared notes and observed the 30th anniversary of graduation.

Twelve members of the class were present for the festivities. Of the 18 original members two have passed away and four were unable to attend. Wives and husbands were also present, trying to keep up with some of the memories bouncing back and forth.

CLASS PROPHECY of 30 years ago was read once again with only one member of the class even remotely adhering to the prediction. Rudolph Laho was supposed to be a salesman. Rudy has a hardware and heating store in Bensenville.

Other predictions of president of the U.S., mayor of Chicago, opera stars and fat woman in the circus went the way of most predictions — forgotten as 30 years went by.

CHUCK EARHART was supposed to be president of his country. He's a machinist instead, and living in Bensenville. Tommy Kouzmanoff, high school enthusiast of "Big Bill" Thompson, was slated to be mayor of Chicago, but is Chicago American golf and prep sports editor, instead.

Tommy was quarterback on the school football team 30 years ago, captaining the '27 eleven, and pitched the baseball Bisons to 13-3 and 16-0 victories over Arlington Heights his senior year. Bill Dietrich and "Fat" Wilton were Heights twirlers.

FRED GOEBBEMAN, present Addison township supervisor, was slated to be an opera star, as was Myrtle Franzen, now a postal clerk in the Bensenville post office. "Fat lady in the circus" is a capable stenographer, Mrs. Vernon Stellman of Bensenville. Her husband was a great short stop for Bensenville town baseball teams of 30 years ago.

Mrs. Charles Earhart, nee Katherine Laho, was supposed to be a movie star portraying imperious wives, is a payroll clerk instead, only member of the class to wed a classmate. She has a son in college at 16 years of age, a very good student.

HELEN CULEK was scheduled to be a famous dress designer, but married Virgil Horath, happy-go-lucky (and successful) service station operator in Arlington Heights, instead. Florence Gronewald was going to be chief of women's police force "and wield a heavy stick," but married Fred Deppe of Glen Ellyn, who has an upholstery shop.

Edna Capoot, "a 1928 poetess," is now Mrs. J. Philip Boldridge of Aurora. Her husband is an orthodontist (straightens teeth). Ed Gallery was supposed to be "a well known orator on the activities of the female species," is assistant treasurer of International Forwarding Co., an employee of that firm 25 years. He now lives in Mundelein.

Russell has an International Harvester dealership in New Hampton, Iowa. Russell was considered a giant basketball center in '28, standing 6-3, and played center on the football team though weighing 155. He has kept his weight in line with changing standards for football centers (220).

OTHER CLASSMATES unable to attend: Mary Sullivan, now Mrs. Thomas Duffey of Chicago; Marion LaRue, now Mrs. Lester Siegfried of Redondo Beach, Calif.; Leonard Runge of Bloomingdale; and Dorothy Moran, now Mrs. Thomas Kyle of Oakland, Calif.

Mrs. Kyle's mother was Bensenville's first phone operator, running "central" from her home around the clock years ago. Deceased are Vernon Franzen, star athlete, and Roger Morris, famous for his spirit on the football field.

Entire group traveled to the Kouzmanoff home in Arlington Heights following the dinner at Plentywood. (B12

Residents Purchase Most of Diamond Lk.

About 30 residents living along the shore of Diamond Lake have purchased roughly 90 per cent of the lake with an aim toward improving it and keeping it safe for swimmers and boaters.

Frequent cases of reckless motorboating on the lake was one of the big reasons behind the purchase, it was said.

The new owners hope to better regulate boating.

The purchase was made from Roland Miller, whose family was responsible for developing much of the land around the lake. Miller is now living somewhere in the South.

Businessmen along the lake indicate they are rather vague about what the group plans to do with the lake, but they say they are in favor of the increased emphasis on safety which the group says it will promote.

KICKIN' IT AROUND

by BOB FRISK

PRO FOOTBALL'S TOP pass receiver in 1947 is one of 42 competitors slated to tee-off Sunday in the Paddock Publications Inter-League Handicap golf tourney at Nordic Hills country club.

Jim Keane, 306 S. Reuter in Arlington Heights, will combine with Bill Hugo, Bob Lee, and Gene Doyle to represent State and Rand Service Station of the Old Orchard scratch league. Keane will be one of the low handicap players in the tourney with his five best rounds in twilight play showing a 36, two 38s, and two 39s.

JIM KEANE

In 1947 Keane, playing with the Chicago Bears, caught 64 passes for 910 yards and 10 touchdowns and in 1949 tied an all-time National Football league mark for most passes caught in one game with 14 against the New York Giants. Jim, who played with the Bears from 1946 to 1953, teamed with Ken Kavanaugh to form one of the top offensive duos at the flanks in pro football.

A product of Bellaire, Ohio, Keane played at Great Lakes during World War II. He was at the University of Iowa in 1941 and '42 and is now in the insurance business. Jim is married and has three children, Jim, Jr., who is nine and twin girls, Linda and Brenda, who are 11.

Now if Keane can team with Hugo, Lee and Doyle as well as he did with Kavanaugh, State and Rand could be considered a threat for the Paddock title.

Pre-tourney notes: Five players are competing in their third Paddock tournament . . . Bob Lee played with Cork and Bottle in 1956, firing an 85-5-80 as his team finished third, and with Duntemann's Dairy in '57, shooting 79-4-75 with the sixth place finisher . . . Bill Wilson competed in 1956 and in '57 and last year fired a 75-7-68 in helping Wheeling Lumber capture the crown . . . Pete Bodor played with Stefanik Food in '53 and Glueckert's Lounge in '56 and Hugh Seddon competed for Hugh's Body Shop in '51 as the team finished fourth and with Rendezvous Cabin's second place finisher in 1954.

Len Arnold, who played in the tourney in 1955 and '57 and will compete for Elston Driving Range this year, and Wally Schloman of the Bensenville league are two of three golfers to ever play in the tournament with no handicap . . . Arnold fired a 71-0-71 in '55 and came back with a 73 in 1957 . . . The other competitor with no handicap was Paul Troyke of the Roselle loop in 1956 . . . Players with handicaps of one through the years include Charles Kleinofen, Avery Harris, and Hans Adler . . . Wayne Rolfs, Bruno Waara, and Bob Beard have played with two handicaps.

Competing for the second time in a Paddock meet are John Beverley, Bob Louthain, Vern Dempsey, Charles Baranowski, John Troyke, Jim Biesterfeld, Norm Pfortmiller, John Pergler, Joe Bodor, and Leo Kasmierczak.

With all the talk about our four minute milers lately it's interesting to note that one of the entries for Moler's Barber Shop is a John Bannister . . . And the Harrison Dod who plays for Moler's is not to be confused with the Harry Dodds who has played in the Paddock meet three times and on a champion team twice . . . Low gross winners since 1950 include Ray Kehoe (79), Leo Walch (72), Harry Lavin (74), George Wickstrom (78), Bob Hornbostel (79), Len Arnold (71), Al Griffith (73), and Arnold (73) . . . Lowest winning team total was the 284 recorded by the Mt. Prospect Lions in 1955 . . . Other team scores since 1950 were 285, 301, 286, 295, 303, 300, and 285.

IT'S DERBY DAY Saturday at Arlington Park. The $100,000 added American Derby at a mile and a furlong will bring together some of the nation's top three-year olds in the 48th running of the famous race.

The American Derby is the final leg of Chicagoland's "Double Crown" for three-year-olds—the first is the Arlington Classic at one mile. It's also a major denominator in determining the nation's three-year-old champ.

The Derby, inaugurated at "Old" Washington Park (61st and Cottage Grove) in 1884, also assumes added significance because of its late running date. It catches the nation's best three-year-olds at the peak of their training. Racing is a sport where only the "fittest survive" and only those able to withstand the rigors and vagaries of exacting winter, spring and summer campaigns are still around to settle championship claims come Derby day in Chicago.

With the result, it's no rare thing to see a Kentucky Derby or Belmont stakes champ, or even a "Triple Crown" winner, put his title aspirations on the line against a seasoned field of Derby challengers, and a field which often includes an "upstart" launching a belated bid for divisional honors.

Some of America's greatest three-year-olds, like Citation, Whirlaway, Hill Prince, Cavalcade, Gusto, Ponder, and Native Dancer have won the Derby and for the past three years it was contested at one mile and three-sixteenths on the grass course. Swaps, Swoon's Son, and Round Table won the last three renewals.

Eddie Arcaro is the master in the jockey department. He has captured the Derby five times in six attempts and was aboard Mark-Ye-Well in 1952 for the largest winning purse in the event's history, $103,325.

FRIDAY NIGHT THE 1958 football season "officially" opens with the 25th annual All-Star game at Soldiers Field, matching the College All-Stars with the professional champion Detroit Lions. Although we'll be pulling for the All-Stars, Detroit should walk off with a victory—say about 28-14.

As far as the most valuable lineman and back on the All-Stars, we'll stick with Kentucky's giant 235-pound Lou Michaels and Illinois' halfback Bobby Mitchell. Michaels has been a standout in practice, and Mitchell has few peers in broken field running. Bobby won both dashes in the Big Ten outdoor track meet and has been one of the consistent long-gainers in the practice sessions. However, Mitchell may be more on the receiving end of passes as Otto Graham has been using him in that capacity.

The fact that Graham is coaching the All-Stars should provide added incentive for the Detroit eleven. Besides hoping to hold their prestige against a group which has been together only a few weeks, the Lions should want to take it out on Graham who has been one of the chief instigators behind the talk of "dirty" football in the play-for-money ranks.

P. S. . . . Claude Markstrom, 121 S. Chestnut in Arlington, recently landed a 7 pound, 4 ounce Porgie in the Golden Galleen Fishing tournament at Riviera Beach, Fla. . . . Markstrom's catch earned him 119.6 points and third place in the contest which ends Labor Day . . . It's good to hear college basketball is replacing the pro game on TV this winter . . . Although we enjoy pro football, we can't get excited about the professional cage sport . . . It's too mechanical . . . Listed on the Chicago Cardinals' roster is Wayne Bock from Lyons, Ill. who prepped at Argo . . . We understand that Arlington high is losing one of its top tennis players with Keith Butterfield moving to Milwaukee . . . That's a big loss for Ken Schaller who has been instrumental in putting tennis into the spotlight at Arlington high.

Hank Gerfen, former catcher and outstanding football performer at Maine high school, has been awarded a Daniel Webster national scholarship, the highest honor that can be bestowed on a Dartmouth college undergraduate.

It's getting to be a habit, but Mike Spinello, Jr. of Mt. Prospect has won another golf title . . . This time it was the 31st annual Midwest Amateur public links tourney . . . Bob McDonald, another Arlington grad, finished 14th, 15 strokes off the pace . . . Area athletes listed on the first publication of the Northwestern grid roster include Dave Obrecht of Glen Ellyn and Anthony Demec of Morton Grove . . . One of returning lettermen in cross country for Southern Illinois will be Bob Clauss of Elmhurst . . . Jay Hook, Grayslake product in the Southern Association, fanned 15 batters in one recent game for Nashville.

9th Annual Paddock Tournament Sunday

Set Schedule For Registration Of Fall Athletes

All football and cross country candidates at Arlington high school and Prospect school must register next week, Monday thru Saturday, according to Wally Grace, athletic director.

Juniors and seniors will register at AHS from 8 to 10 each morning and freshmen and sophomores will register at Prospect from 10 to 12.

In addition to their physical cards, athletes must also be prepared to pay their fees and also present their signed parents' permit card.

FEE FOR JUNIOR and senior football candidates is $9.50, broken down into $6 for insurance, $2.50 for football service fee, including laundry, and $1 for towel fee which is refundable next June providing the boy has not lost his towel.

The total at Prospect school includes $6 for insurance, $1 for towel fee, and $1.50 for locker fee, a total of $8.50. Each boy must buy the school's lock, and there is no laundry service at the Prospect school. The athlete can rent the lock for 50 cents and therefore has a chance of getting back $2 in June.

CROSS COUNTRY hopefuls do not have any insurance cost but do have a $1 towel fee.

The new insurance policy has been examined by the school administration, business manager, and athletic director, and they agreed that it was the cheapest and best for an all-inclusive policy, though higher than last year.

The athletic department is paying for half of the football insurance. (Sp

Boosters Travel Sunday Following Two Defeats

Good things just don't last for Black's Boosters.

After crushing a powerful Cavillini's squad, 15-1, the Boosters then engaged in two non-league tilts and came out on the short end of both affairs.

Two southpaws, Al McKormick and Bob Miller, were tagged with the defeats as the offense, which powered 22 hits in the 15-1 victory, combined for only 13 safeties in the two losses.

SATURDAY the Boosters will host Western Printing of Racine in a 3 p.m. tilt at Recreation Park, and Sunday they travel to Skokie for a Greater Chicago contest at 2:30.

Milbrandt's Drugs of Elgin, with ace Jerry Tweitmeyer handling the mound duties, set down Black's 8-5. Tweitmeyer, a fastballing right hander, fanned 12 and was sailing along until the locals erupted for three hits and three runs in the ninth.

Joe Jankers led off the final frame with a single to left and then an error off the bat of Bill Sutherland and a double and single brought in the three tallies. Bill Sprinz and Bob Getts rapped the two hits for Arlington.

SUNDAY THE Kenosha Chiefs traveled to Arlington's Recreation Park to dump the hosts, 5-3. Black's had men on base in every inning but two and collected eight hits, but they were scattered blows.

Two hits by Lou Schairer and Lloyd Meyer, coupled with two walks, led to two runs in the second. The final tally for Heights resulted on a triple by Dan Vittum in the fifth and single by Sutherland.

Miller worked for Arlington and allowed eight hits, fanning eight. Mack toiled for Kenosha and collected only two strikeouts in the nine inning stint. (Sp

O'Connell Hurls No-Hitter, AH Sweeps All-Star Series

by BOB FRISK

Fran O'Connell and Dave Brodnan, who both attend Notre Dame high school, showed Palatine some fancy pitching over the weekend as Arlington's Babe Ruth All-Stars swept a two-game series in rather convincing fashion.

Although Brodnan has been getting most of the headlines this summer, O'Connell was the man of the hour in the series as he recorded a masterful no-hitter in Saturday's lidlifter, an 8-0 decision.

Brodnan then backed this with a two-hitter Sunday as Arlington won, 8-1.

FANNING 14 and walking only four, O'Connell, who worked for the Bears during the regular season, saw his teammates push over a single run in the first inning to gain a lead they never relinquished. Arlington then tallied in every inning but the third and sixth.

Five boys batted in runs for the winners with shortstop Fred Lussow knocking in two, Cliff Scholl and Craig Hartman rapped solo homers, and Gregg Beckway delivered a triple. Other extra base blows were doubles by Frank Hermes and Lussow.

Catcher Larry Pakyz, Hartman, and Scholl each had two hits as Arlington compiled 11 in the seven inning affair.

SUNDAY, BRODNAN was aided by a nine hit attack in recording the 8-1 triumph. Dave, a fire-balling right hander, fanned 11 and walked only two.

Catcher Pakyz was again a batting hero with two triples and three runs batted in. Lussow added another double and also scored two runs. O'Connell, playing center in this tilt, rapped two singles.

Helms and O'Rilley worked for Palatine and the former also drove in the only run for the losers. Phillips had a triple for one of the two safeties.

CLIFF SCHOLL, Sr. headed the Arlington squad for the series with Paul Miller and Paul Tossman as coaches. Miller later expressed pleasure with the result of the first series of its kind between Babe Ruth teams and also indicated that this type of play indicated the soundness of the Little League program which has produced these Babe Ruth performers.

In the Babe Ruth playoff in Arlington Heights the Redlegs edged Jack Mutti's Indians, 4-3, with Brodnan getting the win. Scholl blasted a homer as the winners tallied three times in the first, then pushed over the deciding run in the third. (Sp

13 Teams Vie for Golf Title; First Foursome Off at 11:45

by G. A. McELROY

Past performances don't mean a thing when the leaders of 13 Paddock area leagues tee off next Sunday in the ninth annual tournament sponsored by Paddock Publications. To date no low handicap team has ever won the tournament and it being operated on a handicap system there is just as much chance if not more for the 94 handicap Roll-King team of the St. James League as for the hot shooting State and Rand Service team out of Old Orchard boasting a 21 handicap. The tourney is usually won by a team which has a couple of players with average to high handicaps who get hot and shoot way below their normal scores.

The tournament gets underway at the sporty Nordic Hills course at 11:45 a.m. Foursomes from the 13 entering teams are made up on the basis of individual handicaps with no two players from the same team in the same foursome. Low handicap foursomes will tee off first in order to keep things moving smoothly and to make for more competition within the foursomes.

TWO PLAYERS, Len Arnold of Elston's Driving Range and Walter Schloman of Bensenville VFW have 0 handicaps. Arnold's average at Old Orchard is slightly under the 71 par for the course while Schloman who plays at the Mohawk par 73 course as average so close to par that he must play from scratch in this tournament. Bill Hugo of State and Rand Service and Bud Kruesch of Arlington VFW have handicaps of only two. It stands to reason that a person with a 20 handicap has much more chance to shoot well under the handicap than does a near scratch player.

The tournament will be strictly a team affair with a trophy to the winning team and medals for members of the teams finishing first, second, and third. The courses on which the teams play during the season vary in par figures. Mount Prospect and Arlington have 70 par, Old Orchard and Rob Roy 71, Chevy Chase 72, and Mohawk and Roselle 73. Handicaps are figured on the best five scores and figured at 80 per cent of the difference between the player's average and par for the course. Five of the 13 teams are from twi-light leagues which operate at the Mount Prospect Country Club.

LAST YEAR Wheeling Lumber play at Arlington Country Club with a 68 handicap was first, Safford Stamp Works playing at Mount Prospect with an 86 handicap was second, and Kamps Signs from Old Orchard with the low handicap of 14 took third led by Len Arnold with 73, Carl Berlin 76, Avery Harris 77, and Marvin Kaps 78. That kind of shooting could not win due to low handicap. Low net least year was by Jack Kilroy with an 83 and a 17 handicap for a 66.

This year there is not as great a spread in handicaps as in former years. This indicates a more closely contested tournament than in the past. Six of the 13 teams are within a range of 11 points in team handicap from 50 to 61. These are the teams to watch and most likely to cash in on the medals.

Also this year the handicaps are on the average lower than other seasons. Thirty of the 52 golfers in the tourney have handicaps of 13 or less which is shooting good golf. Only eight players have handicaps over 20 which place then in a C or D class and are commonly known as dubbers. However, these high handicap players may be the key to the success of their teams for a good showing below their usual score standard can make a tremendous difference in the team net total.

WITH A cool summer and plenty of rain all courses in the area are in good shape. The past two weeks of hot weather will have little effect on a well cared for layout like Nordic Hills. This club is a semi-public course in a heavily wooded section at the right of Highway 53 just south of Irving Park Boulevard.

The course is a tricky one, not because of sand traps which are almost lacking, but because of trees, dogleg fairways, hilly terrain, and greens which are set up in the air with bad approaches from any side except the front. Overshooting the greens usually means trouble. There is trouble galore for the player who cannot keep the ball down the middle on the fairway. Most of the holes have enough trees as obstacles to cause the ordinary player plenty of trouble and extra strokes.

EIGHT PLAYERS will be returning from last year on different teams to participate in the tourney. These repeaters are Len Arnold, Bill Wilson, Jim Biesterfeld, Charles Baranowski, Roy Seddon, Vernon Dempsey, John Beverly, and Joe Bodor. Bodor has been in the tournament four times before this season.

Request Tourney Golfers to Report Early Sunday

Time is all-important in any golf tournament, and Paddock Publications sports department is relying upon golfers competing in Sunday's event to report early for the tourney.

First foursome will tee off at 11:45. Other groups will open play at 7 minute intervals. Members of that first foursome are requested to be on hand by 11:30 to go over rules of the course with the starter.

Pictures of first, second and third place teams will be taken as soon as medals are given out immediately following the tournament. A dozen golf balls will go to low individual net player, regardless where his team finishes.

Organize Midget Football Program In Arlington

Midget Football will highlight the Arlington Heights Park District's Fall Recreation Program. All boys entering the 5th, 6th, 7th and 8th grades and living within the Park District limits are eligible to participate in the program and must have a permit form signed by their parents. The permit forms may be obtained from and returned to the pool cashiers at Recreation and Pioneer Parks. The program will start on Saturday, September 7th, and continue through November 1st. Games will be scheduled on Saturday mornings with practice sessions arranged by the coaches; usually on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 4:00-5:30 p. m.

Boys participating in the program are required to furnish their own uniforms, which should consist of a helmet, shoulder pads, pants, and shoes without cleats. The game jerseys will be furnished. The Park District has a limited number of uniforms for those who are unable to furnish their own. A deposit of $10.00 will be required for all park equipment issued. The deposit will be refunded when the equipment is returned.

The Midget Football program is designed to teach the boys the fundamentals of football and good sportsmanship. In order for the boys to gain the greatest benefit from the football program, the Park District recommends that the fathers of the boys take an active interest in the program. All fathers wishing to work with the teams as coaches or officials are invited to attend a meeting on August 27 at 8:00 p. m. at Pioneer Park.

Several Additions Listed in Junior Loop Championship

Several additions have been brought to the attention of the sports department concerning the title game between the Gophers and Spartans for the Junior League championship.

Pat Martin, pitcher for the Gophers, turned in a neat one-hitter and also stole home to knot the score in the crucial fifth inning of the Gophers' 6-5 win over the Spartans. In addition, Charlie Stocking rapped a homer with a man on base in the first inning to provide the impetus behind the win.

BILLY RICKERSON led off the sixth frame with a triple which resulted in the winning run, and Billy Hotze drove in the deciding tally.

The Gophers, under manager Bill Gunnison, won the Northside title as Joe Nostal, who made a habit of low-hit games this summer, twirled a no-hitter in setting down the Blues, 3-1.

Giant Hitters

The New York Giants hit five home runs in the fourth inning of their game with the Cincinnati Reds, June 6, 1939. The final score was 17-3.

MAC SAYS

by G. A. McELROY

ANYTHING IS POSSIBLE in track. The 3:54.5 world record mile race run by Herb Elliott last week proves the point. Just a few years ago sports authorities predicted that no one would ever run a 4 minute mile. Five runners followed Elliott to the finish under 4 minutes last week. In 1955 3 runners finished under 4 minutes as Laslo Tabori of Hungary was timed in 3:59. Four were under 4 minutes in 1957 when Derek Ibbotson hit 3:57.2 for a record not recognized because he was paced. The former world's record was 3:58 made by John Landy of Australia in Finland in 1954. Last week 3 of the 5 who broke 4 minutes were Australians, one was from New Zealand, and third place winner was Ron Delaney of Ireland and Villanova College of Philadelphia.

Elliott was beaten the next day in world record time in the 2 mile run by fellow Australian, Albert Thomas who set a world mark of 8:32. Two days before he ran the mile in 3:58.6 for fifth behind Elliott. Diet and an outstanding coach plus getting fun out of running are Elliott's reasons for his success. He is only 20 and in his teens broke a foot and gave up hope of serious running but the urge to get into the 1956 Olympic games got him going. He has never lost a mile race since going into big time competition in December 1956. Elliott's diet consists of rolled oats mixed with wheat germ, bananas, dried figs, walnuts, dates and raisins. In high school he ran the 880 in 1:50.8 for a record and the mile in 4:22. He has conditioned himself under the direction of his coach, Percy Cerutty, by running in ankle deep sand along the beach and doing lots of weight lifting. Elliott says the American way of life is too soft to develop distance runners. He predicts a 3:50 mile in a few years.

There is no question that Americans are going soft. Everyone rides in a car if only to travel a few blocks. Late hours, TV, and a multitude of temptations to break training beset the athlete and coach in America in an effort to excel in sports. This is more true in the individual sports such as track where conditioning must be at its peak to get results. Too few American young men have a strong enough desire to excel, to do all those things necessary for top conditioning. That is one of the reasons that in this country the colored athletes are coming to the front and gaining the recognition for exploits in track. Comparable with Elliott's 3:54.5 mile was the recent world record in the decathlon set by colored Roper Johnson of UCLA in the American-Russian track and field meet at Moscow.

Just as great a need in American education as emphasis on science and math is a re-examination of the physical education program in our elementary schools and high schools with an emphasis on physical fitness. Too many P. E. programs are mainly games in which half the class sit idly by while a few compete or where the number on the field is so large that few get any exercise. We need a return to the wartime emphasis on fitness. It is a funny thing that during a war we get the boys and girls physically fit through calisthenics, running, and gymnastics and of course they do not take part in the war but it is because the army finds so many adults unfit. As soon as peace time comes we go back to basketball, volleyball, badminton, and touch football and leave out the body building exercises so that we will have another crop of weaklings for the next war. The president and others have become so concerned about the matter that a national organization has been formed to attempt to promote physical fitness in our schools. It seems to us that everywhere we need to re-examine our P. E. program to make sure that fitness activities as well as games are a part of the overall program.

A return to old fashioned calisthenics, trampoline, tumbling, rope climbing, the parallel and horizontal bars and lots of running should be interspersed in the program along with sports. Every student should get some strenuous physical exercise every day if not for more than 10 minutes. That is why the State of Illinois has changed the P. E. requirement from so many minutes a day or week to a simple rule that every student have some of it each day in both elementary and high schools.

In 1955 President Eisenhower called a White House conference on physical fitness because he had been shown the results of a series of tests which proved that more than half the children of U. S. could not meet minimum physical fitness standards. The 6 tests known as the Kraus-Weber tests of muscular fitness have nothing to do with athletic ability, but they do measure the abolity to walk and stand straight and meet the demands of every day living. Tests given to a large number of American children showed 57.9% failing one or more of the six tests while European children, with a much lower standard of living had only 8.7% failing.

The American children failed the flexibility test at the rate of 44.3% while Europeans failed in 7.8% of cases. In the strength tests 35% of Americans failed compared with 1.1% of Europeans.

Bonnie Prudden, a woman who has spent her life in physical education work, and Dr. Hans Kraus and Dr. Sonja Weber alerted the President and various high level conferences were held in each of the states. So far as we know very little has filtered down in a concrete program for the public school systems. However, Bonnie Prudden, who had a series of 24 sets of exercises for women published in graphic form in Sports Illustrated last year, has some very definite ideas on the subject of how any school no matter how short of space and equipment can help its students to be physically fit. We shall discuss her ideas in our next column.

Ninth Annual Paddock Golf Tourney Sunday

Paddock Publications has sponsored this tournament for nine years. The tournament is the brain child of Bob Paddock who has done the major work each year in planning and managing the event. It is the only tournament of its kind in the area where league team leaders have a chance to compete with leaders of other leagues on a handicap basis.

Bob Paddock also sponsors both women's and men's bowling tournaments among leaders of the leagues of the area. It is the policy of Paddocks to encourage sports competition in the Northwest part of Chicagoland and these tournaments are one of many ways the newspaper shows a special interest in sports.

Benson, Baker Cop Arlington Tennis Crowns

Tom Benson and Kathy Baker turned in impressive victories Aug. 4-5 in the annual Arlington Heights park district tennis tournament.

Benson, top-seeded in the boys' division, successfully defended the title he won in 1957 with a 6-3, 6-0 win over Bob Von Boeckmann in the finals.

Miss Baker outlasted Donna Cunningham in the championship match 7-5, 8-6. Miss Cunningham had gained the title affair with an upset win over top-seeded Linda Burke, 6-2, 6-2.

WINNERS OF the third place awards were Jeff Corbin in the boys' division over Bob Bohac, 6-2, 1-6 and 6-4, and Mary Elizabeth Cockrell in the girls' division over Miss Burke, 1-6, 7-5, 6-1.

For the tennis players under 11 a skills contest was held. In the boys' division Jimmy Brophy won the meet, Morris Knutson placed second, and Guy Henken took third. In the girls' contest Pat Boyle placed first, Carol Spomer second, and Kathy Loos third.

Cards, Bears Battle Sunday In Buffalo

Frank Ivy will be making his debut as head coach when the Cards open the Pre-Season schedule against the Bears Sunday at Buffalo, N.Y. Starting time for the game will be 1:05 p.m. Chicago time.

Ivy, former U. of Oklahoma and Chicago Cardinals end (played with the Cards world's champions in 1947), is starting his 11th season as a coach, his fifth in professional ball (four years as head man for the Edmonton Eskimos of the Canadian League) and his first as top man for his Pro Alma Mater — the Chicago Cadinals. Frank played six seasons as an offensive and defensive end for the Cards.

Several Changes Due for Paddock Classic Bowling

Several changes are in prospect for members of the Paddock Classic Traveling League when they open the new kegling season August 30 at Des Plaines Bowling Lanes.

There will be plenty of new faces, including a couple of bowlers who've dropped from the Northwest Traveling league.

There'll probably be new officers early in the season. New rules have been established for setting up championship roll-offs. And bowlers and their wives will enjoy a deluxe banquet at the end of the season.

THE ROSTERS have not all been turned in to date, but are expected to be released in time for publication in next week's paper. A couple of known changes, though, include Al Parkhurst of Palatine, who will compete for the team representing Hi-Way Recreation; and Casper DeWitz of Barrington, competing for the Ten Pin.

Both of these high average men bowled with the Northwest Traveling league last year.

FIRST HALF competition will end with a position night December 27 at Palatine. First half winner will then draw both first and second choices for end-of-the-season playoff site with no roll-off permitted on the home alleys of either first or second half winner.

Final position night is scheduled to be held May 2 at Barrington. Following Saturday night, May 9, the championship will be decided with the banquet expected to be held May 16 or 23.

AN INNOVATION in election of officers will be held after bowling the first night of the season. After the president is elected from the general membership each team will select one of its membership for nomination to the other offices in the league.

League members will then choose three officers from these six men, then name the other three to the rules committee. This system will give each team a representative among the officers and rules committee.

BOWLING IN the Paddock Classic is held at the six houses involved starting at 6:30 Saturday nights. Initial session is scheduled for Des Plaines Bowling Lanes August 30 with keglers urged to be on hand by 6 o'clock that night so Paddock Publications photographers can take individual and team pictures for the season.

Franchise holders in the Paddock Classic Traveling League, the fastest loop in the suburban area, include the Ten Pin at Barrington, Hi-Way Recreation at Palatine, Beverly Lanes at Arlington Heights, Gunnell's at Mt. Prospect, Jeffery Lanes at Wheeling and Des Plaines Bowling Lanes.

Almost Perfect

John Nabors lost 20 consecutive games for the Philadelphia Athletics in 1916. He won one game and lost 20 that season.

Kilroy's Homer, Relief Pitching Stops Boosters

A one-out homer by pitcher John Kilroy drove in two runs in the ninth inning and enabled the Des Plaines Merchants to gain an impressive 7-6 win over the Bill Erickson Boosters of Evanston Sunday at West Park in Des Plaines.

Kilroy, who normally plays second base, relieved starter Tom Rowlee in the fifth and proceeded to turn in a creditable stint in his first effort as a pitcher in organized ball.

IN 4 1/3 innings Kilroy allowed no runs, four hits, three walks, and he fanned four.

His game winning homer came with Len Casamassimo on base in the ninth and capped a rally which had knotted the score after the Merchants had previously blown a 5-0 lead.

The win gives the Merchants a 5-4 league slate. Sunday they host Cole Lenzi at 2 p.m. at West Park and have to win to stay in contention in their bracket. (Sp

Oak Park Gains 5 Spots On All-Tournament Team

Cook County champion and state runner-up Oak Park placed five boys on the 1958 All-Tournament team for the county legion finals, it was announced this week.

The honor squad, selected by Paddock's sports department in cooperation with Dave Lynk, manager of Arlington's Jr. Legion team, also lists three boys from Park Ridge and two from Oak Park. Skokie failed to land any positions on the 10-man team.

Named from the Oak Park titlists were first baseman Bill Schmittendorf, shortstop Bill Tomb, third baseman Bill Vasey, outfielder Marty Lillig, and pitcher Bill Hunter.

SCHMITTENDORF drew the nod over Skokie's Bill Ihne mainly because of his steady play throughout the tourney. None of the meet's first sackers hit enough to merit consideration, but Schmittendorf stood out in the field.

Tomb batted .455 and was a dependable fielder, and Vasey, though getting only one hit in three games, showed a lot of hustle and spirit. Lillig, Oak Park's power hitter, rapped the ball at a .385 clip and Hunter gained two mound triumphs.

Heading Park Ridge's selections is center fielder Bob Kupczak, possibly the most valuable player in the tourney. Kupczak is a good fielder, possess a fine throwing arm, and showed as much hustle as anyone else in the affair. Bob batted .353 for four tilts.

PITCHER Jim Humay and second baseman Bill White also were named from Park Ridge's runner-ups. White, a surprise of the tourney, batted .500 and played three different positions.

BOB KUPCZAK

Final selections were Park Forest's powerful hitting duo, catcher Bart Zeller and outfielder Gary Elliott. Zeller copped the meet's batting crown with a .538 mark and Elliott compiled a .500 average.

Pharmacy Holds Friday Night Golf Lead

Arlington Pharmacy managed to hang on to first place in the Friday night golf league at Arlington Country club. Prospect Heights Pharmacy jumped from fourth to second place, gaining five points in the process. Concerning this, Grandpappy Ray Lesch can't understand why the Prospect Heights druggists didn't make the Paddock tournament. Ray shot a neat 38 August 8.

Another pleasant surprise team is the Arlington Pharmacy boys. They jumped from 12th place last week, to eighth this week. Watch them from now on. Standings follow:

Charlies Gain Top Position In VFW Action

The VFW golf league ended in a photo-finish, with the Charlies moving up to first place from third to lead by a half point over the Georges and the Bakers. Paced by Roger Hertel and Sam Rauworth the Charlies defeated the Easys 5½-1½. The Ables, led by Max Mayrer, played the spoilers by blanking the first place Georges 7-0, and the Foxes beat the second place Georges 5-2. Roger Hertel and Sam Rauworth tied for low gross with 38's and Andy Graczyk took the low net honors with a nice round of 39-6, net 33.

Next week the league will play two-ball foursome matches with the number one and two men partners and the three and five men partners. The number four men will be alternates and play a regular nine hole round for prize money. All league players and VFW members are reminded of the second annual VFW fourth District Golf outing at White Pines on Sunday, August 24th. Roll King Cops Playoff Victory In Wayside Golf

The leaders of the Lady of the Wayside Golf League, at Chevy Chase battled Tuesday, August 5th, to determine who was to enter the Paddock tournament. Roll King and Gerbing Mfg. Corp. entered the deciding week in a tie with 39 points apiece. Roll King came out on top Tuesday with a five to two victory. Don Engstrom, Dave Marini and Joe Foreman were victorious for Roll King with Don getting low net. Oscar Dalleslarger and Bob Ulbrich, Sr. picked up Gerbing's points. Good luck in the tournament, Roll King!

The following evening in regular league play the two teams continued to battle head and head to the wire. Gerbing picked up five points and so did Roll King. With but two weeks of regular season play left, it looks like one of these teams should win the trophy. August 20th will be position round night so that Arlington Milk and Lauterburg and Oehler have an outside chance of sneaking in by coming up with some lopsided victories.

CHUCK CRONIN led his Gerbing Mfg. team to a five to two win over Continental Can Wednesday evening. His 42-7-35 enabled him to defeat Howie Johnson two and one. In the remaining matches, it was Oscar Dalleslarger two up over Tony Marini, Bob Ulbrich, Sr. two up over Hank Wist, Tom Strass (C. C.) three and one over Frank Plennert (Gerbing) and Dick Ulbrich (C. C.) shaded Augie Bonucchi on the final hole.

Roll King kept pace by trimming Garden Liquor five and two. None of Roll King's members lost a match with victories scored by Don Engstrom, Dave Marini and Tom McGrath with Jack Witzig and Bob Pagliai chipping in with a tie apiece. Bill Hickey picked up individual low net between the two teams but still couldn't win his match with a 51-16-35. Jack Boland and Tom Barrett received a ½ point each for tying their opponents.

Arlington Milk, the hottest team in the second round, snowed under Lauterburg and Oehler, six to one. Bob Wirth's three and one win over Jordan Italia was the only victory for L & O. Ed Keegans 48-17-31 for Arl. Milk was low net for the league. Other victors for the dairymen were Bob Botterman, Lou Stefanik and Mert Taylor. Taylor's 40 gross was low for the league.

Birdies were shot by Chuck Cronin on No. 11, Oscar Dalleslarger on No. 10 and Mert Taylor on No. 3.

Title Contenders Falter In Rob Roy Ladies Golf

Team play on August 7 in the Rob Roy Ladies Golf League made little change in the team standings. The also-ran teams came to life and caused considerable damage to the would-be contenders. Next week Prairie Lee challenges Town & Country for their chance to move up, while O'Hare tries to gain lost ground by taking on Webber's. Helen Lee of Hagenbring's sank her approach shot on hole 11 for the thrill of the week.

B. McPherson's 38 net paced Town & Country to a 4½ point win over Morava to give them a good lead for the final weeks of play. Hagenbring's S. Jones' 41 net helped them take five points from Webber's, just enough to ruin Webber's chance to move in or the leaders, but not enough to hold their own.

CAPT. L. LEWIN carded a 38 for the net point for Prairie Lee, but Arlington Pharmacy were still able to collect five points to keep them in their place. Heights Liquors O. Fitzpatrick's 39 net gave them the chance to collect five points from Keefer's. M. O'Donnell's 39 net sparked Des Plaines Liquors to a 7½ point rout of O'Hare, and pulled them back a notch while gaining ground themselves. L. Kaunzinger of Senne's and S. Hoffman of Spiegler's tied the net with a 40, but Senne's came out with 4½ points to Spiegler's 3½.

The weekly event was low gross. The first three positions played the back nine, and the last two positions played the front. The winners are as follows:

L. Lewin	49
P. Farrell	53
E. Getz	58
B. McPherson	57
V. Foy	60

The team standings are as follows:

Cleaners Capture First In Scratch Golf Action

State and Rand, after enjoying a two week stay in first place, enough to earn them the scratch league's berth in the Paddock tourney, was dropped from the league lead as Griffith Insurance, wallowing near the cellar, rose to the occasion by scoring an impressive 5-2 victory. Although the losers had four men shooting 39 or better, it wasn't enough as Don Hamburg shot a one under par 35, Al Griffith 37 and Ken Fuhr 37 to lead the victors. All three had bogey fours on the last hole.

Moving into first place by virtue of a 5½-1½ win over Webber Paint was L-Nor Cleaners. Led by Don Hager's one under par 34 and Len Arnold's 35, their winning total was just enough to take over the lead by ½ point. Al Greene was low for the losers with 35.

LOHR'S PHARMACY, after having seemingly dropped from contention two weeks ago, had its second good night in a row as they again racked up 5½ points, this time against Kamps Signs, to move within two points of first. Dave Borgardt had a fine one under par 34 to lead his team to this all important victory.

With Ed Moehling shooting 36, Sterling Oil, a contender for the first time exchanged places with fourth place Peterson Floor by beating them in a tight match 4 to 3. Bruno Waara paced the losers with a 37.

Starting this Friday August 15 the tee-off deadline will be 6:15 p.m.

Weekend Races Mark Return For Two Drivers

Two drivers recently involved in spectacular crashes are slated to be back in the thick of the action for the new-late model stock cars at O'Hare Stadium, Mannheim and Irving Park rds., Saturday and Sunday.

Kenny Paulson of Stone Park had the entire front end of his 1958 Ford torn away from the frame when he was ridden into and over the top of the crash wall by Jack Young of Franklin Park. Fortunately, neither driver was injured.

Black's Holds Twilight Lead By Six Points

Black's Memorial continues in first for the fifth week in the Arlington Heights Twilight Golf League. The record of this team has been unusual, although they have not been below fourth during the past ten weeks, they have never been over 6 points ahead of the second place team. The second place team is Fergus Ford with an average of 72/3 points per match for the past six weeks. Koops Mustard is third by one point. Only four points separate the five teams contending for the place and show positions. The three remaining matches should be real crazy.

Dahl-Olson, Inc., with five wins, captured the team honors for the evening with an 11-1 win over Stan's Standard Service. A low net 30 was credited to alternate Leo Behrens who was playing on the Koops Mustard team. Birds were tallied by Cecil Jamison, Len Haines, Rudy Lippke, Warren Broadbent, John Pergler, Jim Smethurst, A. Seyler, and Bob Kreutz.

Paul Troyke was splitting his match with brother John. Norm Pfortmiller and Harold Albers had the most interesting match of this first-place battle, as Norm won three points for his losing cause on the last hole of play. Area Builder To Confer On European Housing

An internationally known builder of homes and apartments, with two multi-million dollar developments in the Chicago area, has left for Europe to confer with building experts of several nations in an effort to aid them in their housing problems.

He is Norman K. Winston, chairman of the board of Winston Park Corp., with homes in Melrose Park, and Winston Park Northwest Corp., now constructing a $45 million housing, shopping and industrial center in Palatine.

WINSTON, who recently was appointed special advisor on trade fairs to the U.S. department of commerce, and David Muss, president of Winston Park, are pioneers of mass housing developments in this country. They have built more than $250 million in residential, shopping center, apartment and office building projects across the nation.

NORMAN K. WINSTON

While in Europe Winston will consult with architects, bankers and government officials. He feels that foreign countries will benefit by setting up government-backed home mortgage programs similar to our FHA.

"The freatest stumbling block to solving the world housing shortage at present is the inability or unwillingness of individual governments to assist in home financing," said Winston.

HE ADVOCATED government financial aid to help low and middle income families climb out of disease-ridden slums. Winston explained that most homes and apartments now being built abroad are of the luxury class and are not helping solve the acute housing shortage.

His suggestion is for long term mortgages ranging from 20 to 50 years at low interest as the key to solving many of the housing problems.

Winston has been invited to visit Russia, Poland, Yugoslavia and Austria. His first stop will be in France where government authorities will discuss a plan for underwriting a home financing program. He will also supervise the completion of his 300 unit colony in Wissous, near Paris.

ANOTHER VISIT on Winston's tour will be to his multi-million dollar project of moderately priced homes in Aviles, Spain. The development will house 18,000 steelworkers and includes an American style supermarket, movie theater, schools and churches.

Projecting his ideas as America's ambassador of trade shows and building consultant, Winston said, "Our mass production methods and specialization could be profitably employed by builders overseas.

"Our government will be happy to teach foreign builders the 'know how' of large scale production. There should be more of an interchange of committees of architects, land planners and construction engineers," he declared.

WINSTON emphasized the need for foreign building trades to instill specialization. "By each workman doing his own particular job, greater efficiency and savings will be realized," he explained.

"In all of these countries proper mortgage financing and construction methods can help strengthen the economy and create better citizens," added Winston. (BB

Williamson To Head '59 Boy Scout Fund Campaign

ROBERT W. WILLIAMSON

Robert W. Williamson, 498 N. Inverway rd., Palatine, has been appointed as the chairman for the 1959 operating fund campaign for the Northwest Suburban Council of the Boy Scouts of America, according to Fred E. Welsh, council president.

Williamson states, "The Northwest Suburban council of scouts will launch its annual operating fund drive October 24, to procure ample funds to meet the increasing boy population and to further stimulate the scouting program throughout the northwest suburban area." The goal for the 1959 fund campaign will be $115,000.

Williamson is secretary and general counsel for the Jewel Tea Co. He has been associated with the Jewel Tea organization for the past 13 years.

Following graduation from the University of Michigan with an A.B. degree, Williamson received an L.L.B. degree from Harvard Law school.

Williamson is a member of the board of education of Palatine township high school, and has served as legislative advisor for the Palatine PTA for two years. He is a member of the Illinois State Bar association, Chicago Bar association and The Chicago Tax club. He is a past president of the Inverness association.

Williamson has been active in scouting in the Northwest Suburban council for the past seven years through the scouting interests of his two scout sons, Robert, 15, and Michael Binney, 10.

Williamson states, "The Northwest Suburban Boy Scout council is one of the ten fastest growing scout councils in the country and the registered boy membership will be in excess of 10,000 by Dec. 31, 1958 . . . 4,000 registered volunteer adult scout leaders are presently giving service and leadership to this vast group of cub scouts, boy scouts and explorers."

The boy population available to the services of the Northwest Suburban Scout council has increased by 3,834 in the past 16 months. There are presently 22,375 boys of Scout age (ages 8 through 16) now available in the council area. Of this boy crop, 38.5 per cent are currently being served as registered scouts.

The 21 suburban communities being served by the Northwest Suburban Boy Scout council are: Arlington Heights, Barrington, Buffalo Grove, Des Plaines, Elk Grove, Hoffman Estates, Inverness, Lake Zurich, Lincolnwood, Morton Grove, Mt. Prospect, Niles, Palatine, Prospect Heights, Park Ridge, Rolling Meadows, Schaumburg, Schiller Park, Skokie, Tower Lake and Wheeling.

The Northwest Suburban Boy Scout council is an active and participating member of the Des Plaines, Schiller Park, and Suburban Community Chests; the Niles Township Combined Community Chest and Council; and the United Fund of Park Ridge, Inc.

Local Buyers At Gift Show

Mr. and Mrs. Fred O'Bert of O'Bert's Jewelers and Mr. and Mrs. C. Delmar Jarvis of the House of Jarvis, both of Arlington Heights, were among the nation's gift and decorative accessory buyers attending the Chicago gift show, which ends today.

Setting the pace for what is expected to be the economy's autumn upturn, buyers here are generally ordering more heavily than a year ago for new seasonal and holiday sales. Retail inventories are abnormally low for this time of year, while consumer spending for the home is continuing strong.

The semi-annual Chicago Gift show is held in the Palmer House and LaSalle Hotel here, and is the trade event at which new home accessory fashions are launched for distribution by the country's department stores and specialty shops. For many retailers, this is their only opportunity to meet the manufacturers and importers of merchandise they'll be selling during the year. Buyers attend the show to see what's new, to buy, to make business contacts and to pick up the latest in merchandising know-how.

New Industrial Building Shows Business Pickup

The Chicago metropolitan area is moving into a "better business climate."

This forecast is from the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry which reports industrial development investments in the metropolitan area are running ahead of the 1957 level for the period January through July.

INDUSTRIAL development investments announced in July totaled $45,817,000. This more than doubled the previous high monthly figure this year—$22,676,000 in May.

The upturn in new plant construction and expansion "definitely denotes a better business climate ahead for this area," said Thomas G. Ayers, the association's vice president for industrial development.

Total investments for the first seven months this year were $123,167,000, compared with $120,131,000 in the corresponding 1957 period.

AMONG PROJECTS announced in July:

Standard Oil Company of Indiana has plans for a new petroleum products terminal at Touhy ave. and Elmhurst rd. northwest of O'Hare Field. The plant will be on a 40-acre site on which storage tanks for gasoline, fuel oil and jet fuels will be erected as well as a new office building.

A 23-mile pipeline will be installed to connect with Standard's products line serving its main terminal at 4811 S. Harlem ave.

Completion is scheduled for 1959.

ALL WEATHER Steel Products, Inc., a steel fabricator located near Des Plaines, is erecting a new 20,000 square foot plant in the Centex Industrial District in Elk Grove. The company will move its entire operations to the new location.

Deublin company in Glenview is erecting a new plant containing 7,000 square feet of floor area in Northbrook to which the company will move its operation. The company manufactures swivel joints.

Hauserman Die and Machine company, Addison, will relocate to a newly-purchased plant in the same suburb. The company makes molds, dies and similar products.

Insurance President Cites Record

Leonard D. Kliff, 528 Shadywood lane, Elk Grove Village, area representative of the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance company, has qualified to attend a regional conference of the company leaders at French Lick, Ind., August 17-19.

The program at the three-day conference will be devoted to a discussion of new markets, economic trends and methods of maintaining high standards of service to policyholders.

Hardware Dealer Honored

The Ace Hardware store in the Rolling Meadows shopping center was honored in the August issue of Hardware Retailer for its unique self service in the "truest sense."

A photograph showed a customer serving himself by bagging and pricing bolts, screws, cut hooks and other small hardware items. The company feels any loss is more than made up by the saving of sales peoples' time.

This will be Karst's second year at the school, which requires two weeks' resident attendance each year for three years for a certificate of graduation. Between resident sessions students are required to do extension work involving problems in all phases of banking.

The school is sponsored by the Central States conference, composed of bankers' associations in 16 midwestern states. In attendance this year will be some 1,125 bankers, including junior and senior officers of banks in 40 states. INITIAL PLANS for all-out promotion of the Inaugural Race on September 14 at the world's finest sports car race-track, Meadowdale Raceways, located near Carpentersville have been announced by Sol Polk, president of Polk Bros. stores, and Leonard Besinger, builder of the race-track.

Polk Bros. will be exclusive agents for advance ticket sales. "Chicagoland is indeed fortunate in having close access to a sports car racetrack of this caliber," stated Mr. Polk. "Right and left turns numbering fifteen in all, including a 45 degree banked turn that surpasses the famed Monza turn in Italy, plus a downgrade speedway more than a mile long, will put severe tests to both driving skill and mechanical performance. What's more Meadowdale is the safest race trac kin the world, since more than 97% of the racing area is below the position of observers. There is ample room for families to relax and enjoy a picnic lunch. Meadowdale Raceways is another important first for Chicago in its constant endeavor to maintain a leading position as the country's center of outstanding sports events."

Tickets for the premiere performance of Meadowdale Raceway, including time trials on Saturday, September 13 and the full schedule of main events on Sunday, September 14, are now on sale at all Polk stores.

Pink Bag Found, Green Stuff Gone

Skokie police have investigated the mystery of the missing money in the pink paper bag, following a theft report from a receptionist at Smart Style Beauty shop, 4859 Oakton.

The receptionist told officers she placed $500 in cash and $65 in checks in a pink paper bag and placed the bag on a box under her desk.

She stated that she left the office for a short while, and returned to find the money, and bag, gone.

A search of the area turned up the bag—in a garbage can. A cleaning woman stated she may have thrown out the pink bag while emptying waste baskets, but that she saw no money in it.

Higher Speed Limits Cut Violations on Highways

The Illinois state highway department has discovered that the posting of higher maximum speed limits on certain Illinois highways has resulted in more proper driving compliance from motorists.

Last year, the state legislature authorized a revision of speed limits on Illinois highways. Since that law became effective July 1, 1957, legal maximum speeds have been raised on a majority of the restricted speed zones on the Illinois highway system.

HARRY H. HARRISON, state traffic engineer, has revealed that approximately 70 per cent of all speed control zones on state highways, urban and rural, have been studied to date; of the zones studies, 60 per cent have been assigned new maximum limits.

Harrison, who expects the entire state highway system to have been studied by November 1, said that increased speed limits have been authorized in 1,167 zones. The speed limits were lowered in 23 zones, the maximum was left unchanged in 619, and 94 new restricted speed zones were created.

Matthew C. Sielski, director of the Motor club's safety and traffic engineering department, points out that an increase in posted speed limits does not mean an increase in motoring speed. Said Sielski:

"Safety engineering studies have shown that improper speed limits tend to breed disrespect for the law. It is natural for the motorist to proceed at the speed he thinks is normally safe, and therefore many will exceed abnormally low posted limits."

THIS IS BORNE out by surveys on highways affected by the higher speed limits. In a special study at 30 of the zones where the limit was raised, radar checks showed that before the change maximums were being violated by 63.3 per cent of passenger cars drivers and 55.8 per cent of truck and bus drivers. After the new limits were posted, 17.2 per cent of the passenger cars and 12.3 per cent of the trucks and busses exceeded the higher limit.

"This shows," said Sielski, "that proper posting of speed limits will get a more proper compliance from the driving public than improper signs. Contrary to public opinion, the posting of improper speed limits does not necessarily lower the speed of drivers."

Four-Day March Is Endurance Test

by BILL DILLINGHAM

The four-day long-distance marches took place July 22 in Holland. Women sixty-years-old were among the participants. This is a type of endurance test that requires some marchers to walk thirty-four miles per day.

For many years this event has taken place each summer in Holland. This time the marchers began from the town of Nijmegen. Over 15,000 people from at least a dozen different countries participated.

The purpose of these four-day marches has been stated by the Netherlands League for Physical Culture: to train people to be able to walk long distances daily. Beyond that, no other explanation has been given.

The marchers split up into groups and were allowed to have an "attendant." This person handled various chores and was allowed to ride on a bicycle if he chose.

A typical group started off at 3:45 a.m. If they were women, short pants or slacks were not allowed. Dresses were the uniform of the day. Men, however, were allowed to wear shorts if they wished. Women above 55 years of age were required to walk only eighteen miles per day. Those above age sixteen had to march 25 miles in the same period of time.

Men who were 70-years-old or more had to march 18 miles daily. The most difficult distance was placed upon men who were in the uniform of the Netherlands government. Postmen, for instance, had to do the full daily 34 miles provided they were within the proper age group.

Rewards for completion of such an endurance test were varied. For a first-timer, a gilded bronze cross attached to a ribbon was given. Those who managed the trial successfully for 11 straight years were awarded the gilded silver crown.

These prizes may seem unimportant to those living far from Holland, but to a local such a medal marks considerable achievement.

County Approves Sidewalk Rules

A sidewalk ordinance and another that tightens control over subdividers have been adopted by the Cook county board.

Cement sidewalks now must be installed by developers in all R-4 and R-5 residential zones in unincorporated areas. Lots in these districts contain 10,000 square feet or less in land area each. The walks must be five feet wide and five inches thick.

The amendment was adopted Tuesday along with another whose stated purpose is to protect home buyers from the few unscrupulous builders who cheat on street, drainage, and sewer facilities.

UNDER THE new law, the county now won't issue building permits until a subdivider submits an inspection certificate from a licensed engineer showing that the subdivision has been established in accordance with the original layout and specifications approved by the county.

The county also will not release the subdivider's performance bond until the certificate is submitted. Performance bonds which cover the estimated construction cost of street, drainage, and sewer facilities—are required to insure completion of the work.

The stricter controls were recommended by William J. Mortimer, county highway superintendent, who said they're aimed at "fly-by-night outfits."

MORTIMER emphasized that most subdividers are honest. "They have to be to stay in business," he said. "But two or three fly-by-nights have sold lots to would-be home owners, telling the buyers that streets and sewers will be put in. Then they skipped town before the work was completed and after having told the county the work is properly done."

The burden of proof now is on the subdividers. Mortimer said the county can't afford to furnish engineers for the inspections because the expense is much more than the permit fees collected.

Truck Gardeners Picnic August 16

Cook County Truck Gardeners and Farmers association will hold its annual picnic Saturday, August 16, at Luxembourg Gardens, 6211 Lincoln ave., Morton Grove.

Gates open at 6 p.m. and there is no admission fee. Music by Homer's Melody Makers will feature entertainment of dancing, games, and contests. Lunch and refreshments will be served.

Long Grove Church Revives "Old Fashioned" Picnic

The Congregation of Long Grove church revived an old custom recently with an "old fashioned" church picnic, complete with horseshoe pitching, children's games, and the most important ingredient — good food.

Many years ago it was the custom for members of the church to bring their lunch to church. This was necessitated by the long distances some of them traveled in going to Sunday morning worship services.

Although the advent of the automobile may have eliminated the original need of eating on the church grounds, it hasn't destroyed the fun involved.

After enjoying a delicious meal of fried chicken, barbecued ribs, tasty salads, various forms of potatoes, and fresh rasberries or deep dish apple pie, or both, or all, the congregation watched a full afternoon of games.

Youngsters scrambled after pennies in a sandbox, staged an egg-throwing contest, sought marshmallows on a string, stuffed themselves with watermelon, and struggled through a tug-of-war.

Such fun was provided by the outing that church members must have somewhat regretted Henry Ford's invention.

FRIED CHICKEN makes an isolationist of this Long Grove youngster, who obviously likes to concentrate on his meal.

ESPECIALLY POPULAR with the younger children was the search for pennies in playground sandbox. Despite energetic clawing by some 20 tots, the sand still contained hidden "gold" at the end of the picnic.

POTLUCK WAS extremely lucky for picnickers as there was no shortage of good cooks in the Long Grove congregation. Hearty eaters wore a path along the table as they went back for seconds and thirds without embarrassment.

WET FACES dig into watermelons in traditional contest. Participants were somewhat hampered by the big meal they had devoured just an hour before.

DICK KEILER (at left) has shocked expression as he bows out of egg-throwing contest. Yolk-covered hand is his reward for catching throw from partner.

ELUSIVE MARSHMALLOWS (at right) challenge youngsters' persistency. No hands allowed as strong necks and big mouths produce a champion.

Menasha Skulnik Stars in Comedy

The Edgewater Beach playhouse ends its greatest season with the beloved, hilarious Menasha Skulnik starring in his laugh hit "Uncle Willie," August 18-31. He starred in the comedy on Broadway last year, where it was called "a rare comic portrait."

"Uncle Willie" is the final show of the Edgewater season. Beautiful Ann Sheridan continues in "Kind Sir" through Saturday evening, August 16.

Skulnik, sometimes called the Yiddish Charlie Chaplin, is well known for his role as Uncle David on the Molly Goldberg radio and TV shows. A long-time favorite in Chicago in his riotous

MENASHA SKULNIK

Yiddish musicals and plays, he made his English speaking debut in "The Fifth Season" in a two-year run on Broadway. He followed with "The Flowering Peach" on Broadway, and last season was given new praise by New York critics for "Uncle Willie."

IN "UNCLE WILLIE," Skulnik plays the role of a door-to-door salesman from Linsk, which is half-way between Pinsk and Minsk, whose insistent efforts to solve everybody's problems land him in hot water through the entire evening.

The large Edgewater Beach playhouse case has many of the actors who appeared with him on Broadway in the same hit comedy. They include Sylvia Burnell, Gary Davis, Janet Keith Carter, Pirie MacDonald, Barbara Louis, Dorothy Raymond, Kathy Dunn, Joan Terrace, Kenneth Paine and Charles Farmer.

"Uncle Willie" has the heaviest advance sale in the very successful playhouse season. It will end the happy year on a high comedy note.

In The Shadow Of The Steeple

Animals of the Forest And Power of the Skunk

By WILLIAM McGILL

It used to be the rule in the Green Wood that all of the animals of the forest made way for the skunk when he walked along the path. There seemed to be no reason for it when they stopped to think about it. The little bears stepped aside and left the path to the skunks as they walked along. They did it because the big bears also stepped aside, and taught them to do so.

The little foxes whose first feats of bravery included snapping at the heels of the lumbering bears, or chasing squirrels, also turned aside to let the skunk pass. The older foxes always taught them not to use craftiness or trickery where the skunks were concerned.

THE INTERESTING fact was that after several generations, none of the animals of the Green Wood seemed to have any idea why the skunk received such treatment. Even the skunks seemed to have forgotten. It was always done that way. Clearly, the skunks must have a kind of hereditary right to the paths.

In the rabbit warrens, the young ones asked, "Why do we have to be careful whenever the fox or the hawk is about, and the skunk does not? Why do all the big animals and the birds leave the skunk alone and why do they pick on us?" But the old ones had no answer.

In the dens of the foxes, the young ones asked, "Why can't we snap up a fat little skunk? They don't run nearly as fast as the rabbits; we could catch one easy. Why do we have to leave the skunks alone? What right have they to walk along as though they were king of the forests?"

HIGH ON THE cliff, the younk hawks were asking the same kinds of questions. "Why can't we swoop down on a young skunk? The rabbits are quick and their brown color does not show up well against the ground. The mice and ground squirrels are so small and make such a poor target. But the skunk—ah, who can't see them from almost any height! Those white stripes on that glossy black back — we could land on them so squarely! Why can't we?

In this particular forest, none of the older generations seemed to remember the answer. They told their children what their parents had told them.

It may seem strange that even the skunks no longer remembered. But then, there seemed to be no reason why anyone should know. The little skunks were assured that they could walk boldly along, and fear no evil. The wise parents tried to teach their children not to be arrogant in this expression of their family right. But then, if children know that everyone will get out of their way, they are likely to be bullying in their attitude.

SO MATTERS WENT—until the day that a young fox did something which young people frequently do. He decided to do that which his parents had told him not to do. He had made his decision thoughtfully, deliberately. He would no longer just get out of the way of the skunk. He would run down one of the fat little creatures and have himself a tasty snack.

And there was a skunk in the path! The fox snarled softly—this was a new thing to the young skunk. He hesitated, then seeing the fox come toward him, he turned and ran. He ran in the peculiar shuffle which skunks have. Their back high and wide, and they walk on the soles of their feet instead of the toes as most other animals do. A running skunk is a strange sight.

The fox ran after him. It was a short run because the skunk was unused to being chased, and he was being chased by one in whom the instincts of the chase were bred for generations. The skunk missed a turn in the path and found himself squarely against a large boulder.

HE HUNCHED over to protect himself against the leap. As he did so, he felt a muscle contract. It was a muscle he had never used before.

The young fox let out a yelp of anguish, turned and fled howling. He stopped momentarily to rub his nose in the ground. He howled. He fled. He came to the lake and leaped into it.

All over the Green Wood animals stopped, sniffed. "What in the world is that?" They dug into their burrows or dens, covered their heads with leaves. After a few moments, they dug themselves out, sniffed, and dug in deeper.

In a few hours, the scent was less strong; the animals began to gather to compare notes. What happened? Had men come around with a new secret weapon against the animals? Was the forest about to disappear in a new stage of development? Had the older generations ever said anything about this?

THE YOUNG FOX came around to try to tell him. They all drove him away, even his own family joining the howls and yelps which drove him off. The eldest skunk came by. He was very old but he dimly remembered from his youth that his grandparents had told him about the skunk's protection.

"This is why," he added, "your parents and grandparents have told you to avoid the skunk. It's a powerful weapon and skunks only use it to protect themselves."

'Steak City' To Have Sirloin Dinners at $1.09

A new restaurant, The Flame's "Steak City," will open its doors Wednesday, Aug. 20, at 11:00 a.m. with all the grand opening festivities usually associated with an event of this importance to the area.

Located at Lincoln and Touhy aves. on Chicago's northwest section which is the gateway to the northshore, The Flame's "Steak City" is only a short one-half mile east of Edens Highway at Touhy, or on Lincoln ave. which at that point is U.S. 41.

OPENING WITH a wonderful new idea in restaurants, "Steak City" will offer a unique menu of only one entree, every day and all day at one price. The entree, a sirloin steak served with a baked potato, salad and toasted French roll, all for the price of $1.09.

The new restaurant is under the same operation and management of the very successful and popular Flame Restaurant located at 160 N. State st. in downtown Chicago. Since its opening a year ago, nearly a million steak dinners have been served at the popular $1.09 price.

The grand opening will be supported by music, lights, gayety, favors for the children, and a galaxy of awards including two mink stoles, six fur-trimmed cashmere sweaters, two bicycles, 50 baseball gloves, 50 dolls, a year's free car washes, and tickets to "Around The World In 80 Days."

An intimate cocktail lounge, set well apart from the main dining rooms so as to present no problem to those who do not wish to enter it, especially if children are in their party, will be part of the facilities of "Steak City." (Bill

Passing Laws Is Half the Battle

by LELAND ELLIS TRUXELL

"There ought to be a law," is an often heard phrase in this country, and the result has been an ever increasing number of laws on the statute books; yet we find that the incidence of crime is increasing and this is particularly true among juveniles.

If laws are passed to restrict crime, then according to the record number we have on the books, crime should be at an all time low. The truth is that while they offer punishment, and have kept our society from complete control by gangsters and hoodlums, laws are not enough.

WE SPEAK much of the "incentive" system in industry. Why not try using incentives on a greater scale than it is now used through youth organizations in bringing up our children? Why not try the incentive of love?

Too many children who should have the patient and constant supervision of their parents, who should learn to do things with their parents rather than entirely on their own, who should benefit from the council and love which only a parent, and especially a good mother, can give, learn the hard way, by experience, from strangers, or from hired teachers at school. Many children grow up wondering if their parents really love them, and want them. They are likely to become cynical, self centered, shallow, with no family traditions, too little family pride and few good convictions and principles by which to live.

THERE IS nothing that can help a boy or girl more than the council and companionship of a good Christian mother who loves and helps her children, and is always available. There is no law as great as that of a father who, oy Christian living and high moral principles, disciplines his children with love, and wins their respect and obedience by being what they expect him to be.

Law can not replace parental love. It can, within limits, restrict crime and punish criminals. It can not give boys and girls the incentive to lead moral, Christian lives that grow out of love and respect for good parents. That requires the love, advice and care of Christian parents full time.

50 Years Ago

August 14, 1908

Many thanks for a nice rain Tuesday night in answer to a long petition. The cistern went dry in the morning; we cleaned it out in the afternoon and the next morning it was half full again — prompt action.

Parks, lawns, pastures, corn, potatoes, and all vegetation are suffering for lack of rain. We have had over a month of continuous drouth and no relief in sight yet. Extremes of any kind are undesirable.

The Socialist Party sent speakers out from Chicago who delivered two speeches on our streets but they didn't show a single convert at Arlington Heights in the primary election. Perhaps their disciples were bashful but will make score next November.

Arlington Heights — The Lecture course for the coming winter is assured of success. Prof. Gamble reports 134 season tickets already engaged and more spoken for. Remember you get seven good entertainments for only $1.50.

No paper next week. The editor has gone to St. Paul to attend the National Editorial Association.

The Republicans Clubs were hastily called together at Arlington Hall, Monday evening, Where and when they elected officers. E. H. Bolte will serve as president for precinct 1 and W. E. Shirrs as president of Precinct 3.

Charles S. Deneen won the Republican nomination for Governor in the State primary election. Richard Yates, although he lost, made a gallant fight. Adlai E. Stevenson carried away the honors in the gubernatorial fight on the Democratic side.

PALATINE — With all the talk about our village taxes being high, perhaps the agitators are not aware that the village was only allowed to collect a little over $2600 for general purposes last spring, while the school costs our tax payers nearly twice that amount. Our assessed valuation for 1907 was not even $140,000, and the law allows only a levy of two per cent for general purposes.

Political mass meetings will be held at Palatine and Arlington Heights soon to organize Taft German-American Republican Clubs and incidentally to secure recognition from the Cook County central committee for the German-American voters who are always depended on to roll up the Republican majorities, and hence should receive their share of the party patronage.

Sutton Station — It is reported that George Scheer has bought the Fehrman farm in Hanover at $100 an acre.

Miss Ruth Catlow has returned home after spending a few weeks with her sister in Wheeling.

George Mehsling and wife are living in the rooms over Fairchild's store. Mehsling is a new clerk in the store.

SCHAUMBURG — Among the ornaments at the Old Settlers Picnic Sunday was the policeman from Arlington Heights. Many young ladies looked wistfully at him, and if it hadn't been for fear of comment in being escorted by an officer with star and baton they would have tried to mash the handsome young man in uniform which always catches the heart of girls.

The voters of western Cook County are beginning to realize what permanent roads will mean to them. With the completion of Rand road, it is now possible for the city man to leave Chicago and travel in a northwesterly direction 28 miles from the court house without leaving concrete pavement. The farmers along this highway are buying auto trucks and Chicago papers of August 11 announced that the U. S. Government is planning the installation of an auto freight service over the Milwaukee ave., Ballard and Rand road highways, supplying Des Plaines, Mt. Prospect, Arlington Heights and Palatine with all the LCL freight. Work on Higgins road through the townships of Elk Grove, Schaumburg and Hanover is now being rushed.

Officials of townships in Cook county are thanking their lucky stars that Representative A. F. Volz got in his good work at Springfield last winter and succeeded in getting this county made the exception in the new law which provides that hereafter all the taxes shall be collected by the county treasurer. County treasurers have the habit of keeping tax money in their possession from two to six months before paying it to the township treasurer. The township collectors pay the money over at once — and it is usually needed at once by the township to pay their winter and spring road bills.

Arlington Heights Village Board refused the request of the county board for special permission contrary to village ordinance, that would allow the Higgins road paving contractor permission to haul his material from the Heights. The village officials refused the request, not from malice, but as a protection to the new streets of which we feel so proud and which cost us large sums of money.

PALATINE — Miss Frances Daniels returned from Milwaukee where she spent two weeks with her brother, Milton Daniels.

Dispatches from the French front announce that the Prairie Division of which several Palatine boys are members, is now fighting in the Picardy sector.

Overseas cards have been received from Henry Harmening, Paul Wilson, Louis Wagner, Darrel Perry and Fred Haemker.

Vogler-Schillo Company are receiving many bushels of cucumbers and are kept busy providing vats for their reception at their plant east of Tibbits, Cameron Lumber Co.

Miss Cassie Gainer has the distinction of being the first lady mail carrier in Palatine, she having taken her father's position as route 3 carrier, while he has his vacation.

Wheeling — Mr. Geo. Sicks is painting and varnishing the seats in the school house preparatory to the opening of the school year.

Can you beat your neighbor raising pumpkins? Have you put up a can of vegetables of which you are proud? Remember that old musket of Revolutionary War days in your attic. Bring them all to Wheeling's Third Annual Fall Festival in the Forest Preserve Sept. 3. Wheeling is prepared to go over the top with the festival. Two good speakers will be on hand and a Jackie Band will enliven the occasion with their music.

The picnic of Vitruvius Lodge No. 81 AF & AM held Aug. 11 in the Forest Preserve park was a great success. Good cheer prevailed on every hand. An address of welcome by E. H. Forke, Master, Harry Harvey, M. A. Michealson and others was the order.

West Northfield — Mrs. Chas. Sanders gave birth to a 10 pound baby boy.

Mrs. Christ John gave birth to a baby girl.

John Allex, who was the first man to enlist from Mt. Prospect, was also the first one to give up his life in the U. S. Service. Mrs. L. W. Wille received a telegram Monday morning, announcing the death of the young man who called her place "home."

ARLINGTON Heights — Jackies Roscoe Reed, Edward Mors, and Theodore Simroe were home from Great Lakes Sunday.

Mr. Jacob Harth has been helping his son on the old farm near Long Grove during harvest.

Mr. and Mrs. Linneweh are happy parents of their second baby born on their second wedding anniversary.

The editor believes that healthy men (and especially boys) are better off without stimulants of any kind — Liquors, tobacco and the disgusting cigarette are bad habits, which once acquired are hard to get rid of.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Doege were to Crystal Lake Sunday to visit friends but Mrs. E. Doege was scared when she saw the hills and high mountains they had to run over. She can't see how people make their living there as the crops look very poor and the corn is all dried up. She told Grandpa Doege that in all her five years theatrical travel she never saw such poor looking county, and was proud to return home to the beautiful country around Arlington Heights.

Richard Runge is doing a double duty in defeating the Kaiser. He has been spending several months at Arizona training as soldier. Now he is spending a month helping in the harvest of grain to feed the people at home. He has a months leave of absence to help on his father's farm and he was greatly needed to take care of the big crop.

If pay day would come every two weeks instead of once a month, everybody would feel more like working. Money comes in handy now days.

People who own rabbits should cage them up, as they ruin the second crop of young beans which were planted for canning.

ROSELLE — Ed Nerge has an exciting experience with a gasoline tank Friday. His soldering torch ignited the small amount of gas in the tank. An explosion followed which blew out the windows in the rear of Gieseke's hardware store.

Schaumburg — Everyone in town is missing the creamery whistle at the noon hour, it seems Emil Nerge took the whistle with him to give it a week's vacation also.

Wood Dale — F. W. Mueller has painted and papered the Wood Dale district school, which is now ready for school sessions. Directors would like to hear from a teacher who wants a school as they have not hired one yet.

The women who are raising the question whether the girls should marry soldiers on their way to France are usually too old to be asked.

Bloomingdale — You can easily guess why A. W. Marquardt and family are so happy. A much-desired girl baby came Aug. 18 to make her home with them. Her four brothers are glad to have a sister to pet.

Itasca — Mr. Fred Broker of Wood Dale aged about 70 years was instantly killed while walking on the track between Bensenville and Wood Dale Wednesday. He has used the CM & St. P. RR track as his sidewalk for years and never met any mishap before. His father was killed in the same way over 30 years ago. Mr. Broker has two sons in the U. S. service, Otto in France and August at Gettysburg Camp.

Bensenville — Mr. and Mrs. Emil Dohe are proud parents of a fighting soldier boy born Aug. 12.

A very exciting accident occured Sunday evening when Harry Runge backed with full speed into Fremont Stellman's car. The damage was slight. It sure was exciting but it didn't last long.

The hardware stock of Otto Landmeier was moved into its new building two weeks ago, but the official opening is taking place this week. A special interest to the public is the Landmeier building which represents the very latest in construction and many features are embodied in this building that are found in few other business blocks erected in Arlington Heights up to the present time.

The building represents a dream Mr. Landmeier has long had to celebrate his 25th anniversary as a merchant in Arlington Heights by giving to the town a model hardware store. With that store he is giving to the general public fourteen model apartments and at moderate rentals.

If rumors which are floating about Palatine can be believed the Palatine business district is due for a vast improvement wave in the near future.

Bids are being received for the wrecking of the "brick" block known to old timers as the "Batterman" block and erected in 1884 at which time it was one of the sky scrapers of this territory.

For many years this huge structure has had very few tenants as it is out of date for modern purposes.

First White Child Born in Palatine 120 Years Ago

Reprint from Palatine Enterprise August 17, 1928

Mrs. M. L. Pinney, the first white child to be born in Palatine Township is ninety years old today, August 17. She was born in Palatine township and has lived here ever since that time. For the past 46 years she has lived in her present home.

She told of her "sparking days" when a big, handsome railroad conductor came to build the North Western railway through Palatine. This man, M. L. Pinney, finished his job in 1853, but before he moved to another stretch of railroad building he married the 15 year old lassie. Mr. Pinney died eight years ago at the age of 91.

When she was asked to tell her earliest recollections, she recounted how she heard her folks tell of the great wolf hunt in Palatine in 1839. Wolves had become so destructive that the farmers organized a great hunt to kill off the pests. From the Des Plaines to the Fox rivers east and west, and from Indian creek on the north to Dunklee's grove on the south, every foot of territory was swept by the enraged farmers. It was intended to drive all the wolves into Plum Grove just south of the site of the future village. Here on elevated platforms the sharpshooters were perched in waiting.

"But they didn't kill a wolf," she chuckled. "I guess the wolves found out they were coming and got away. But we never had a wolf around here after that. We had plenty of deer though. They were so tame and there were so many of them they used to come into my father's barnyard and feed with the cattle.

"My father was Ezekiel Cady. He came by team from Tabery, Oneida county, N.Y. in June, 1837. He started with horses, but they began to give out, so he traded them for a team of oxen and got there that way. He looked at Chicago but wouldn't think of stopping in that swamp. A lot of people wouldn't live in Chicago at that time on account of the mud.

"It was a two day journey from here to Chicago in those days. I remember one time when my father was gone to the city for a supply of food, that seven Indians came along and stopped at our house for something to eat. 'I have nothing to give you but Indian meal,' I said — that was corn meal. And when the Indians tasted it they laughed and made a great show of being glad to get it."

MOSQUITOS STOPPED BY INVISIBLE WALL

New "MOSQUITO-BAN" repels mosquitos—just scatter on yard or patio

Now you can thoroughly enjoy outdoor living without maddening mosquitos to bite you or your guests. "Mosquito-Ban" can be used for picnics, parties, barbecues, and around swimming pools and patios, banishing mosquitos from the area like magic. There's no spray, no smoke, no application to the skin — just sprinkle a clean, granular material on the ground or patio and mosquitos miraculously disappear.

Tested in Illinois

"Mosquito-Ban" is a new material developed by a University of Illinois professor and tested by the Illinois Mosquito Control Association. It has been used by mosquito control districts for several years and now is available in quantities suitable for backyard use.

Long lasting protection

Just one pound of "Mosquito-Ban" will cover an average backyard and the effects last from a day to several weeks, depending on the weather. For best results, the application should be made an hour or two before the area is to be used.

Harmless to plants and pets

The basic material in "Mosquito-Ban" is golden-colored vermiculite which can be broadcast by hand or by an ordinary fertilizer spreader. It does not harm plants or soil and it is not dangerous to pets when applied.

Money-Back guarantee

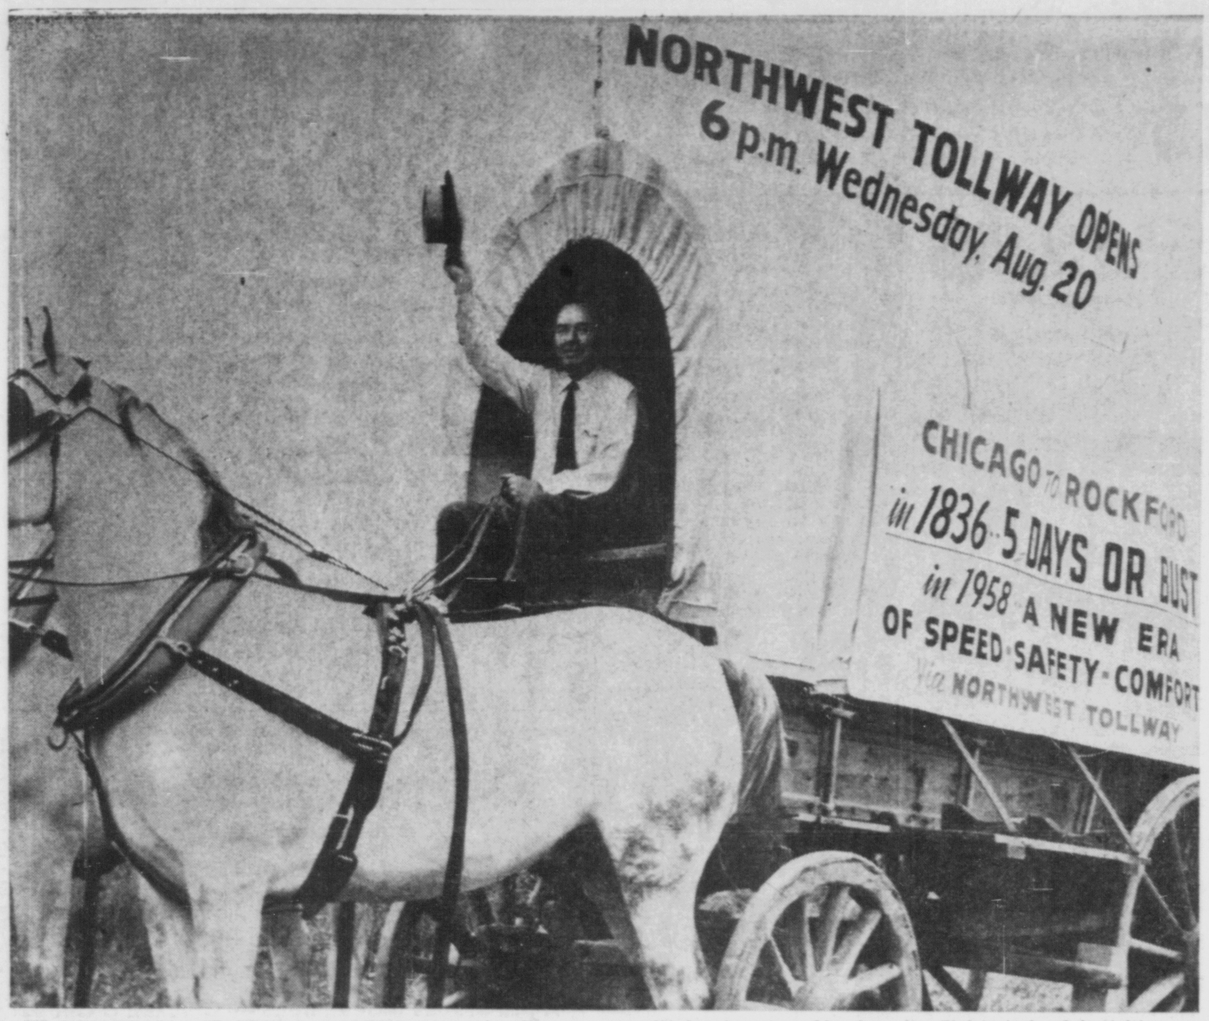

Order the package containing two 2-pound bags of "Mosquito-Ban." Use the first bag and if you are not completely satisfied that it keeps all mosquitos away, return the second bag and we will refund the entire purchase price of both bags without question.

HI, NEIGHBOR! CHARLES L. DEARING, executive director of The Illinois State Toll Highway Commission, waves a friendly greeting as he oversees preparations for re-enactment of an early Illinois scene. On Saturday, Aug. 16, this prairie schooner will leave Chicago's Loop for the 85-mile drive to Rockford, a trip which is expected to take five days, with brief stops at communities along Route 20. It is scheduled to arrive in Rockford on Wednesday, Aug. 20, where it will join in local festivities as a caravan of cars, officially opening the Northwest Tollway that afternoon, will catch up with the covered wagon. The Prairie Schooner's trip highlights the difference between travel time in the old days and under modern tollway conditions: 85 miles in five days then; a mile a minute now. The Northwest Tollway will be opened to public traffic at 6 p. m. Aug. 20.

Horse-Drawn Cart To Travel Tollway

A horse-drawn Conestogo wagon, the "prairie schooner" of pioneer days, will leave Chicago's loop on the morning of Saturday, August 16.

Five days later, it will arrive in Rockford, and there the transportation modes of 1836 and 1958 will meet in strong contrast.

DESPITE THE wagon's five-day head start and five stops for ceremonies enroute, the Illinois Tollway Dedication Committee's caravan of automobiles headed by Governor Stratton and the prairie schooner will arrive simultaneously at their destination. This is the Northwest Tollway's route 20 interchange east of Rockford where ceremonies will open the tollway to the public.

The wagon, with John Madsen, 62, of Maywood, behind the reins, will make brief stops at communities along the tollway as it proceeds to Rockford. There the wagon will be boarded by appropriately-garbed descendants of Rockfordians who actually traveled to that city by prairie schooner more than a century ago. As Governor William G. Stratton declares the Northwest Tollway officially open, the covered wagon will retire from the scene and automobiles will move in to signal the arrival of a new era in travel.

Itinerary of the old-time vehicle calls for stops or passage through the following communities, beginning Saturday, August 16:

Northwest through Chicago along Milwaukee Avenue to the entrance to Northwest Tollway at Devon Avenue, Saturday afternoon; Des Plaines, Sunday afternoon; Elgin, Monday morning; Hampshire, Monday afternoon; Belvidere, Tuesday afternoon; and Rockford, Wednesday in time for the ceremonies.

BACK IN 1836, the Illinois Legislature authorized the construction of either a toll road or a railroad from Chicago to Rockford. The toll road was never built, or the five-day horse and wagon trip might have been cut by a day.

Now, under modern tollway conditions (plus the completion of Chicago's Northwest Expressway) the 85 miles in 85 minutes is near realization, tollway authorities said.

The vehicle, known variously as a Conestoga wagon or prairie schooner, was made available to the Tollway Commission through the courtesy of Hawthorne-Mellody Farms.

THE 76-MILE Northwest Tollway portion of the 187-mile Illinois Tollway System, opening August 20, only 23 months from the start of construction, runs from O'Hare Airport to South Beloit at the Wisconsin border, passing through Elgin, Belvidere and Rockford. A 30-mile strip of the 87-mile Tri-State Tollway, which will ring Chicago from Indiana to Wisconsin, connects with Edens Expressway at the Lake-Cook county line, will be opened to the public soon after.

The balance of the Tri-State Tollway south of the Edens connection, and the 28-mile East-West Tollway, linking Congress Street Expressway to Route 30 west of Aurora, will be opened by the end of the year.

Asks Reduction 1-Acre to 5-Acre Lots, Barrington

Dr. Byron J. May has asked the village of Barrington Hills to rezone a tract of approximately 54 acres adjoining the village of Barrington from its present R-1, 5-acre residential classification, to R-4, permitting subdivision into 1-acre lots.

The property, which is a part of the former A. F. Reichman estate, in the west half of section 2, Barrington township, is vacant except for one two-story frame house along the west line of the tract.

The petition asserts that the property is not suitable for sale in five acre tracts and that R-1 district zoning greatly reduces the market value of the property and makes a building program improbable, but that rezoning to one acre lots would make a building program possible and probable and would create a desirable buffer zone between the railroad and commercial property to the east and south and the higher classification residential property to the west.

Suspend Licenses

Only one northwest suburban motorist had his drivers license revoked last week, but nine had them suspended, according to Secretary of State Charles F. Carpentier.

They were among 330 drivers who had their licenses revoked and 442 who had them suspended throughout the state during the same period.

The lone license revoked was that of Edward W. Pohlman, 219 Applebee st., Barrington. He was found guilty of driving while intoxicated.

ALL BUT ONE driver, Dennis G. Raveling, 821 E. Davis st., Arlington Heights, had their licenses suspended for three moving violations within one year. Raveling had his license suspended for causing or contributing to an accident resulting in death or injury.

Suspensions went to James W. Bell, 1515 W. St. James, Arlington Heights; LeRoy J. Chapman, 1724 Marlee lane, Northbrook; Burt I. Gloor, 414 Clarendon, Prospect Heights; Ervin Lewis, Meadow lane, Wheeling; Robert S. Lobojko, 611 E. Euclid, Arlington Heights; Clifford C. Lothery, 58 S. Bothwell st., Palatine; Aram Markarian, 2907 Cardinal, Rolling Meadows; and Paul Milkovich, 652 Eisenhower, Palatine. (B8

Thomas J. McAuliffe Marries Joliet Girl

White floral bouquets decorated the altar of Grace Methodist church, Joliet, for the wedding ceremony between Miss Linda Elinor Wilson and Thomas Jay McAuliffe.

Miss Wilson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Wilson of Joliet while the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Lester T. McAuliffe of 524 Banbury rd., Arlington Heights.

THE COUPLE exchanged vows at 4 p.m. June 21 with Rev. Charles M. Chakour officiating. Miss Margaret Schultz sang "I Love You Truly," "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer," accompanied by Miss Chloe Goepper, organist.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a gown of white organzine taffeta fashioned with a scalloped bodice of rosepoint lace, long tapering sleeves and a bouffant skirt ending in a chapel train. Her white pearl earrings were a gift of the bridegroom. She carried a cascade of white carnations centered by a white orchid.

Miss Evelyn Wilson attended her sister as maid of honor wearing a gown of orchid organdy. She wore a matching headpiece and carried a bouquet of white carnations with orchid carnations.

BRIDESMAIDS were the Misses Sue Atkinson, Diane Henning and Susan Kingsbury, all of Joliet. Their gowns and flowers were identical to the maid of honor's gown and flowers. Kay Wilson, another sister of the bride, was flower girl and wore a full-length orchid organdy gown with embroidered organdy overskirt. She also carried white and orchid carnations.

Jan Behren of Arlington Heights was best man and ushers were Howard McElhose of Arlington Heights, James Marwood of Joliet and Richard McAuliffe, brother of the bridegroom. The bridegroom's cousin, James Rightmire of Arlington Heights, was candlelighter.

A RECEPTION was held immediately following the ceremony in the church parlors where Mrs. Wilson received in a pink lace dress with white accessories and a corsage of white roses. Mrs. McAuliffe chose a moss green lace dress with light pink accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Mr. McAuliffe, who attended Illinois Wesleyan university, is now employed by Bruning Co., while the new Mrs. McAuliffe is with a real estate office in Mt. Prospect. They are now residing at 621 N. State rd., Arlington Heights.

Just Around The Corner From Patty McArdle

Hospital Is Fascinating

Dear Peg:

I'm writing to you from the hospital, where I had a bit of minor surgery done yesterday, and which I'll be leaving tomorrow. With Mother's help, I planned this little sojourn very nicely. She took Megan and Bridget back to Indianapolis with her, when she returned with Dottie and Debbie, for their annual summer visit at the cottage on White river. For two weeks, the four little girls will make paths and tree-houses in the woods around the cottage, swim in the river and at night play games around the oil-cloth-covered table on the screened-in porch until the chirping crickets insist that it's bedtime. My aunt, who came with "Nana" and the girls, stayed to take care of Patrick and Joseph while I spent these few days in the hospital, and to help me for awhile when I get home.

To me, a hospital is a fascinating place. It's a place of excitement and drama—a place of constantly changing people and new experiences—a place that never sleeps. Unlike the many people I've heard tell how much they dislike being in a hospital, either as visitor or patient, I love the smells and sounds of a hospital, the friendly atmosphere and the secure feeling that with so many doctors and nurses around everyone must surely be getting well! Sometime I'd like to be a nurse's aid or even the lady who hands out the visitors' cards—anything to work part time in a hospital.

A hospital is sometimes a stage for some personal little drama. Take, for instance, the patient sharing this room with me. When I came in two days ago, she appeared to be at death's door. She had a tube in her nose, a tube in her mouth and was being fed intravenously. I thought she was certainly in grave condition. The first night doctors and nurses came in and out, giving her shots and pills to ask her questions through one of the nurses who could speak French. The patient knew her native language, Italian, and French, having married a Frenchman, and Arabic, as they lived for a number of years in Tunisia, but no English, even though she had lived for a year and a half in the United States.

Yesterday they removed all the tubes and spent the morning trying to get her to eat a little something by mouth. She cried that the pains in her stomach were so bad that she couldn't and furthermore, she told her doctor she had lain on the floor all night screaming for help and no one would come—she was sure that she was dying of constipation.

I had my little operation around noon and was so groggy all afternoon and evening I missed a great deal of the time, during which her brother and husband tried to persuade her that she was all right and could go home. (Boy, am I a nosey roommate!)

This morning her brother told me the hole story. Fifteen years ago she met and married her French husband and immediately left Italy to live in Paris. A few years later her husband's work took them to Tunis to live. They remained there until the outbreak of fighting in Tunisia, when they came to the suburb of Chicago, where her brother and his wife were living, at which time she weighed 180 pounds. She now weighs a scant 110. She simply has been starving herself, although she insists that the pain is so unbearable she can't eat.

Over the past year the doctor has examined her many times and found nothing and now she has just completed two weeks of tests and observation and again there is nothing physically wrong. Her doctor says she is homesick for Italy and must get back there or see a psychiatrist. They literally pulled her out of bed and firmly insisted that she get dressed—she has, and is now hastily packing her suitcase while her brother and husband wait to take her to seek another kind of help.

Love,
Patty.

Home Is Anchor In Troubled Times

by JOAN ROGERS

Troubled times tend to make people more security-minded. These are times of talk about recessions and cold wars and guided missiles and congressional investigations and juvenile delinquency. They are times that build up a greater need than ever for a good, solid anchor in this troubled world.

Home is that anchor. Home is the center of family devotion. It gives meaning to the efforts a family undertakes together, a reason to go forward together. It anchors the love that overcomes worldly fears and makes life worth living.

THAT'S WHY it's so important to make home as pleasant and attractive as possible. A wise wife and homemaker sees to it that this family center stands up under every situation for every member of her family.

The living room alone is a scene of many different emotions.

Dad's expression tells one tale, as he comes in from work. When he strips off his coat and tie and scoops up the evening paper, there should be a chair big enough and comfortable enough for him. If there is, he sighs in satisfaction and relaxes over his paper. If there isn't, he may come to the dinner table grumpy.

Mom's reaction tells another story. After a hectic shopping spree, the sight of her living room can do one of two things: It can look so inviting that she wonders why she left it—or it can add to her feeling of exhaustion.

GUESTS ARE GLAD visitors in the room that welcomes them with charm and warm hospitality. They won't feel as welcome, however, when they catch heels on worn spots in the rug, or try to sit comfortably on a lumpy sofa.

Children have definite feelings about a room, too. If they feel at ease, they play happily and freely. And if the room is attractive enough, they will take pride in it and care for its furniture.

These are the things that can make the difference between security and insecurity. Now, more than ever before, the home must fill all the needs of a family before it can become their anchor in troublesome times. (Soc Proceeds from the fair will go toward equipping the emergency room of the new hospital. (S

College Students Need Linen Supply

August has come to mean the opening of college clothing shops and the buying of back-to-school wardrobes. Along with the job of choosing a wardrobe goes the job of selecting the necessary linens and bedspread to "dress up" the college living quarters.

From a practical standpoint—a college dorm bedspread should be sturdy. From a student viewpoint, this item should be colorful and attractive. Textile experts at American Institute of Laundering, research and education center for the professional laundry industry, say that a good quality woven bedspread fits this description. A woven fabric takes harder wear and less care than a tufted or chenille spread. Comparatively inexpensive and practical for long service, woven spreads often have companion matching draperies. They can be found in solid colors as well as plaids and stripes.

FOR GREATEST satisfaction, the textile technicians advise shoppers to check the labels to see that these spreads are colorfast to sunlight and laundering and are preshrunk. If not preshrunk, the fabric may shrink 4 to 6 per cent during laundering.

For buying bed linens, it's important to know the size of the bed and mattress. Correct size eliminates strain from tugging and pulling and encourages more comfortable sleep. To find the correct size, take the length of the mattress, add six inches for thickness and ten inches for tuck-in and folding over the blanket. The width of the sheet should be twenty-four inches wider than the mattress. This allows a five to seven-inch take-up on each side, depending on the thickness of the mattress, and a five-inch tuck-in.

Correct size is especially important for fitted sheets, which are time-savers for students trying to make an early morning class. Another time and work-saver for students who seldom have time to give their washables proper care is the professional laundry.

THE IDEAL pillowcase is two inches wider than the pillow to avoid strain during use. It should also be long enough to completely cover the pillow.

For quality bed linens, check to see that threads are of the same thickness and that the filling threads are straight and not on the bias. Check sheeting for firm, compact selvage edges and hems that are straight with even stitching. These points are especially appropriate for students who'll be using pastel, striped or design sheets for draperies.

Shoppers should make sure that the college-bound student has an adequate supply of towels. When buying, check especially for colorfastness. And, choose close, large and thickly-packed loops, says American Institute of Laundering, which indicate that the towels will be absorbent and will give good servvice.

Orange Delight Cake Ideal For Afternoon Luncheons

The good cook we are featuring today is also a bridge enthusiast, and the recipes she has shared with us are all excellent to serve to bridge groups. Of course, they may be used on many other occasions, too.

As Mrs. Ralph G. Owens, Mt. Prospect belongs to four bridge clubs, she has had a good deal of experience in preparing bridge desserts or luncheons.

One of her favorite desserts is a delicious Orange Delight Cake. The batter is mixed in one bowl, and relatively little beating is required.

Flavored with lemon as well as orange juice and rind, the cake can be frosted with whipped cream and sprinkled with grated orange rind, or may be iced with a seven-minute frosting and sprinkled with coconut.

Either way, it is a delightful and refreshing cake to serve during the warm summer months.

ANOTHER refreshing dessert which Mrs. Owens favors is a heavenly Angel Pie.

This elegant pie has a meringue crust and a smooth lemon and orange flavored custard filling.

Garnished with whipped cream, it is delicious served with a good, hot cup of coffee.

For a bridge luncheon or late evening snack, you'll want to try Mrs. Owen's recipe for Baked Tuna Buns.

HAMBURGER buns are spread with a tasty mixture of grated cheese, hard-cooked eggs, tuna fish, relish and mayonnaise. Each bun is wrapped individually in foil and heated for 20 minutes before serving.

These, too, may be prepared early in the day or even the day before. They make mighty appealing back yard picnic fare, too!

No bridge party is complete without candy, and you needn't be a professional to try Mrs. Owen's excellent recipe for English Toffee.

This delightful sweet, favored by so many, can easily be made in your own kitchen and doesn't require any special candy-making equipment.

The ingredients must be measured accurately, but the mixture need only be cooked 10 minutes, poured into a pan, spread with chocolate and sprinkled with nuts.

And then you'll have a candy that's dandy!

Mr. and Mrs. Owens moved two years ago from Park Ridge to their home at 311 We-Go in Mt. Prospect.

They are members of the Community Presbyterian church.

Orange Delight Cake

1 1/3 cups sugar
2 teaspoons double-acting or 3 teaspoons fast-acting baking powder
¼ teaspoon soda
¾ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
2/3 cup soft butter
1/3 cup orange juice
1/3 cup water
2 unbeaten eggs
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Sift the flour, sugar, baking powder, soda and salt into a large bowl.

Add the orange rind, butter, orange juice and water. Beat well for two minutes. (Beat on No. 2 speed if using electric mixer.)

Add the eggs and beat two minutes longer. Then add the lemon juice and beat only enough to blend.

Pour batter into two 8-inch layer cake pans that have been greased and sprinkled with flour.

Pre-heat oven to 375 degrees and bake 30 to 40 minutes. Remove from pans and cool.

Cover entire cake with whipped cream and sprinkle with grated orange rind or frost with a seven-minute icing and sprinkle with shredded coconut.

Angel Pie

Meringue Crust:

4 egg whites
Pinch of salt
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
1 cup sugar

Beat egg whites and salt to a stiff froth. Sprinkle cream of tartar over top and beat until mixture starts to stiffen.

Add the sugar, a tablespoon at a time, beating until the mixture is stiff.

Spread on an ungreased pie pan and bake in a slow oven, 275 degrees, for about an hour, until lightly browned. Cool.

Filling:

4 egg yolks
½ cup sugar
Pinch of salt
2 tablespoons orange juice
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
1 cup whipping cream

Beat egg yolks until light and lemon colored. Combine with sugar, salt, juices and rinds in top of double boiler. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly, until thickened.

Whip cream and stir into filling. Spread over crust.

Chill 12 to 24 hours. Garnish with additional whipped cream for serving.

Baked Tuna Buns

½ pound processed sharp cheddar cheese
4 hard-cooked eggs
2 cans chunk-style tuna
½ cup hot dog relish
½ cup mayonnaise
Butter or margarine
12 hamburger buns
24 stuffed olives

Early in the day you may grate cheese (on medium grater) into large bowl. Place eggs on top of grated cheese and chop. (A pastry blender does a quick job.)

Add tuna, hot dog relish and mayonnaise. Toss to blend.

Butter split hamburger buns and fill with tuna mixture. Make a one-inch wide well in center of mixture and place two olives in it.

Cover with top half of bun and wrap each bun separately in aluminum foil. Refrigerate.

About 30 minutes before serving, start heating oven to 400 degrees.

Bake rolls 20 minutes, or until hot.

English Toffee

1 cup granulated sugar
½ pound butter or margarine
3 tablespoons water
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 plain chocolate bars
¾ cup chopped pecans

Place sugar, butter and water in a saucepan. Cook for 10 minutes or until brown, stirring constantly to prevent burning. Add vanilla.

Pour in a thin layer in a buttered pan. Lay the chocolate bars across the hot mass and spread them evenly.

Cool candy thoroughly and break into pieces.

Feed Cattle, Calves to be Near High Point in Fall

Numbers of cattle and calves suitable for feeding will be at or near an all-time high this fall. The important unanswered questions are, "Who will get them and at what prices?"

CALVES. The 1958 beef calf crop appears to be a little larger than that of last year. This year's calf crop in the great plains and western states is estimated at 17.8 million head. This is two per cent more than last year, and only five per cent short of the all-time high of four years ago.

YEARLINGS. Most of the yearlings now on hand were calves on January 1. Last winter the government estimated the number of beef calves on farms and ranches at 18.7 million head. That number was essentially the same as one year before, and only two per cent less than the all-time record high two years before. It appears that the slaughter of such cattle has been small this year. Consequently, the supply of yearlings now may well be at least as large as it was at the peak two years ago.

So much for the supply side of the market for stocker and feeder cattle and calves. Now we turn to the demand side of the market.

DEMAND. The demand for stockers and feeders comes from anyone and everyone who wants to own them. This includes the rancher who produced them, other ranchers who want them for grazing, farmers who want them for feeding, and packers who want them for slaughter.

One important, but often not understood, fact about prices of feeder cattle is that they swing more widely than do prices of slaughter cattle. Thus, when prices of slaughter cattle are high in relation to feed costs, prices of feeder cattle will be even higher. And when prices of slaughter cattle fall in relation to feed costs, prices of feeder cattle fall more. There are, of course, short-time exceptions to this rule.

Prices of slaughter cattle were on an uptrend from early 1956 to early 1958. Feed costs declined, making feeding quite profitable. Prices of feeder cattle and calves were bid up more than prices of slaughter cattle.

PRICES OF SLAUGHTER cattle have been declining for nearly six months, but prices of stockers and feeders have not followed. The following elements have combined to hold up prices of stocker and feeder cattle:

1. Profits from cattle feeding have been very good until recently.
2. There has been a strong demand from ranchers for restocking in the southwest.
3. Farmers in the western corn belt and the eastern great plains have been loaded with feed.
4. Packers have been willing to pay high prices for two-way cattle because of the shortage of cows for slaughter.

It appears that most of these price supporting forces are past their peak strength. A major decline in prices of feeder cattle, however, probably will not come until a substantial number of cattle feeders have lost some money and packers can buy more cows. (Some short-fed cattle marketed recently made little or no profit.)

Bloat Presents Danger to Cows

Bloat in cattle is not a new problem, but the danger is always present, especially when pasturing legume crops.

The history of bloat dates back to Biblical times and even now, some 2,000 years later, comparatively little is known about its causes, prevention or treatment.

However, there has been some progress in controlling bloat in more recent years, points out Jack Warnimont, owner of Warnimont Farm Supply, Roselle.

"There are two definite avenues of approach to bloat prevention," Warnimont reports. "One is the adoption of special management practices, and the second is through the use of drugs or other chemicals fed either directly or in combination with other feeds."

Here are some management practices that are helpful in reducing the incidence of bloat:

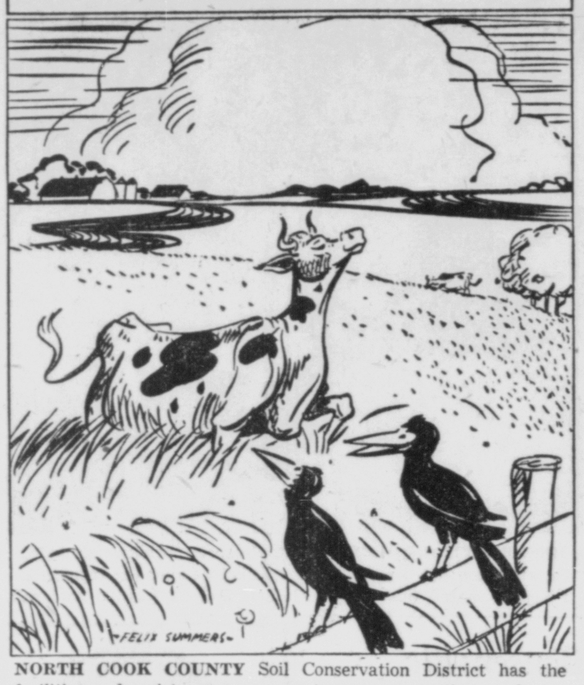

(1) Pasture management: If pastures can be maintained with no more than 50 per cent legumes, the chance of bloat is greatly reduced.

(2) Feeding hay: If animals receive hay daily before going to pasture or have a good supply of hay available while on pasture, bloat is often eliminated.

(3) Alternate pasturing of sudan: There is some experimental evidence that overnight pasturing of sudan has prevented bloat on alfalfa pasturing the following day. (Fm

Poultry Integration Pros Outweigh Cons, Says Kalb

Disadvantages of integration to the processing plant are minor compared with the advantages, according to Wilbur Kalb, manager of Armour Creameries, Lincoln, Ill.

Kalb spoke today on a panel discussion of integration in the poultry industry at the University of Illinois All-Industry Poultry Day. Other panel members included Harry Bedient, Tolono broiler grower; Fred Munroe, Joliet hatcheryman; and H. G. Halcrow and J. R. Roush, University of Illinois farm economists.

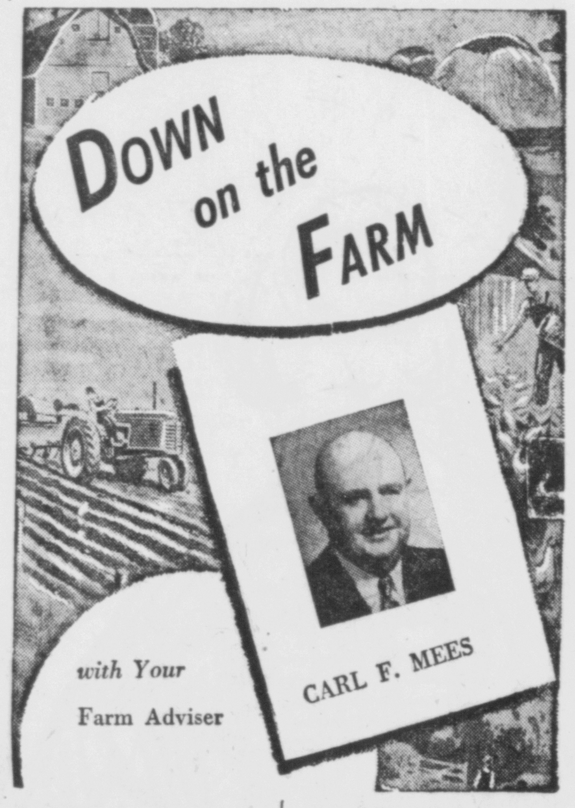

One of the biggest advantages is that integration assures a source of enough market birds, Kalb told the more than 200 poultry growers, hatcherymen and processors in attendance. Volume can be distributed seasonally and to fit processing plant needs.

Another result is more uniform quality in the product, he pointed out. Producers grow their birds under a supervised program, using the same chicks, feed and management procedures. Volume production brings savings in chicks, feed, equipment, construction and other costs.

Disadvantages include the need to process a given number of birds each week regardless of conditions, loss of freedom of operation and danger of losing sight of market values, Kalb said.

Other program items included disease prevention, the University's research program, poultry performance tests, a panel discussion of farm handling of feed in the poultry industry and a look at power choring.

A barbecue chicken luncheon, sponsored by the Illinois Poultry Improvement Association, was served at noon in the Livestock Pavilion. (Fm

Thirsty Tree Shows Its In Distress

A thirsty tree that shows its distress with spectacular leaf scorch may need much more than just a long drink of water.

Such is often the case with stricken sugar maples, among our more popular shade trees, and landscape pets. The sugar maple seems particularly susceptible to drouth conditions and reflects this with the scorching of leaves around outside marginal areas. This condition is particularly noticeable in prolonged dry and hot periods.

Frequently, the situation is more complex, according to D. B. Magruder, field representative of the Davey Tree Expert co. Tree men may have to look for blocks in the tree's circulatory system. Girdling roots or mechanical injuries may contribute to circulatory troubles and to general decline. Where drouth is a damaging factor first aid includes deep watering every week or ten days over the entire root area, which means the entire surface at least as far out as the spread of the branches.

Where decline has set in feeding too is essential. Besides rebuilding vitality tree feeding stimulates the growth of a greater mass of fine rootlets which improve the roots system's ability to reach out more efficiently for greater amounts of soil moisture.

Now Best Time to Start Renovating Old Lawns

by JAMES FIZZELL

Late summer is one of the best times to renovate old lawns. If the job is started in August, and the lawn seeded by September, the fall growth plus the growth the next spring will produce a turf thick enough to keep out crabgrass, and make it difficult for weeds to get started.

Probably the most important step in renovating a lawn is the removal of all weeds. If there are few weeds in the lawn, or if the lawn is quite small, the weeds can be pulled. For large or very weedy lawns, the chemical weed killers are almost a necessity.

Broadleaved weeds such as dandelions, plantain, or chickweek can be killed with 2,4-D, 2,4,5-T or a combination of the two. Be sure to use these materials with care, as they will seriously injure or even kill broadleaved flowers, shrubs, or vegetables. It is best to apply weed killers at a time when there is no wind so that there is no chance for the fumes to drift to desirable plants.

Crabgrass can be killed with disodium methyl arsenate, potassium cyanate, or certain other compounds specially formulated for this purpose. Several treatments may be necessary.

Undesirable perennial grasses such as the tall fescues, can be spot treated with grass killers such as Dowpon; however, unless the entire lawn is to be killed, Dowpon must be used with care as it kills bluegrass as well as weedy grasses.

After the weeds have been killed, the lawn should be raked thoroughly to loosen the upper crust of soil and tear up the mat of dried grass. Low places in the lawn should be filled in with fine topsoil.

Ten days to two weeks after the last weed killer treatment, the lawn can be fertilized, and grub proofing materials applied. Fertilizer of 10-10-10, 10-8-6, or similar analysis should be applied at the rate of ten pounds per 1,000 square feet of lawn. Lead arsenate, ten pounds per 1,000 square feet, or chlordane, one-quarter pound for the same area will control earthworms and grubs. Chlordane also controls ants, chiggers, and webworms.

Seed with a grass suited to the location. In Northern Illinois, Kentucky bluegrass is probably the best adapted grass for lawns. The variety Merion Blue is just as well suited, but is more expensive, and may be more susceptible to certain diseases. If the lawn is quite shady, it may be necessary to sow a mixture containing 25 per cent fine leaved fescue and 75 per cent bluegrass. The seed should be sown at one-half the rate recommended for new lawns. Roll after seeding to smooth the surface and firm the seed into the soil.

Water immediately after rolling, but wet only the upper inch of soil. When the soil is again dry, water once a day until two weeks after the seed has germinated. After two weeks, watering every day is no longer necessary, and more water can be applied at each watering. After the middle of October, there will probably be sufficient moisture in the soil so that watering will not be required.

The lawn should be cut when the old grass reaches a height of two and one half inches regardless of the height of the new grass.

Leaders Plan Fair Display

Directors of the North Cook County Soil Conservation District held its August board meeting last Monday night. In addition to the directors, Carl Mees, Cook county farm adviser, and Elmer E. Offerman, soil conservationist, attended. The group met at the Soil Conservation Service office in Lake Zurich.

Included in the business was a discussion and formulation of plans for an exhibit at the North Cook County fair. Since there is considerable interest in wildlife conservation this will be the theme of the exhibit this year.

The Illinois State Department of Conservation will cooperate with the North Cook County Soil Conservation district in planning and developing the exhibit.

Objective of the district is to assist in the proper management of soil and water. Since well managed soil and water makes the ideal home for birds, animals and fish, it is logical that these two groups jointly develop and exhibit.

Other business included a monthly report by Offerman on the accomplishments during the month.

The September Directors' meeting will be held on Wednesday night, Sept. 3, at the Soil Conservation service office in Lake Zurich. (Fm

Acid May Help Soybean Yields

Soybean yields may some day be higher because of gibberellic acid, according to C. J. Wargel and R. W. Howell, University of Illinois Agronomists. The two men presented their experimental findings today at the 51st annual meeting of the American Society of Agronomy at Purdue University.

According to the agronomists, spraying small soybeans with gibberellin causes the lower stems to grow longer than usual, and that in turn causes the soybean pods to form higher from the ground. This additional height allows more of the pods to get into the combine and lessens the number left in the field, and thus effectively increases yield.

On the Illinois plots, gibberellin has shown the most effect when applied soon after the beans come up, although the chemical may cause the stems to weaken when small plants are sprayed. Treating the seed before planting has caused poor stands, and the chemical has not shown the desired effects when applied to larger plants.

First results show no change in date of maturity of chemical composition of gibberellin-treated beans over untreated control plots. More complete results will be available after the 1958 experimental plots have been harvested.

Illinois farmers will have the opportunity to see the gibberellin treated soybeans at the annual agronomy day of September 11 at Urbana. (Fm

The Purple Profit Eater At Dairy Day

"The Purple Profit Eater," No. 1 hit on the dairy disease parade, will be featured at the seventh annual Dairy Day at the University of Illinois Thursday, Sept. 4.

University of Illinois veterinarians are planning an exhibit for Dairy Day that will show dairymen the latest developments in how to control mastitis, the disease veterinarians call "the purple profit eater."

Mastitis is a serious problem in Illinois dairy herds, according to Dr. J. R. Pickard of the College of Veterinary Medicine. Without realizing it, farmers may be losing 10 to 20 per cent of their production from this disease.

Mastitis accounts for one-third of all losses from cattle diseases, and U. S. farmers are losing $225 million annually because of it. Mastitis has bee nstudied extensively for many years, but the disease has not yet been brought under control.

Other Dairy Day exhibits will feature the latest in milk-handling equipment, new ways to feed and store forage and new ideas in dairy cattle feeding and housing. Exhibits will be set up at the South Lincoln ave. dairy barn by 9 a.m.

Dr. Pickard will be on hand to discuss mastitis and livestock health problems with anyone who is interested. (FM

Filling The Silo Dangerous

It's silo filling time again. Perhaps that's what homemakers think each time "us guys" come in from the field to eat. But with silo filling come many dangers, says O. L. Hogsett, extension safety specialist at the University of Illinois, College of Agriculture.

Poison gases and falls are the greatest dangers when you clean the silo and put up the doors. Moving and power-driven machinery in the field is the danger there. Shut off the field chopper and the silage cutter when you grease, adjust or unclog these machines.

Keep the power-take-off shield in place. Don't be foolish enough to step across moving belts. These things don't involve just the chance of losing a shirt or a pair of pants—one wrong move and you may wind up holding up six feet of dirt and a heavy tombstone.

Never work alone when packing silage in the silo. A sudden illness or too much nitrogen dioxide gas may cost more than the help of an extra man. Silage isn't much good in the silo—it has to be fed to livestock. Let's work this summer so we'll be around next winter to help feed it. (FM

At last the rain ceased long enough for us to combine our oat demonstration plots. The data has not been summarized as yet but I can see from observation that there will be a difference of 35 bushels or more between the high and low yields.

The varieties in these plots were all handled in the same way, relative to seed treatment, soil treatment, rate of planting, harvesting etc.

The conclusion is that some varieties yield much better than others. What we would like to find out by the demonstration plots is which varieties are consistently better yielders than others.

VEGETABLE SUPPLY

For several weeks I have reminded you that the fresh vegetable supply is ample to take care of everyone's needs. Why don't you stop at some of our vegetable stands along the highway and pick up your vegetables? They are fresh from the farm and of the best quality. Cook County vegetable growers grow the best vegetables in the entire nation.

Housewives that are on strict budgets will find that they can stretch their dollars farther on purchasing vegetables than with any other items. Vegetables likewise supply nearly all of the needed vitamins.

DUTCH ELM DISEASE

The attendance at the meeting held at Arlington high school on Dutch elm disease was disappointing. Evidently most of the people in this northwest area do not care if they have a shade tree or not. If this is not true then you are willing to let someone else worry about the situation. If this is not true then you think there is no disease here in the area.

All three of the above reasons are false. Last week there were 13 more trees in Arlington Heights positively identified with this disease.

The pattern followed here is the same as that followed in other areas. Unless we take positive action the results will be the same. Namely loss and destruction of our trees.

Dr. Campana said that it had cost the cities of Champaign and Urbana over one-half million dollars to cut down and destroy the trees infected with Dutch elm disease. Besides that it has destroyed the beauty of the towns.

My advice is that if we have to spend one-half million on our trees, let's do it, but let's spend it on a sanitation and spray program to protect our trees. Not to saw them down.

The Way We See It

Arlington Needs Sidewalk Policy

Sidewalks are a necessity in any community with densely-populated residential areas.

Safety experts of the National Safety Council, American Automobile Association, and the Institute of Traffic Engineers as well as other professional engineering bodies endorse sidewalks for communities such as Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights.

The American Association of State Highway Officials feels the need for adequate sidewalks for pedestrians is "obvious."

And practically all subdivisions and planned communities with ordinary size lots now include sidewalks.

Why all the emphasis on sidewalks? Primarily, because traffic accidents are the greatest killer of children of early school age. Everything possible should be done to separate children from vehicular traffic — and local records of bicycle accidents alone serve as mute testimony to this need.

With such an overwhelming amount of evidence to support sidewalks, it is hard to understand the current controversy raging in Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights where home owners are challenging the villages' efforts to install sidewalks.

Opposing home owners insist that sidewalks will mar the beauty of their lawns and that the cost involved must include landscaping and driveway repair costs and "home devaluation," as well as actual construction cost of the walks.

These apparently strong arguments weaken, however, when confronted with the fact that both Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect have had sidewalk ordinances on the books for a number of years. If the law had been rigidly enforced, there wouldn't be a problem today. Pinpointing blame for these lapses on past administrations will not rectify the mistakes, however. Officials in both communities have taken the stand that the financial burden of installing walks must fall on the individual homeowner.

This stand is the only fair solution. Owners who pay for sidewalks in the initial cost of their homes shouldn't have to pay for a neighbor's walks.

As to the complaint about the value of homes dropping because a sidewalk is added, this is not an important factor in densely-populated residential areas such as Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect. Even housing developers have now accepted the need for sidewalks. All major northwest developments in recent years, including Hoffman Estates and Elk Grove Village, have included sidewalks among improvements.

Village authorities in Mount Prospect have gone farther than those in Arlington Heights in pushing a sidewalk program. That village board wants walks in front of every home — and when voluntary compliance was tried and failed, they brought special assessment proceedings against more than 500 home owners. By insisting on blanket installation, the board is trying to silence any cries of favoritism toward one neighborhood or another.

The general policy of the Arlington Heights village board is to require sidewalks near schools. But the specifics of the policy are difficult to pin down. When walks were put in near three southside schools last year, the rule was to require them within two blocks of the schools. This flat rule was abandoned this year when sidewalks were proposed near Ridge school and Arlington high school.

Another sample of the vague criteria: the board does not consider installing walks in an area until there is some demand from the area, although the board also claims it will eventually get around to all schools.

A third weakness of the Arlington program is in its survey technique. On one street the "survey" consisted of personal observation by a village trustee or two while on another street the police made a pedestrian count. There is no uniform method of survey.

If the pedestrian traffic along a street is to be the main criteria instead of a flat rule of distance-from-school, then the survey should be a legitimate one. A consistent program is needed — either a flat rule uniformly enforced or else usage based on an accurate count of juvenile and adult pedestrian traffic.

If a program is worthwhile — and this one is — then it should be put through quickly. The present form of the Arlington Heights program invites delay (witness the recent law suit), neighborhood dissension and gossip mongering.

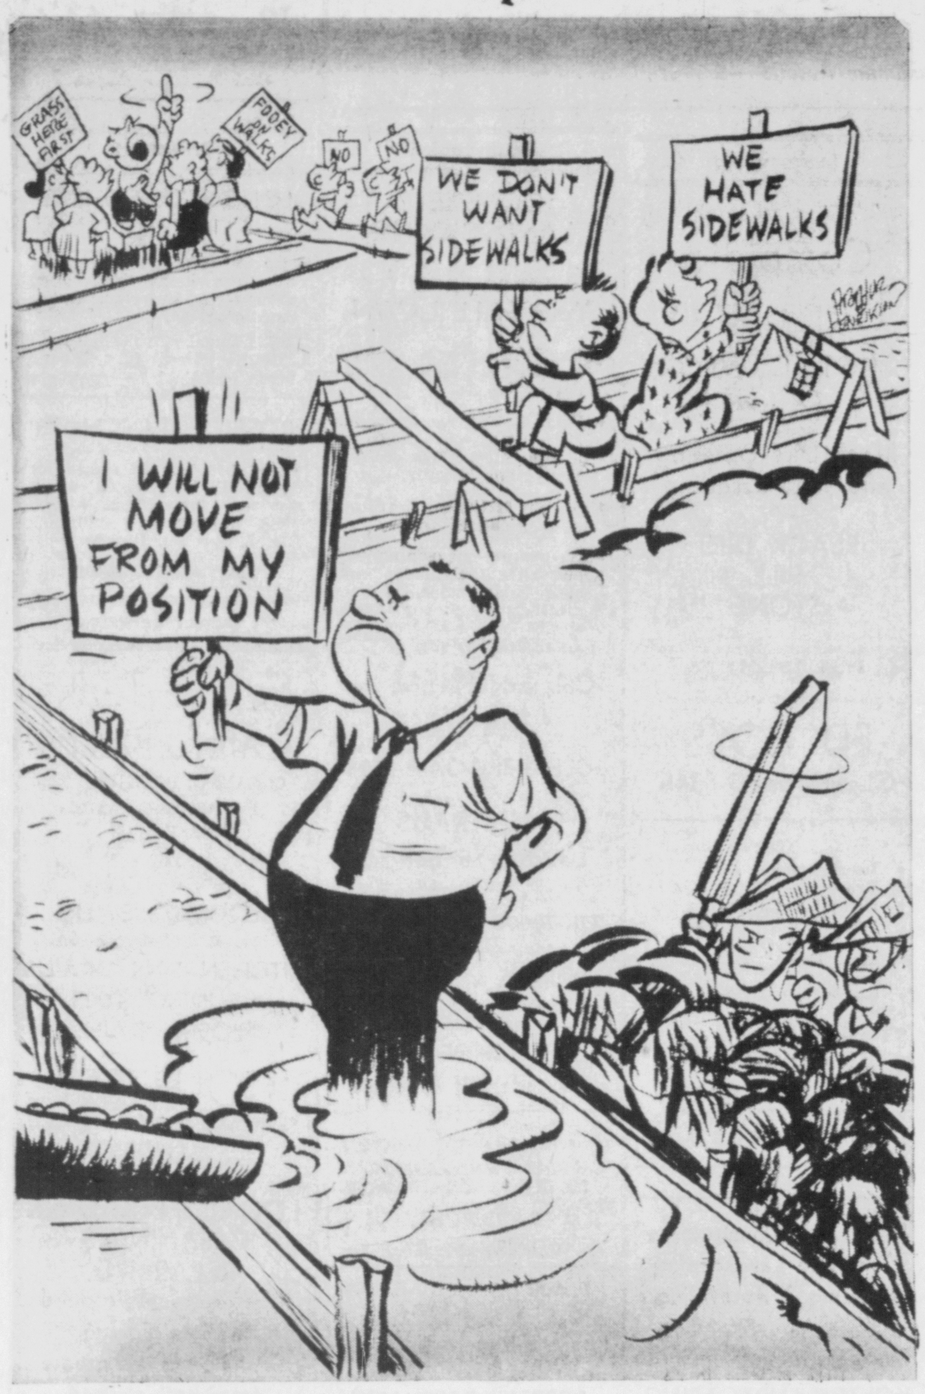

The adoption of reasonable uniform standards by the Arlington Heights village board would go far toward reducing the endless bickering that has accompanied the program for more than a year. It would also speed up the program and quite possibly, save a child or adult from death or injury.

Equal Justice Throngh Modern Courts

Opportunity in Illinois

A vigorous campaign of public education is taking form in Illinois in support of the Blue Ballot Judicial Amendment which will be handed to every Illinois voter on election day this year. The campaign cannot be too vigorous or too educational. It would be a civic tragedy for Illinois if this long overdue modernization of its outmoded court system were to fail for lack of public information.

Illinois' antiquated court system—or systems, since there are layers and layers of courts of differing descriptions and jurisdictions—goes back to 1848. In the 100 years almost no changes have been made to keep the Illinois courts up with the times.

The Blue Ballot Judicial Amendment is a basic, constructive, thoroughly desirable plan to make order and sense out of what amounts almost to judicial chaos. It was submitted by the 1957 session of the Illinois Legislature for vote of the people. It bears the whole-hearted bi-partisan indorsement of such Republicans as Gov. Stratton and Attorney General Castle and such Democrats as former Gov. Stevenson, Mayor Daley of Chicago and former National Chairman Mitchell.

ILLINOIS JUSTICE, as now administrated, is often slow and confused. Sometimes there is litigation over the question as to whether a lawsuit has been filed in the proper court. That is because the trial courts are so numerous — Superior, Criminal, County, Probate, Municipal, Justice of the Peace and so on—that it may take a lawsuit and a judicial finding to determine whether the legal question is raised before the right judge.

One of the many bad aspects of the present magistrate court system is that the magistrate collects his fee only if he enters a finding of guilty. The consequence is that findings of guilt are pretty much the rule in magistrate courts regardless. Another drawback is that a widow who must settle an estate frequently finds herself involved in several courts. In some court districts, the backlog of cases is so great that it takes two to three years to get to trial to collect, say, damages suffered in an automobile accident through carelessness on the part of another.

Still another hindrance to justice in Illinois is the fact that the distribution of judges no longer accords with the population. With 10 times as many people and great shifts in population in the interval, it is fantastic that Illinois should still be voting on Supreme court judges along district lines that have been handed down almost intact for more than a century.

Under the Blue Ballot Judicial Amendment all trial courts would be consolidated into the Circuit court, one of which would be maintained continuously in every county for the convenience of citizens. Administrative authority would be vested in the State Supreme court, with an administrative director and staff, and with power to assign judges to other courts or branches of courts in order to facilitate overdue trials and appeals.

IF COOK COUNTY needs the reform to obtain a fairer share of State Supreme court justices, downstate Illinois needs the amendment for reasons already cited as well as many others. Downstate civic and community leaders and voters have ample cause to support the amendment. All are potential litigants who may suffer at the hands of the present complicated, inefficient costly multiplicity of overlapping courts.

In our opinion, the reform would be more far-reaching and serve justice better if the present method of selecting judges were improved. But the fact is that no change in selection is provided, even though some of the critics of the amendment are spreading that as a smokescreen.

There is also an effort to confuse voters into thinking that the amendment would affect local revenues and "home rule." That, too, is without even the flimsiest foundation. Fines now retained in local communities would be kept there under the amendment.

Between now and November 4 every voter in Illinois owes it to himself—and herself—to learn about the Blue Ballot Judicial Amendment and to resolve to put an X in the Yes square at the polls. If every voter does learn how much the trial, appellate and supreme courts will be improved in organization and administration, this major reform will sweep to success in Illinois.

The Trouble with Sidewalks

The issue was taken, the sides were drawn, the forces met, and the battle over the sanctity of the suburban lawn began . . .

(Reprinted with permission from Kiwanis Magazine)

by WILLIAM EBERLE

The Dog days of last July came barking lustily into our town, and with them came the sidewalk issue. Temperatures of the citizenry rose until our favorite summer pursuits were all but forgotten. Badminton birds nested in their boxes, and the nets sagged like fishing seines hung out to dry. Weeds grew in the gardens. Even power mowers were stilled.

Events that unfolded in our quiet suburb threatened to confound the P.T.A., shatter the Boy Scouts, turn mother against mother, friend against friend, and frustrate the Cancer Fund drive. Lights shone in the village hall as late as 2 a.m., and the village board meetings rivaled sessions of the French parliament when it came to old-fashioned name-calling and new-fangled vituperation.

I first learned about it in mid-May when I returned from my vacation. Before I could unload kids and baggage from the car, my neighbors descended upon me. In their eyes, where we might have expected welcoming twinkles, were ominous glints.

"Have you seen the letter?" they demanded.

"No, what letter?"

"You will," they said in a way that prompted me to hurry indoors and sift through my mail. Before I could find it, the doorbell rang. It was another set of neighbors.

"There's a meeting in my backyard this afternoon," said one. "You'll be there, won't you?" The fellow waved a letter under my nose, which I rudely snatched away.

It was a pithy little epistle from the village manager, proposing that property owners on a few streets in our neighborhood put in sidewalks. If we didn't care to do so privately, then by mid-July the village would do the job for us and send us the bill.

"Are you coming to the meeting?" my neighbor wanted to know as he retrieved the letter.

"Well, I was thinking of mowing my lawn. It looks kind of shaggy."

"What! You can mow the lawn at a time like this? Do you want your kids to walk to school in the street?"

"With all those cars?" added his friend belligerently.

There wasn't a car in sight on our street. Moreover, the green lawns marched down to the curbs in eye-soothing beauty. Everybody knows that having curb-to-house lawns is a suburban status symbol, something like having wall-to-wall carpeting, only more important since it is out of doors where everybody can notice it. In my mind's eye I could see a nasty ribbon of concrete cutting through the green of the block.

For the next five minutes I was reminded that within two blocks from my home were a kindergarten through fifth grade school, the junior high school, and the parochial school —a cozy nest of juvenile learning if there ever was one. Adjacent to the schools was a park replete with baseball diamonds. A bit farther west was another park with tennis courts, baseball diamonds, a community house, swimming pool, and even worse, a wading pool.

"Can you imagine the juvenile traffic created by these facilities?" one of the men wanted to know. "We've got to have sidewalks to move these kids through our area safely."

To tell the truth I really hadn't noticed the juvenile traffic moving through our area. With better than 50 kids living on our block alone, any number of itinerant youngsters could go parading past and since they all had the same ready smile and cheerful "hello," who could tell them from the sons and daughters of neighbors?"

We were still discussing the issue when it was time for the block meeting. My lunch was waiting on the kitchen table, but it waited in vain, for I was leaning on the neighbor's garage getting a first-hand lesson in how American democracy works at the backyard level. At first the meeting was in the hands of the pro-sidewalk people, who seemed to include all my immediate neighbors. Then came an invasion from other nearby streets, where the feeling was as bitterly anti-sidewalk as it was pro-sidewalk up and down our block.

The newcomers' leader strode to the center of the lawn.

"Has anybody seen the ordinance upon which this nonsense is based?" he boomed.

Nobody had, so he volunteered to go and see the mayor and get a copy of it. While he was gone, both parties joined to set up a committee to investigate the village's intentions, and his friends rewarded him by making him chairman. Later, when he came back and learned of his new responsibility, he bellowed like a wounded buffalo. He took the job, however.

The meeting broke up in wild confusion brought on by the utter inability of all present to make sense out of the ordinances. I went home and bawled out my wife, kicked at the neighbor's dog, and after a brief dinner hurried off to the first meeting of the committee. There I represented the pro-sidewalk faction, which meant everytime I said anything I was listened to. Then the discussion went on as before.

Other meetings were held on curbs and porches, in living rooms and rumpus rooms. A score of debating citizens stomped around my yard one night. They got into my wife's flower beds, used up all my ice, littered the place with cigarette butts, and produced no plan of action. One solitary woman stood nervously on the side lines.

"It's the women that are responsible for the mess," trumpeted one man. "If the mothers who drove their children to school would only watch where they're going, we wouldn't need any sidewalks for the other kids to walk on. But you can't expect a woman to drive much better."

The one lady present cleared her voice several times and seemed about to speak. Instead she contented herself with picking most of the leaves off the privet she was lurking behind.

There was a hearing at the village hall at which the village board learned they were gouging, heartless, crooked, myopic no-goods. They learned this over and over until around two in the morning, at which time they stormed home for a few restless hours in bed before catching their trains to the city. Both the mayor and board members hold down full-time jobs and govern our village in what passes for their leisure moments.

The following Sunday one of the board members was coming out of church when he was mobbed by members of the congregation.

"What's this about your being in favor of sidewalks?" everybody wanted to know.

He blanched, but refused to wither. The village had made a traffic count, and there were too many children walking in the street where there were too many cars. Yes, one of the police officers had counted each youngster and each car. Yes, the sidewalks were necessary. No, I'm not trying to make you pay your way into the poorhouse. No, I didn't know you voted for me. I'm sorry you feel that way about voting for me again.

Out of the confusion emerged a neighborhood association devoted to the preservation of the pristine greens and the balking of the village authorities. At its head was the man who had mistakenly gone to find a copy of the ordinances. I discovered that I was chairman of the pro-sidewalk committee, which started out by representing 11 property owners among the several hundred directly involved. Because there was a school teacher, an engineer, and a lawyer among us, we were insulted by being named "eggheads" and "squares." We were plainly out of step with the great crusade against the threat to the idyllic beauty of our town. We might have been happy to restore peace and quiet by capitulating, but unfortunately we had consulted experts at the National Safety Council. They had been dismayed at the traffic hazard our community posed for its children. "You're just lucky you haven't had a fatal accident," we were told.

Armed with all sorts of technical studies, we rode fearlessly into the fray. The town newspaper volleyed and thundered, shooting at first one side and then the other. One day, children paraded down our street with little placards. "We don't want sidewalks," the signs read.

On July 2 somebody placed illegal fire crackers in the mail box of the chairman of the anti-sidewalk forces and set off an explosion noiser than a sonic boom, judging from its repercussions. In the evenings crews of men and women roamed up and down the village's shaded streets and trampled the neglected lawns that many of them were defending so zealously. They carried petitions; hardly anybody for miles around missed being asked to put his name on at least one solemnly written document. (Some signed two or three). When two rival groups collided on the street, heated words were exchanged. At least two scuffles broke out.

Property owners signed up even in remote sections of the village. They were convinced that they too would either be forced to put in sidewalks or would, on the other hand, be prevented from doing so. Hundreds paid ten dollars a head to join the association fighting the walks.

"Going sidewalking," became an expression much in vogue as July's temperatures rose. It meant a lot of things. It meant bolstering your wavering allies down in the next block who'd had their ash cans dumped over during the preceding night. It meant consulting with the rival chairman on how to get the dispute back on a friendly footing. It meant attending meetings at the village hall, arguing with the opposition, and badgering the board members. It meant painting placards and counting cars and flaying the P.T.A. for not taking a stand and criticizing the school board, which saw in the huggermugger a threat to a forthcoming bond issue. It meant phoning friends and foes and village board members and, above all, the mayor. Finally, in despair, the mayor fled town on vacation.

All forces converged on the village hall one evening. A noted big city lawyer had been retained by the anti-sidewalk association to present its case, which he did with clean, legal logic. This, of course, proved the undoing of the anti-sidewalk element. Against him, our committee of "eggheads" pitted a mother, who vividly described the near accident she had seen near a school. The anti-sidewalk people shouted and booed as if they were at a baseball game, but made little headway against our collection of jaunty placards and a flip-flop. The board clearly saw that the majority of the community's voters now wanted sidewalks. They expressed satisfaction that their judgment had been right in the first place, and unanimously voted that the walks be put in.

Today, children walk to and from the schools and parks on new sidewalks, and are presumably safer than when the lawns were larger. Most of the ravage done to our greenery has been covered by a new crop of grass, and a newcomer to our town would be hard put to find any evidence of our community feud during the dog days of last July.

But even to this day all is not as before. Onetime friends no longer speak to one another. Mothers whose children walk to school are not very happy with mothers who drive their children to school. Recently a pro-sidewalk man, collecting funds for the Boy Scouts, rang the doorbell of an anti-sidewalk man.

"Say, I won't give to any cause you support," said the aroused householder. "You people wanted sidewalks."

"But your own son is in the Scouts. What's more, the Scouts had nothing to do with the sidewalks," protested the fund-raiser.

"He's not in the Scouts any longer!" said the man grimly.

The Cancer Fund drive collided with similar prejudice. Cancer it seems has something to do with sidewalks. Moreover, notice is hereby served on Democrats and Republicans alike. Candidates for governor of our state and for all other offices had better do some adroit double-talking when it comes to the all important Sidewalk Issue.

Rolling Meadows Reader Explains Stand Against Changing Rte. 53

Your editorial on the proposed highway has been read with interest by all of us whose property values and living conditions will be affected adversely by Mayor Northcote's "personal" preference for the highway route.

We note that you are in favor of the highway east or west of 53 and we do not disagree with your position in this respect as we feel also that the highway is essential for the overall progress of the area. We do disagree, though, with your rquest that we should calm down—as per your own statement—the county will be inclined to accept a joint proposal from the communities involved and our mayor's proposed contribution to the joint proposal, as presented to the city council, as quoted in your previous edition and as stated to me personally by the mayor is that the new highway be run along the east side of 53 which, of course, is immediately adjacent to all of the Rolling Meadows homes on the west side of the city between Kirchoff and Central rds.

We just cannot feel that the mayor should make such a proposal which is completely contrary to the interests of the more than 500 home owners between Kirchoff and Central rds. and from Owl dr. west.

The mayor has stated to me personally, with a witness present, that his preference for the route is the east side of 53 because this would save the properties on the west side of 53. Your paper also quoted the mayor. This is why we cannot calm down.

Should our mayor be for his own people as is the case in the other communities involved? Our mayor is willing to "throw us to the dogs" whereas we who are jeopardized do not react in a like manner. We do respect the rights of the Plum Grove area residents. We, as also do certain members of the city council, feel that the best route for the distance between Kirchoff rd. and Central rd. would be the present highway 53 roadbed—expanded as necessary.

We feel that if our mayor is to propose any change at all for the Kirchoff rd. to Central rd. stretch, it should be for the use of the present roadbed. We have already canvassed each and every adult resident—numbering more than 482 —each is in complete agreement with us and cannot understand our mayor's position. We hope you will publish our position.

Driver Training

We wish to thank all the people of Arlington Heights and nearby communities who have shown great courtesy to the many new drivers with whom we have worked through the past school year. We realize that at times, while these students have been learning to drive properly, they do not always clear intersections as quickly as possible. Of the many times we have taken these students through heavy traffic, we have met very few rude or impatient people. I am sure this courtesy shown by adults will create and foster better attitudes in our young drivers.

In Appreciation

IN MEMORIAM

Margaret Bertha Siese—In loving memory of our wife and mother who departed this life 3 years ago today.

The rolling stream of time flows on
But still the vacant chair
Recalls the love, the voice, the smile
Of mother, who once sat there.
The flowers we lay upon your grave
May wither and decay,
But the love we have for you, dear,
Will never fade away.
A loving mother, so true and kind,
No friend on earth like her we find;
For all of us she did her best,
May God grant her eternal rest.

Daughter Margaret
Brennen and Husband
Fred Siese

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of our beloved mother, Mrs. Arthur Boesche, who passed away 10 years ago, August 11, 1948.

God knew that you were suffering,
He knew you were in pain,
He knew you never could get well,
In this world again.
He saw the road was getting rough,
The hills were hard to climb,
So He closed your weary eyelids
And whispered, Peace be thine.
A loving mother so true and kind
No friend on earth like you we find
For all of us you did your best
May God grant you eternal rest.

Loving children.

Mammoth Dog Show Slated Aug. 31 at Prospect High

One of the largest dog shows ever to be sponsored by an obedience club will be held Sunday, Aug. 31, in the field house of Prospect high school, Foundry rd., Arlington Heights.

An all-breed obedience trial and tracking test, the show is the first licensed trial and test to be sponsored by the Northwest Obedience Training club, Inc., of Suburban Chicago and will include 330 dogs working in six rings.

Invited to participate in the show were other obedience clubs in Chicago, its suburbs and nearby states, with some entries coming from as far as Minnesota.

NOVICE TRIALS for dogs working on their first degree, and open and utility trials for the more advanced dogs, will begin at 8:30 a.m. and continue until 6 p.m. when all dogs entered will have been judged. Tracking tests will take place on the Justin Fleischmann grounds and surrounding properties in Palatine.

Nearly 100 ribbons, trophies and awards will be presented to owners of dogs with highest scores in the various classes and among the various breeds. Entries close August 18; Mrs. Frank Grover, 2765 Forest Glenn trail, Deerfield, may be contacted for entry blanks.

The public is invited with children being admitted at half price. Plate dinners as well as hot dogs and barbecues will be available.

The sponsoring club, which trains Wednesday evenings in Palatine, was formed six years ago. Stanton Petry of Arlington Heights is chairman of the show and honorary chairman is David W. Terrill of Palatine. (B8
